AMERICAN COLLEGE OF SURGEONS

1950-1952 YEAR BOOK

THE American College of Surgeons published a complete Year Book in January of 1942. Because of the many Fellows of the College who were in military service and into whose hands it would not be possible to place a directory correction form, it was the consensus that publication of a complete Year Book was undesirable during the years 1942 to 1946, since the locations and professional appointments of many of the Fellows were changing during and after the war.

In 1943, there was published a supplement that included a list of those who were admitted to fellowship in the College in 1942—a geographical list with specialties indicated and an alphabetical list with degrees and appointments.

Other supplements were published as follows:

In 1944, a supplement that included a list of those who were admitted to fellowship in the College in 1943—a geographical list with specialties indicated and an alphabetical list with degrees and appointments. In addition there was included in this supplement a complete alphabetical index of Fellows of the College admitted through 1943. This list included the name, and the city and state, province, or country.

In 1945, a supplement similar to that published in 1944 which included geographical and alphabetical lists of those who were admitted to fellowship in the College in 1944.

In 1946, a supplement similar to that published in 1945 which included geographical and alphabetical lists of those who were admitted to fellowship in the College in 1945.

The 1947-1949 Year Book contained a complete list of Fellows of the College as of September, 1947—a geographical list with specialties indicated and an alphabetical list with degrees and appointments.

In February 1949 there was published a supplement that included a list of those who were admitted to fellowship in the College in 1948—a geographical list with specialties indicated and an alphabetical list with degrees and appointments.

This 1950-1952 Year Book contains a complete list of Fellows of the College as of July 1950—a geographical list with specialties indicated and an alphabetical list with degrees and appointments. (Please see "Contents" on the facing page for other material that is included herein.)

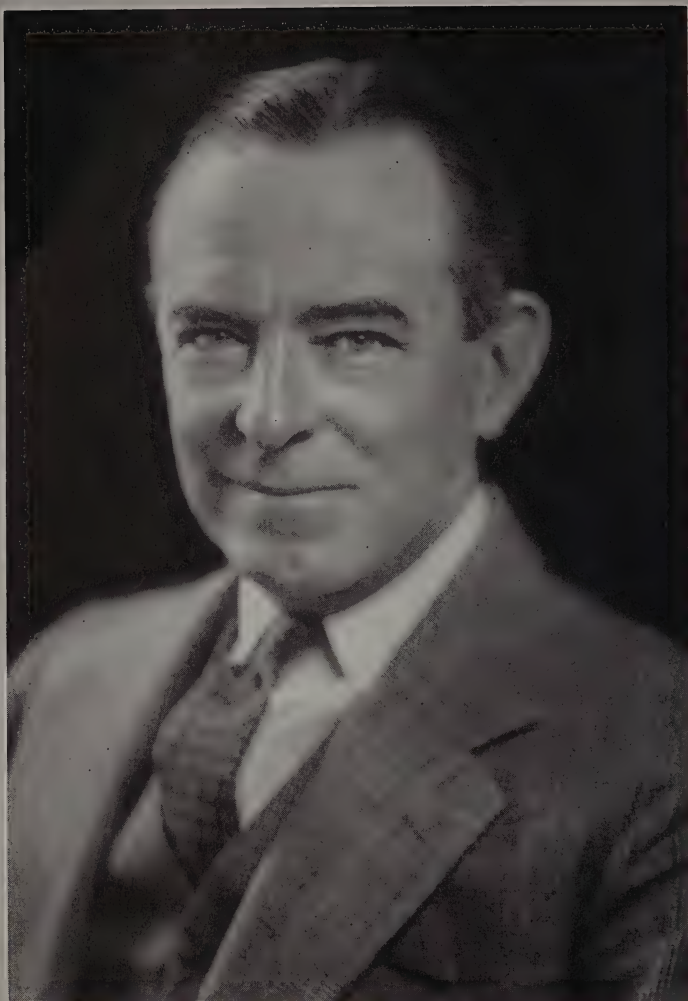

Reference symbols and abbreviations which are used in this volume are explained at the beginning of the alphabetical list of "Fellows of the College with Their Degrees and Appointments."

PRESIDENT 1949-1950

FELLOWSHIP PLEDGE

RECOGNIZING that the American College of Surgeons seeks to develop, exemplify, and enforce the highest traditions of our calling, I hereby pledge myself, as a condition of Fellowship in the College, to live in strict accordance with all its principles, declarations, and regulations.

* * In particular, I pledge myself to pursue the practice of surgery with thorough self-restraint and to place the welfare of my patients above all else; to advance constantly in knowledge by the study of surgical literature, the instruction of eminent teachers, interchange of opinion among associates, and attendance on the important societies and clinics; to regard scrupulously the interests of my professional brothers and seek their counsel when in doubt of my own judgment; to render willing help to my colleagues and to give freely my services to the needy. * *

Moreover, I pledge myself, so far as I am able, to avoid the sins of selfishness; to shun unwarranted publicity, dishonest money-seeking, and commercialism as disgraceful to our profession; to refuse utterly all money trades with consultants, practitioners, makers of surgical appliances and optical instruments, or others; to teach the patient his financial duty to the physician and to expect the practitioner to obtain his compensation directly from the patient; to make my fees commensurate with the service rendered and with the patient's rights; and to avoid discrediting my associates by taking unwarranted compensation. * * Finally, I pledge myself to co-operate in advancing and extending, by every lawful means within my power, the influence of the American College of Surgeons.

THE BYLAWS*

AMERICAN COLLEGE OF SURGEONS

Founded by Surgeons of the United States and Canada, 1913

I. NAME. The name of the corporation is the American College of Surgeons.

II. OBJECT. The object for which it is formed is to establish and maintain an association of surgeons, not for pecuniary profit but for the benefit of humanity by advancing the science of surgery and the ethical and competent practice of its art; by establishing standards of hospital construction, administration and equipment, and all else that pertains to them; by engaging in scientific research to determine the cause, nature and cure of disease; by aiding in better instruction of doctors; by formulating standards of medicine; and methods for the improvement of all adverse conditions surrounding the ill and injured wherever found. To accomplish these benevolent and charitable aims, it shall be within the purposes of this corporation to use those means which from time to time may seem to it wise, including research, publication, education, the establishment and maintenance of libraries, museums, and other agencies or institutions appropriate hereto, and the co-operation of any other such activities, agencies or institutions already established or which may hereafter be established.

III. THE COLLEGE. Section 1. Membership. The College shall consist of all members of the corporation, such members to be designated as Fellows.

Section 2. Eligibility of Fellows. The Fellows of the College shall be graduates in medicine who are licensed to practice medicine in their respective states, provinces, or countries, or who are medical officers of the Federal services, who have made an application for fellowship, and who meet and continue to meet the qualification requirements which shall from time to time be established by the Board of Regents, and who shall have been elected to fellowship by the Board of Regents after investigation and report by the Committees on Credentials.

Any Fellow of the College who, for reason other than retirement, discontinues the practice of surgery or the surgical specialty under which he qualified for fellowship, and who wishes to retain his fellowship, shall be required to present the facts pertaining to his case to the Board of Regents for its consideration and action.

Section 3. Honorary Fellows. The Regents may elect as Honorary Fellows individuals (a) who possess an international reputation in the field of surgery or medicine, or (b) who have rendered distinguished humanitarian services in the field of medical science. Honorary Fellows shall not be required to pay fees or dues but shall enjoy all of the privileges of the Fellows except that they shall not have the right to vote or to hold office. The number of living Honorary Fellows shall not exceed one hundred (100), not more than ten (10) of whom may qualify under (b).

Section 4. Designation of Fellows. Each individual elected to fellowship in the College shall be designated as a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and shall be authorized and encouraged to use the letters "F.A.C.S." after his name on professional cards, in professional directories, and in articles published in medical literature.

Section 5. Annual and Special Meetings. The College shall hold an annual meeting on the day and at the place selected for the annual meeting of the Board of Governors. Special meetings of the College may be called at any other time at the request of the Board of Regents, or by a written call signed by not less than one hundred (100) Fellows. Thirty (30) days' notice of the time and place of annual or special meetings of the Fellows shall be given by mail, postage prepaid, addressed to each Fellow at his residence or place of business as the same shall appear on the books of the College.

Section 6. Quorum. The Fellows present shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at any regular or special meeting of the Fellows.

*As amended to April 22, 1950.

Section 7. Expulsion of Fellows. The right to expel from membership, call for the resignation of, or otherwise discipline any Fellow of the College shall be vested in the Board of Regents.

Questions which may arise as to the fitness of any member to continue as a Fellow of the College shall be referred to the Executive Committee which may make an investigation and, if it deems the facts justify such action, shall report the results of its investigation to the Board of Regents.

Before any action is taken by the Board of Regents relative to the membership of a Fellow, written notice shall be sent by registered mail to the last known address of the Fellow whose conduct is to be considered. The notice shall be mailed not less than thirty (30) days prior to a regularly called meeting of the Board of Regents and shall advise the Fellow of the time and place of the meeting and that he may appear at the meeting in person or by his representative and be heard and may submit such evidence as he deems proper to show that he is qualified to continue as a Fellow of the College.

The Board of Regents may expel, call for the resignation of, or otherwise discipline any Fellow of the College after the sending of such written notice and giving to the Fellow an opportunity to be heard in accordance with such notice if a majority of all of the members of the Board of Regents shall find that the conduct of the Fellow has been injurious to the good order, peace, reputation or interest of the College, or derogatory to its dignity, or inconsistent with its purposes, or shows a failure to maintain the standards of conduct as set forth in the fellowship pledge.

IV. BOARD OF REGENTS. Section 1. Membership. The Board of Regents shall consist of sixteen (16) members, fifteen (15) of whom shall be elected by the Board of Governors from among the Fellows in a manner to be determined by the Board of Regents. The Fellows of the College shall, at their annual meeting, elect one of their number to be the President of the College, and the Fellow so elected shall be the sixteenth member of the Board of Regents.

Section 2. Vacancies. All vacancies on the Board of Regents shall be filled from the Fellows by the Board of Governors at its next regular or special meeting. Any Fellow so elected shall hold office until the expiration of the term in which the vacancy occurred. The Board of Regents may, however, appoint a Fellow to serve as Regent until the vacancy is filled by the Board of Governors.

Section 3. Duties. The Board of Regents shall have the control and management of the affairs and funds of the College, such control and management to include, without limiting in any manner the foregoing powers, the following: to adopt rules and regulations for the admission of Fellows; to fix initial fees and dues of Fellows; to elect Fellows to the College; to arrange for convocations or other meetings for the conferring of fellowships; to arrange for the annual Clinical Congress and such sectional or other meetings as may be deemed advisable; to call any meetings of the College not already provided for; to create, appoint and direct all standing committees; to create such executive and administrative offices as may be necessary and appoint incumbents thereto; to elect members of the Executive, Finance, and Central Credentials Committees; to have supervision of all activities and business affairs of the College; and to transact all business not otherwise provided for that may pertain to the College.

Section 4. Chairman and Vice Chairman. The Chairman of the Board of Regents shall be annually elected for a term of one (1) year by the Board of Regents, from its own members. He shall preside at all meetings of the Board, and shall execute all duties delegated to him by the Board. A Vice Chairman shall also be elected in a similar manner. He shall preside at all meetings of the Board in the absence of the Chairman, and perform such other duties as shall be delegated to him by the Board of Regents. In the event of the death or resignation of either the Chairman or the Vice Chairman, the office shall be filled by election at the next meeting of the Board of Regents.

Section 5. Regular and Special Meetings. Regular meetings of the Board of Regents shall be held at least annually at the call of the Chairman of the Board. Special meetings may be convened at any time by the Chairman of the Board, or on a request made to him in writing and signed by thirty (30) members of the Board of Governors, or by nine (9) members of the Board of Regents. Not less than five (5) days' notice of the time and place of such meetings shall be given by mail, postage prepaid, addressed to each member of the Board of Regents at his residence or place of business as the same shall appear on the books of the College.

Section 6. Quorum. Nine (9) members of the Board of Regents shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

V. BOARD OF GOVERNORS. Section 1. Founders of the College. The members of the first Board of Governors shall be designated as Founders of the American College of Surgeons.

Section 2. Membership. The Fellows of the College shall nominate and annually elect, in a manner to be determined by the Board of Regents, fifty (50) of their number to membership on the Board of Governors, each to serve for a term of three (3) years. Each of the following surgical associations and societies may nominate each year one Fellow as a candidate for the Board of Governors to serve for a term of three (3) years:

American Surgical Association

Section on Surgery, General and Abdominal, of the American Medical Association

Section on Obstetrics and Gynecology of the American Medical Association

Section on Ophthalmology of the American Medical Association

Section on Laryngology, Otology and Rhinology of the American Medical Association

American Gynecological Society

Southern Surgical Association

Section on Surgery of the Canadian Medical Association

American Association of Obstetricians, Gynecologists, and Abdominal Surgeons

American Orthopaedic Association

American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons

American Association for the Surgery of Trauma

American Association of Genito-Urinary Surgeons

American Urological Association

American Laryngological Association

American Ophthalmological Society

American Otological Society

American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology

Each of the following surgical associations and societies and each of the following Federal Services may nominate every three years one Fellow as a candidate for the Board of Governors to serve for a term of three (3) years:

Central Surgical Association

New England Surgical Society

Pacific Coast Surgical Association

Western Surgical Association

Medical Corps, U. S. Army

Medical Corps, U. S. Navy

U. S. Public Health Service

U. S. Veterans Administration.

Section 3. Vacancies. The Board of Regents shall elect members from among the Fellows to fill vacancies in the current membership in the Board of Governors due to death, resignation, or other causes. Any member so elected shall hold office until the expiration of the term in which the vacancy occurred.

Section 4. Election of Board of Regents. The Board of Governors shall elect annually, in a manner to be determined by the Board of Regents, five (5) Fellows of the College to membership on the Board of Regents, each to serve for a term of three (3) years. Not more than four (4) of the five (5) Fellows so elected to membership on the Board of Regents shall be selected from one country. Vacancies on the Board of Regents shall be filled by the Board of Governors as provided in Article IV, Section 3.

Section 5. Annual and Special Meetings. The Board of Governors shall meet in executive session annually for the transaction of business, which shall include the election of members of the Board of Regents and other routine business which may be brought before it by the College or by the Board of Regents. Such meetings shall be called by the Chairman of the Board of Regents. Special meetings of the Board of Governors may be called at any other time at the request of the Board of Regents. Thirty (30) days' notice of the time and place of annual or special meetings shall be given by mail, postage prepaid, addressed to each member of the Board of Governors at his residence or place of business as the same shall appear on the books of the College.

Section 6. Convocations and other Formal Meetings. Members of the Board of Governors shall be expected to attend other formal meetings and convocations called by the Board of Regents for the purpose of conferring fellowships and for the transaction of other business.

Section 7. Quorum. Thirty (30) members of the Board of Governors present in person shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

VI. OFFICERS. Section 1. Number. The officers of the College shall be a President, a First Vice President, a Second Vice President, and a Treasurer, all of whom shall be Fellows of the College; and a Secretary.

Section 2. Election and Appointment. The President, the First Vice President, and the Second Vice President shall be elected by the Fellows of the College at their annual meeting. These officers shall assume their offices upon inauguration on the first day of the annual session next following their election, and they shall serve for a term of one (1) year or until their respective successors are inaugurated. The Treasurer and Secretary shall be appointed by the Board of Regents. They shall each serve for a term of one (1) year or until their respective successors are appointed and qualified.

Section 3. President. The President of the College shall preside at all regular and special meetings of the College and of the Board of Governors, and at all convocations for the conferring of fellowships. He shall also be ex officio a member of the Executive Committee.

Section 4. First Vice President. The First Vice President shall preside at all meetings of the College in the absence of the President; and in the event of the death, resignation, or disability of the President, he shall perform the duties and exercise the powers of the President.

Section 5. Second Vice President. The Second Vice President shall preside at all meetings of the College in the absence of the President and of the First Vice President; and in the event of the death, resignation, or disability of the President and First Vice President, he shall perform the duties and exercise the powers of the President.

Section 6. Treasurer. The Treasurer of the College shall administer the funds of the College under the supervision of the Finance Committee, and he shall make such reports to the Finance Committee, the Executive Committee, and the Board of Regents as may be required from time to time. He shall furnish a bond to the corporation for the faithful performance of his trust. In the absence or disability of the Treasurer his duties shall be performed by such person and in such manner as the Finance Committee may direct.

Section 7. Secretary. The Secretary shall be appointed by the Board of Regents and shall hold office during the pleasure of the Board. The Secretary shall keep the minutes of the meetings of members, the Board of Regents, and Board of Governors, and of the standing committees of the College; shall see that all notices are duly given in accordance with the provisions of law or of the bylaws; shall keep the records and the corporate seal, and see that the seal is affixed to all documents the execution of which under seal is duly authorized in accordance with the provisions of the bylaws; and in general the Secretary shall perform all duties incident to the office, and such other duties as may from time to time be assigned by the Board of Regents.

Section 8. Vacancies. All vacancies among the officers of the College shall be filled by the Board of Regents. The Executive Committee may, however, appoint temporary officers to hold office until the next meeting of the Board of Regents. An officer elected to fill a vacancy shall serve for the unexpired portion of the term of his predecessor.

VII. COMMITTEES. Section 1. Standing Committees. The standing committees of the College shall include an Executive Committee, a Finance Committee, and a Central Committee on Credentials, and such other committees as the Board of Regents may from time to time appoint. The members of all such standing committees shall be appointed by the Board of Regents as provided in Article IV, Section 4.

Section 2. Executive Committee. (a) The members of the Executive Committee shall consist of the Chairman and the Vice Chairman of the Board of Regents, the Treasurer, and four (4) Regents. The four (4) Regents shall be elected by the Board of Regents and shall serve for one year and until their respective successors are elected and qualified, and they shall be eligible for re-election. The Chairman of the Board of Regents shall be the Chairman of the Executive Committee. The President of the College shall be ex officio a member of the Executive Committee.

(b) During the intervals between the meetings of the Board of Regents, the Executive Committee shall exercise all the powers of the Board of Regents in the management and direction of the business and the conduct of the affairs of the College, except that it shall not have power to elect Fellows, to amend the bylaws, or to regulate initial fees or annual dues of fellowship. It shall keep a record of its proceedings and shall, immediately after each meeting, report the same to the Board of Regents for approval at the next succeeding meeting of the Board. The Executive Committee may fill vacancies occurring in its membership and may appoint temporary officers of the College as provided in Article VI, Section 8.

Section 3. Finance Committee. (a) The Finance Committee shall consist of the Treasurer and four (4) other Fellows elected to membership on the Committee by the Board of Regents. The Finance Committee shall be subject to the authority of the Board of Regents, and shall have the general supervision and direction of all the financial affairs and interests of the College. The committee shall have the power to invest and reinvest the funds of the College, to sell, transfer and convey any securities and property other than real estate, and to execute and deliver on behalf of the Board of Regents all necessary and proper instruments of transfer and conveyance. The committee shall designate the banks and/or trust companies in which the moneys and securities of the College shall be deposited. The Treasurer shall perform such duties as may from time to time be specifically delegated to him by the Finance Committee. At each annual meeting of the Fellows, the Finance Committee shall present a statement of the financial condition of the College.

(b) After the close of each fiscal year the Finance Committee shall have the books and accounts of the College audited by a certified public accountant who shall make necessary entries and corrections, ascertain the cash and securities on hand, and furnish the Board of Regents in connection with the report of the Treasurer a certificate of their findings.

Section 4. Committees on Credentials. There shall be a Central Committee on Credentials, selected in such manner, and to serve for such periods, as the Board of Regents may from time to time determine. There shall also be local Credentials Committees, distributed geographically by states, provinces, countries, or other units. These Committees on Credentials shall consist of such number as the Board of Regents may designate. The members shall be nominated by mail ballot by the Fellows and from among the Fellows living within the respective states, provinces, countries, or other units. Their eligibility, manner of election, and term of office shall be determined by the Board of Regents. The Committees on Credentials shall be subject to the supervision and control of the Board of Regents.

Section 5. Notice of Meetings. Unless otherwise provided by the Board of Regents, meetings of all standing committees of the College may be held on one day's notice given to each member personally or by mail, telegraph or telephone.

Section 6. Quorum. A majority of the members of any such committee shall constitute a quorum, and the acts of the majority at any meeting when a quorum is present shall be the acts of the committee, provided that a quorum of the Finance Committee shall always include the Treasurer of the College.

VIII. CORPORATE SEAL. The Board of Regents shall provide a suitable seal, which shall be in the form of a circle and shall bear the name of the College and the words: "Corporate Seal, Illinois."

IX. AMENDMENT OF BY LAWS. At any duly convened regular or special meeting of the Board of Regents, these bylaws may be modified, altered, or amended by a majority vote of all of the members of the Board; these bylaws may also be modified, altered, or amended by a majority vote of all Fellows, present in person or by proxy, at any duly convened regular or special meeting; provided that the proposed amendment or amendments shall have been included in the call of the meeting at which such action is to be taken.

X. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS. Section 1. Annual Sessions. The College shall hold an annual session at such place and time as may be determined by the Board of Regents which shall include:

(a) The Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons consisting of (1) surgical and diagnostic clinics and demonstrations; (2) scientific and literary papers concerning or relating to the art and science of surgery; (3) hospital standardization conference.

(b) Annual meeting of the Fellows of the College, as provided in Article III, Section 5.

(c) Annual meeting of the Board of Governors of the College, as provided in Article V, Section 5.

(d) Convocation of the College at which occasion candidates for fellowship are admitted to fellowship in the College.

Section 2. Publications. The Board of Regents shall issue a directory containing the names and addresses of the Fellows of the American College of Surgeons arranged by states, provinces, colonies, or countries.

Section 3. Waiver of Notice. Whenever any notice is required to be given under the provisions of the articles of incorporation or of the bylaws, a waiver thereof in writing, signed by the person or persons entitled to such notice, shall be deemed equivalent to the giving of such notice. No notice of the time, place, or purpose of any meeting shall be required when all of the persons entitled to such notice are present at the meeting.

Section 4. Adjournment of Meetings. In the event that a quorum shall not be present at any duly called meeting of the Board of Regents, the Board of Governors, or of any standing committee, the members present and entitled to vote at any such meeting may adjourn the same from time to time to reconvene without further notice than that contained in the resolution of adjournment. At any adjourned meeting at which a quorum shall be present, the members may transact any business which might have been transacted at the meeting if it had been held at the time for which it was called.

INCORPORATION

STATE OF ILLINOIS

Department of State

CORNELIUS J. DOYLE, Secretary of State

To All to Whom these Presents Shall Come, Greeting:

WHEREAS, A CERTIFICATE, duly signed and acknowledged, has been filed in the Office of the Secretary of State, on the 25th day of November, A.D. 1912, for the organization of the under and in accordance with the provisions of "AN ACT CONCERNING CORPORATIONS," approved April 18, 1872, and in force July 1, 1872, and all acts amendatory thereof, a copy of which certificate is hereto attached; Now Therefore, I, CORNELIUS J. DOYLE, Secretary of State, of the State of Illinois, by virtue of the powers and duties vested in me by law, do hereby certify that the said is a legally organized Corporation under the laws of this State.

AMERICAN COLLEGE OF SURGEONS

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I hereto set my hand and cause to be affixed the great Seal of State. Done at the City of Springfield this 25th day of November, A.D. 1912, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-seventh.

To CORNELIUS J. DOYLE, Secretary of State:

We the Undersigned, Albert J. Ochsner, John B. Murphy and Franklin H. Martin, Citizens of the United States, propose to form a Corporation under an act of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois, entitled "An Act Concerning Corporations," approved April 18, 1872, and all acts amendatory thereof, and that for the purposes of such organization we hereby state as follows, to-wit:

1. The name of such Corporation is American College of Surgeons.
2. The object for which it is formed is to establish and maintain an association of surgeons, not for pecuniary profit but for the benefit of humanity by advancing the science of surgery and the ethical and competent practice of its art; by establishing standards of hospital construction, administration and equipment, and all else that pertains to them; by engaging in scientific research to determine the cause, nature and cure of disease; by aiding in better instruction of doctors; by formulating standards of medicine; and methods for the improvement of all adverse conditions surrounding the ill and injured wherever found. To accomplish these benevolent and charitable aims, it shall be within the purposes of this corporation to use those means which from time to time may seem to it wise, including research, publication, education, the establishment and maintenance of libraries, museums, and other agencies or institutions appropriate hereto, and the co-operation of any other such activities, agencies or institutions already established or which may hereafter be established.
3. The management and control of the affairs and funds of the corporation shall be vested in a board of sixteen (16) trustees who may be known as Regents, and who are to be elected as the by-laws provide.
4. The following persons are hereby selected as the Directors to control and manage said Corporation for the first year of its corporate existence, viz.:
Edward Martin, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; George E. Brewer, New York City, New York; Albert J. Ochsner, Chicago, Illinois; John B. Murphy, Chicago, Illinois; and Franklin H. Martin, Chicago, Illinois.
5. The location is in the city of Chicago in the County of Cook in the State of Illinois, and the post office address of its business office is at No. 31 North State Street, in the said city of Chicago.

(Signed) ALBERT J. OCHSNER
JOHN B. MURPHY
FRANKLIN H. MARTIN

GENERAL STATEMENT

ORGANIZATION OF THE COLLEGE

THE American College of Surgeons is a society of surgeons of North and South America which aims to include within its fellowship all who are of worthy character and who possess a practical knowledge of the science and art of surgery. The College is concerned fundamentally with matters of character and of training, with the betterment of hospitals and of teaching facilities in medical schools and hospitals, with laws which relate to medical practice and privilege, and with an unselfish protection of the public from incompetent medical service.

The College was organized on May 5, 1913, in Washington, D. C., when five hundred and forty-eight prominent surgeons came together at the invitation of an Organization Committee which had been appointed by the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America at its meeting in November, 1912. This Organization Committee consisted of Edward Martin of Philadelphia, Emmet Rixford of San Francisco, John B. Murphy of Chicago, Rudolph Matas of New Orleans, Albert J. Ochsner of Chicago, Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Frederic J. Cotton of Boston, George Emerson Brewer of New York, John M. T. Finney of Baltimore, Walter W. Chipman of Montreal, George Crile of Cleveland, and Franklin H. Martin of Chicago. Bylaws, rules, and regulations were adopted, and the Board of Regents, the Board of Governors, and officers of the College were elected. Details of these matters are published in the Year Book and in Bulletins of the College.

THE CLINICAL CONGRESS OF THE AMERICAN COLLEGE OF SURGEONS

By the joint action of a committee appointed by the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America and of the Regents of the College, the Clinical Congress of Surgeons became, on October 25, 1917, the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons. The following resolution effected the merger of these two organizations:

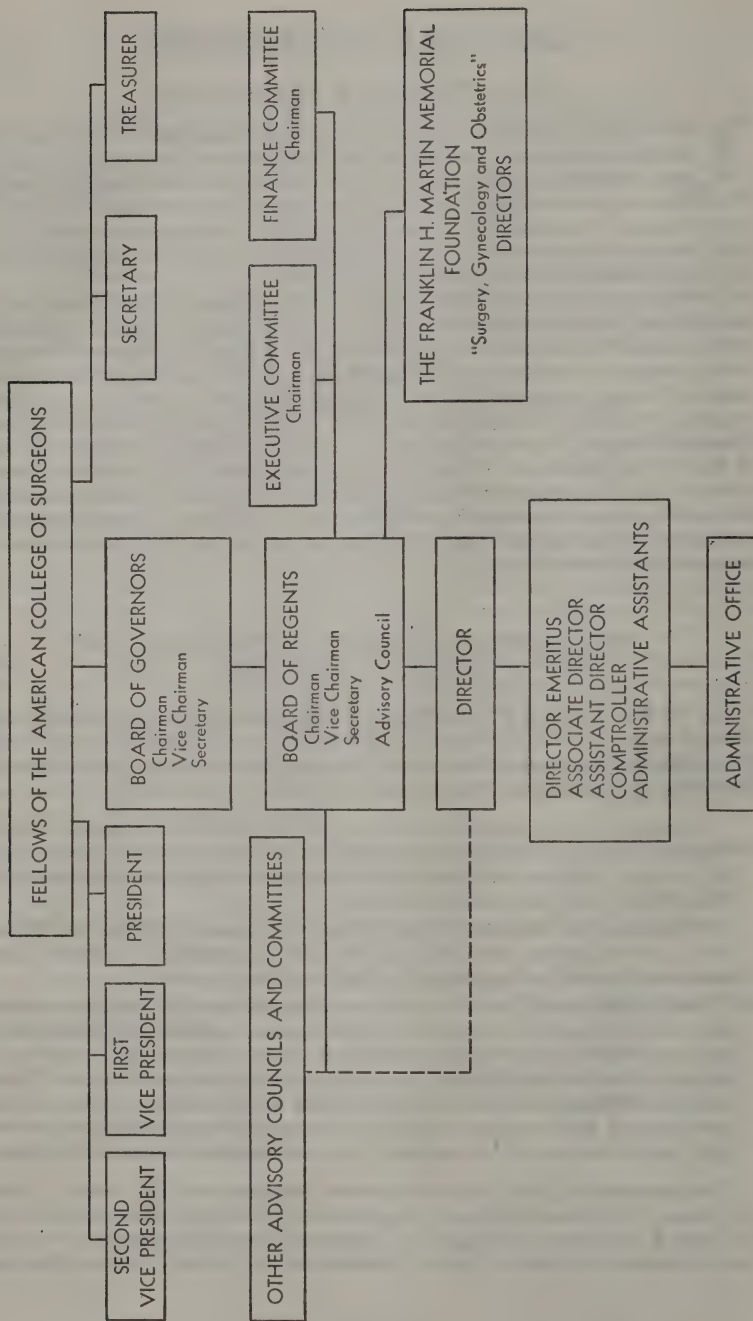

WHEREAS, The past presidents of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons were, on October 26, 1916, in Philadelphia, appointed as a Committee with power to act to confer with the American College of Surgeons with a view to closer affiliation between these two organizations; and

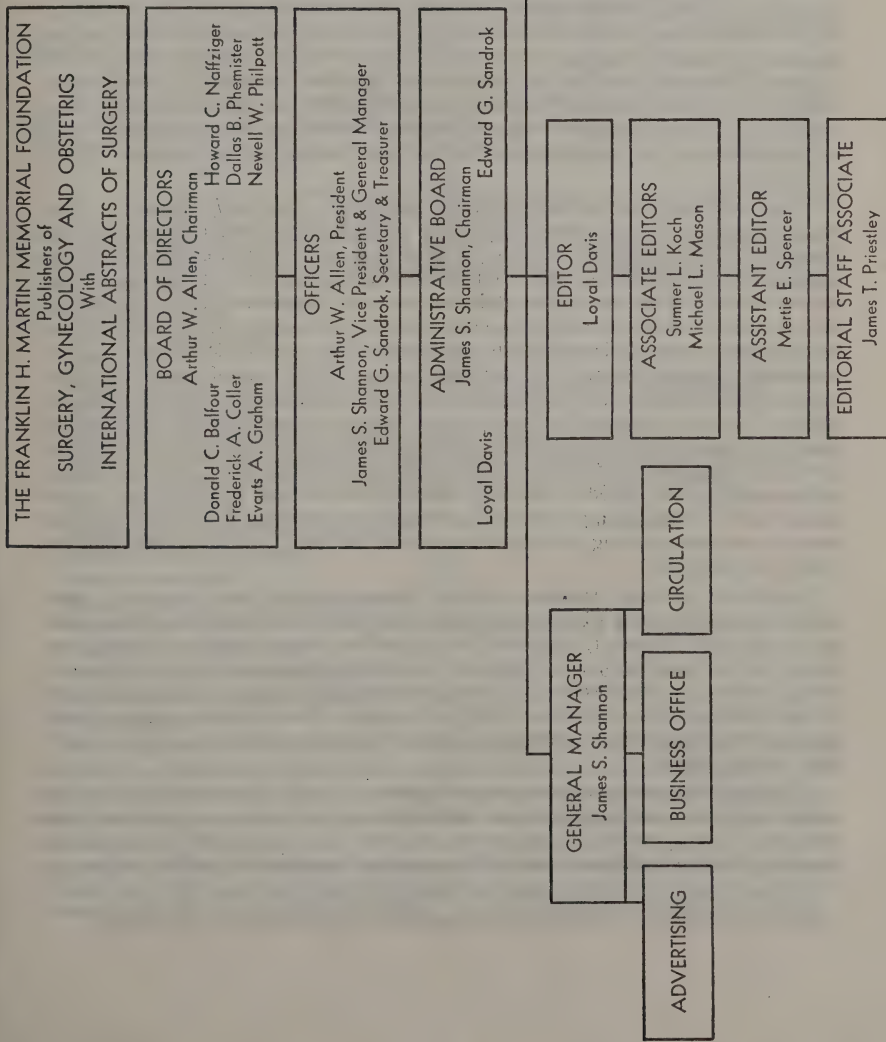

WHEREAS, The Regents of the College, in accordance with Section VI, Article 3, of the Bylaws of the College, constitute a governing board with power to act with regard to the proposed affiliation. Now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, That it is the unanimous decision of the Committee of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America, as above stated, and of the Regents of the American College of Surgeons in joint session, first, that for the welfare of the two organizations the management and the control of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons shall be vested hereafter in the American College of Surgeons; second, that hereafter the Clinical Congress of Surgeons shall be known as the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons with its invited guests.

The presidents of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons were Dr. Albert J. Ochsner of Chicago, Dr. Edward Martin of Philadelphia, Dr. George E. Brewer of New York, Dr. John B. Murphy of Chicago, Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Dr. Fred B. Lund of Boston, Dr. John G. Clark of Philadelphia, Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester.

REQUIREMENTS FOR FELLOWSHIP

1. The applicant to be eligible for fellowship shall be a graduate of a medical school acceptable to the American College of Surgeons, and licensed to practice in his respective state, province, or country. A period of seven years after graduation in medicine devoted to special training and practice is the time requirement for eligibility to fellowship.

2. Applicants graduating after January 1, 1949. Applicants for fellowship whose qualifying medical degree is obtained after January 1, 1949¹, shall be required to present evidence of having completed not less than one year of internship in a hospital approved for the training of interns and not less than four additional years in progressive surgical training in institutions approved for such training by the American College of Surgeons. In exceptional cases applicants may be considered if they have obtained other training considered to be equivalent to that outlined above. In the case of ophthalmology or otolaryngology, the period of training required shall be not less than one year of internship in a hospital approved for the training of interns and not less than three years of progressive graduate training in hospitals approved for such training by the American College of Surgeons; and in the case of the combined specialty, ophthalmology-otolaryngology, the period of training required shall be not less than one year of internship in a hospital approved for the training of interns and not less than four years of graduate training in hospitals approved for such training by the American College of Surgeons.

Applicants who were graduated between January 1, 1944, and January 1, 1949. Applicants for fellowship whose qualifying medical degree was obtained between January 1, 1944, and January 1, 1949¹, shall be required to present evidence of having completed not less than one year of internship in a hospital approved for the training of interns and not less than three additional years of progressive graduate training in surgery in institutions approved for such training by the American College of Surgeons. In exceptional cases applicants may be considered if they have obtained other training considered to be equivalent to that outlined above. In the case of ophthalmology or otolaryngology, the period of training required shall be not less than one year of internship in a hospital approved for the training of interns and not less than two years of progressive graduate training in hospitals approved for such training by the American College of Surgeons; and in the case of the combined specialty, ophthalmology-otolaryngology, the period of training required shall be not less than one year of internship in a hospital approved for the training of interns and not less than three years of graduate training in hospitals approved for such training by the American College of Surgeons.

Applicants who were graduated between January 1, 1938, and January 1, 1944. Applicants for fellowship whose qualifying medical degree was obtained between January 1, 1938, and January 1, 1944¹ shall be required to present evidence of having completed not less than one year of internship in a hospital approved for the training of interns and not less than two years of graduate training in surgery in hospitals approved for such training by the American College of Surgeons. In exceptional cases applicants may be considered if they have obtained other training considered to be equivalent to that outlined above.

Applicants who were graduated prior to January 1, 1938. Applicants for fellowship whose qualifying medical degree was obtained prior to January 1, 1938, shall give evidence of having served at least one year as intern in an acceptable hospital, and at least two years as a resident or as a full time surgical assistant to a qualified surgeon, or shall give evidence of apprenticeship of equivalent value. Due importance is attached to supplementary study and training in surgery.

3. The applicant's professional activity shall be restricted to study, diagnosis, and operative work in general surgery or the surgical specialties. Each case shall be judged on its individual merits as to professional ability, training, and experience in the particular field of surgery in which the applicant is engaged. The College desires to admit to its fellowship only those who are primarily specialists in surgery, and the minimum proportion of specialization in practice which is acceptable may vary according to the character and size of the community in which the applicant works.

4. The applicant's moral and ethical fitness shall be determined by reports of surgeons whose names are submitted by the applicant and by such other information as the Credentials Committees and the administrators of the College may obtain.

5. Surgeons widely recognized by the profession as progressive leaders and exponents of finished technique, and teachers with professorial status in the departments of surgery and its specialties in approved medical schools, may be admitted to fellowship without the submission of case records on unanimous recommendation of the Committees on Credentials and by a unanimous vote of the Board of Regents.

6. Candidates are elected to fellowship by the Board of Regents after investigation and report by the Committees on Credentials.

7. An application fee of $5 is required with each application for fellowship.

8. The fellowship fee is $100, payable upon notification of election to fellowship. The annual dues are $40, chargeable January 1. The total amount required of any Fellow in fellowship fee and annual dues shall not exceed $1,000, which amount shall represent a paid-up fellowship.

9. The Board of Regents reserves the right to alter as it may think proper the regulations concerning admission of Fellows to the College.

10. The applicant shall make formal application for fellowship, supplying the following information on forms for this purpose which may be obtained from the central office of the College:

Name and address

Date and place of birth

Citizenship

States, provinces, or countries in which the applicant is licensed to practice

Preliminary education

Medical schools attended as an undergraduate and as a graduate

Hospitals in which internship and residencies were served, and dates of service

Period of clinical or teaching assistantship, where served, and under whom

Postgraduate study

Past and present hospital connections

Medical teaching positions

Research conducted

Specialty and period of specialization

Percentage of professional activity devoted to surgery or a surgical specialty

Medical society affiliations

Certification by a specialty board

Personal contributions to medical literature

Five references

11. In making application for fellowship the applicant shall sign the fellowship pledge and a declaration that he will not practice the division of fees (see page 1). The applicant shall also subscribe to the resolutions adopted by the Board of Regents concerning rebates upon optical goods and other surgical apparatus and supplies (see page 30).

12. Only after notification of recommendation for fellowship by the Credentials Committees is the candidate required to submit 50 case records as evidence of qualification in the principles and technique of surgery (except where this requirement is waived as indicated below). These records shall include major surgical work for which the candidate was the responsible surgeon, and shall not date back more than three years from the time they are submitted. A variety of major procedures, rather than a number of cases of one type, must be included.

Candidates who have had graduate training in surgery through a residency or fellowship in an acceptable institution or institutions and who meet the requirements in all other respects may submit 25 of the required detailed records from work done during the period of residency if the residency was terminated within five years of submitting them, and the other 25 detailed records shall be of work done after establishment in practice.

Candidates who have spent at least four years in special training in surgery in an acceptable institution or institutions, who have not entered independent practice but have remained exclusively in educational institutional work, and who in all other respects meet the requirements for fellowship, may submit the required case records from institutional work.

Candidates who have been recommended for fellowship by the Committees on Credentials and who have been certified by one of the following Boards, may be exempted from the requirement of submitting case records, or may be required to submit one-half of the usual number of case records, that is, 25 records:

- American Board of Neurological Surgery
- American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology
- American Board of Ophthalmology
- American Board of Orthopedic Surgery
- American Board of Otolaryngology
- American Board of Plastic Surgery
- American Board of Surgery
- American Board of Surgery (Proctology)
- American Board of Urology
- Board of Thoracic Surgery

This does not imply that the College declines to admit to fellowship candidates practicing in these specialties who are not certified by one of the special Boards.

Candidates who have been recommended for fellowship by the Committees on Credentials and who hold fellowship in the Royal College of Surgeons of England, Edinburgh, Ireland, Australasia, or Canada will be required to submit only one-half of the usual number of case records, that is, 25 records.

PROCEDURE IN CONSIDERING APPLICANTS FOR FELLOWSHIP

1. Any legalized practitioner in medicine may apply for fellowship, or a request may be made by any Fellow of the College or other member of the medical profession that application forms be sent to a surgeon who, in his opinion, is qualified for fellowship.

2. A formal application for fellowship is required of every applicant, who shall also furnish five references, sign a pledge against the division of fees and acceptance of rebates, and pay an application fee of $5.

3. Each person given as a reference is asked by the College to furnish a statement regarding the applicant's professional qualifications as a surgeon and his moral and ethical standing. The College may also consult other Fellows in the city or vicinity in which the applicant is practicing.

4. The application receives the attention of:

The College administrative office

A local Committee on Applicants, which is fact-finding only and with which each applicant is accorded an opportunity for a personal interview

A local Credentials Committee, which meets once annually in executive session with a staff official of the College in attendance, and which makes recommendations

A Committee on History Reviews, which reviews the case records when they are required

The Central Credentials Committee, which appraises information and recommendations from all sources

The Board of Regents, which takes final action on all candidates elected to fellowship

5. Through these regularly appointed committees the College secures comprehensive information regarding the surgical qualifications of the applicant, his standing in the community, his moral conduct, his general reliability, his ethical standing, and his attitude toward the division of fees.

6. The case records submitted by those candidates for fellowship who are subject to this requirement are referred to the Committee on History Reviews, which is composed of about twenty teachers of surgery and the surgical specialties from approved medical schools in Chicago. A staff official of the College meets with the committee.

7. The College verifies each case record with the hospital in which the operation was performed.

8. After review of all information, one of three recommendations is made: acceptance, postponement, or nonacceptance. Action may be deferred to enable the administrative office to secure further evidence of the candidate's fitness for fellowship, to give him opportunity for further study, training, and experience to qualify for fellowship, to afford him an opportunity to submit further essential information in connection with his records, or to submit additional records. The central office endeavors to give every candidate for fellowship such information as will aid him in fulfilling the requirements for fellowship.

9. After the candidate has met all requirements, he is notified of his acceptance and sent instructions in regard to receiving his fellowship.

10. The uniform regulations for admission of applicants to fellowship have been formulated by the executive officers after years of experience, and it is essential that they should be impartially observed. Even though the applicant may appear most worthy, short-cut methods cannot be employed without subjecting the committees to severe criticism and lessening the judicial standing of the College.

11. An applicant upon whose application action has been deferred or who is not accepted may appeal to the Board of Regents.

12. The central office for obvious reasons must decline to furnish information concerning the status of an application for fellowship to other than the applicant himself.

THE JUNIOR CANDIDATE GROUP AND THE SENIOR CANDIDATE GROUP

The Junior and Senior Candidate Groups are composed of the younger medical graduates who have signified their intention of becoming surgeons or surgical specialists, and who aspire to fellowship in the American College of Surgeons. The Junior and Senior Candidates are afforded guidance in complying with the educational and ethical standards promulgated by the American College of Surgeons at a time when they are seeking advice on questions of education, training, affiliation, and other professional problems.

Membership in the Junior or Senior Candidate Groups does not give the applicant any prior claim toward fellowship in the College. Membership in either of these groups provides an opportunity for the members to avail themselves of the service which the College offers to recent graduates who wish to prepare themselves for careers in surgery. If a member of either of these groups wishes to become a Fellow of the College, he is required to file an application for fellowship which will be processed in the usual manner.

I. THE REQUIREMENTS

1. The applicant to be eligible for the Junior Candidate Group or the Senior Candidate Group shall be a graduate of a medical school acceptable to the American College of Surgeons.

2. The Junior Candidate Group is restricted to those who have graduated from medical school from one to seven years prior to admission.

3. The applicant shall give evidence of having served at least one year as intern in an acceptable hospital, and of his plan to pursue supplementary study and training in surgery or a surgical specialty which will later enable him to meet the requirements for fellowship.

4. Any endorsed member of the Junior Candidate Group who submits evidence that he has successfully completed the basic examination of one of the surgical Specialty Boards or of the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada may be transferred to the Senior Candidate Group.

5. Any individual who meets all of the requirements for the Junior Candidate Group, and in addition has successfully passed the basic examination of one of the surgical Specialty Boards or of the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada, may apply directly for the Senior Candidate Group.

6. Membership in the Senior Candidate Group terminates seven years after graduation from medical school.

7. At the expiration of seven years after graduation from medical school a Junior or a Senior Candidate may be given an opportunity to apply for fellowship. He shall then be required to meet all of the qualifications for such fellowship.

8. The applicant's moral and ethical fitness shall be determined by reports and other information that the Credentials Committees and the administrators of the College may obtain.

9. Members of the Junior and Senior Candidate Groups shall be exempt from fees and dues.

10. The Junior and Senior Candidates shall be privileged to attend the Annual and Sectional Meetings of the College and shall receive the Bulletins and other publications of the College which are deemed to be of interest and value to them.

11. The applicant shall make formal application for the Junior or Senior Candidate Group, supplying the following information on forms for this purpose which may be obtained from the central office of the College:

Name and address

Date and place of birth

Citizenship

States, provinces, or countries in which the applicant is licensed to practice

Preliminary education

Medical schools attended as an undergraduate and as a graduate

Hospitals in which internship and residencies were served, and dates of service

Period of clinical or teaching assistantship, where served and under whom

Postgraduate study

Past and present hospital connections

Medical teaching positions

Research conducted

Specialty and period of specialization

Percentage of professional activity devoted to surgery or a surgical specialty

Medical society affiliations

Certification by a specialty board

Personal contributions to medical literature

Five references

12. In making application for the Junior or Senior Candidate Group the applicant shall sign the fellowship pledge and a declaration that he will not practice the division of fees. The applicant shall also subscribe to the resolutions adopted by the Board of Regents concerning rebates upon optical goods and other surgical apparatus and supplies (see page 30).

II. PROCEDURE IN CONSIDERING APPLICANTS FOR THE JUNIOR CANDIDATE GROUP AND FOR THE SENIOR CANDIDATE GROUP

1. Anyone who has been a graduate of an acceptable medical school between one and seven years and can give evidence of having served at least one year as an intern in an acceptable hospital, and of his plan to pursue supplementary study and training in surgery or a surgical specialty which will later enable him to meet the requirements for fellowship, may apply for the Junior Candidate Group. A request may be made by any Fellow of the College or other member of the medical profession that application forms be sent to one who, in his opinion, is qualified for the Junior Candidate Group.

2. Anyone who fulfills the above requirements and has also successfully completed the basic examination of one of the surgical Specialty Boards or of the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada may apply for the Senior Candidate Group.

3. A formal application is required of each applicant. He shall also furnish five references, and sign a pledge to comply with the principles of financial relations in the professional care of the patient which have been adopted by the College.

4. The application receives the attention of:

The Credentials Department of the College

A local Committee on Applicants, which is fact-finding only and with which each applicant is accorded an opportunity for a personal interview

A State or Provincial Credentials Committee, which meets once annually in executive session with a staff official of the College in attendance, and which makes recommendations

The Central Credentials Committee, which appraises information and recommendations from all sources

The Board of Regents, which takes final action on all Candidates who are recommended for endorsement

5. Through these regularly appointed committees the College secures comprehensive information regarding the surgical qualifications of the applicant, his standing in the community, his moral conduct, his general reliability, and his ethical standing.

6. Through the interview with the Committee on Applicants the applicant is given an opportunity to present detailed information concerning his special training for surgery or plans for obtaining such training, clinical experience, present surgical activity, and any further facts which may have a bearing upon his eligibility to the Junior or Senior Candidate Group.

7. Each endorsed member of these groups shall submit a supplementary report by July 1 of each year, indicating his progress in graduate training for surgery or a surgical specialty acquired from residencies, postgraduate work, formal courses under the auspices of recognized medical schools and clinics, assistantships, observation at clinics, and research work.

8. After review of all information, the applicant for these groups may be endorsed or not endorsed. Endorsement of a Candidate is effective for one year only. Every application is reconsidered each year by the Credentials Committees during the period in which the applicant is eligible for these groups.

9. After the applicant has met all of the requirements, he is notified of his endorsement, and is sent instructions in regard to the Junior Candidate Group or the Senior Candidate Group and forms on which to file his next annual report of progress.

10. Members of these groups are not required to submit case records, but it is suggested that they keep a complete record of surgical work so that this information may be readily available when it is requested by the College.

11. If the candidate fails to live up to the established ideals and principles of the College, enters non-surgical practice, or for other sufficient reason is no longer eligible for membership in these groups, the local Credentials Committee may recommend that his name be dropped.

12. The central office for obvious reasons must decline to furnish information concerning the status of an application for either of these groups to other than the applicant himself.

The applicant shall also subscribe to the resolutions adopted by the Board of Regents concerning rebates upon optical goods and other surgical apparatus and supplies (see page 30).

REBATES ON SURGICAL APPARATUS AND OPTICAL SUPPLIES

The applicant shall subscribe to the following resolutions which have been adopted by the Board of Regents:

BE IT RESOLVED that to accept rebates on glasses and other surgical apparatus and supplies is considered unethical and not consistent with fellowship in the College. (June 7, 1921)

BE IT RESOLVED that the American College of Surgeons reiterates its stand that the acceptance of rebates upon optical goods and other surgical apparatus and supplies is a reprehensible and pernicious practice. The American College of Surgeons will continue to co-operate with national societies in an endeavor to eliminate the practice from American medicine. (October 22, 1940)

COMMITTEE ON HISTORY REVIEWS

William E. Adams	Hilger P. Jenkins	John H. Olwin
Harvey S. Allen	Ormand C. Julian	John R. Orndorff
Dwight F. Clark	Stanley E. Lawton	Charles E. Pope
Carl Davis, Jr.	Walter G. Maddock	John Van Prohaska
Willis Dittenbaugh	Clement L. Martin	Samuel Salinger
Chester C. Guy	Michael L. Mason	James K. Stack
Norris J. Heckel	Frederick W. Merrifield	Adrien Verbrugghen
Byford F. Heskett	Samuel J. Meyer	Augusta Webster

Following is an analysis of the work of the Committee during the year 1949:

Histories filed.....	515
Histories reviewed.....	508
Histories accepted.....	456
Histories not accepted.....	52
Histories not reviewed.....	7

The value of the work of the credentializing committees cannot be overestimated. It is through their untiring work, the judicious manner in which all applications for fellowship are considered, and the painstaking study of the histories submitted that the College is able to fulfill one of its prime functions, namely, the elevation of the standard of the practice of surgery.

CREDENTIALS COMMITTEES

Following is an analysis of the work of the Credentials Committees during the year 1949:

Admitted to fellowship October 21, 1949.....	921
United States and Possessions.....	881
Canada.....	29
Other Units.....	11
Applications for fellowship presented to the Credentials Committees...	1,491
Recommended for fellowship (61.17%).....	912
Postponed (27.23%).....	406
Not recommended (9.72%).....	145
Action not completed (1.88%).....	28
Applications for the Junior and Senior Candidate Groups considered by the Credentials Committee.....	1,147

The above figure includes all applications for the Junior and Senior Candidate Groups. The applications for the Junior and Senior Candidate Groups are submitted annually to the respective state and provincial Credentials Committees. Applications for the Senior Candidate Group are processed in the same manner as those for the Junior Candidate Group. Endorsement for the Senior Candidate Group indicates that the Candidate has also successfully completed the basic examination of one of the surgical Specialty Boards or of the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada.

JUDICIARY COMMITTEES

A duty which confronts the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons is the consideration of complaints which are filed against Fellows of the organization. In order to obviate any injustice, either to a Fellow of the College or to the organization itself, and as a means of securing reliable information, a plan was adopted by the Board of Regents which provides for the appointment in each state and province of a Judiciary Committee to aid the headquarters officials to obtain facts regarding complaints which are registered, or derogatory information regarding Fellows of the organization, and the surrounding circumstances.

Judiciary Committees are expected, upon request, to ascertain the facts in any given case, and to report their findings and suggestions to the College headquarters in Chicago. Committeemen are cautioned not to take any action which would involve the College, the committees themselves, or individuals, in legal difficulties.

Consideration is given to each complaint which is filed in the central office, and to information derogatory to a Fellow which may reach an official of the College. The Fellow against whom the complaint is made is notified, and given an opportunity to submit his explanation. If after investigation further action is warranted, the case is referred to the Judiciary Committee of the state or province for investigation and recommendation. Should there be sufficient derogatory evidence, the Fellow in question is notified that all of the data will be placed before the Board of Regents for consideration and action.

The bylaws of the College (Article III, Section 7) provide that any Fellow may be expelled for conduct which in the opinion of the Board of Regents is derogatory to the dignity of the College or inconsistent with its purposes. Each year judiciary cases are considered and acted upon by the Board of Regents, and the Judiciary Committees have aided materially in supplying the data upon which the rulings have been made.

FEES AND DUES

The following resolution was adopted by the Board of Regents at a special meeting held on December 15, 1947:

"BE IT RESOLVED that effective January 1, 1948, the fellowship fee and the annual dues of the American College of Surgeons shall be as follows:

1. That the fellowship fee shall be $100, payable upon notification of election to fellowship.
2. That the annual dues of Fellows of the College shall be $40, chargeable as of January 1.
3. That the total amount required of any Fellow in fellowship fee and annual dues shall not exceed $1,000, which amount shall represent a paid up fellowship.
4. That on and after January 1, 1953, Fellows of the College shall be exempted from annual dues which accrue after they have reached the age of 60 years.
5. That all Fellows who have subscribed $1,500 to the endowment fund of the College shall be exempted from annual dues.
6. That the Board of Regents shall cancel the indebtedness of any Fellow of the College, without publicity, to whom in its judgment such dues are a hardship.
7. That a Fellow of the College may, upon request, be exempted from payment of annual dues after he has retired from active practice."

DELINQUENT DUES

The following resolution pertaining to Fellows who become delinquent in their fellowship dues was adopted by the Board of Regents at a special meeting held on February 22, 1948:

BE IT RESOLVED that any Fellow who is delinquent in dues three years or more shall cease to be a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and his name shall be removed from the roll of Fellows unless he presents an explanation that is acceptable to the Finance Committee; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that any person whose fellowship is so terminated for nonpayment of dues may, upon offering to pay all dues in arrears at the time he ceased to be a Fellow, apply to the Board of Regents to be reinstated as a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

THE ENDOWMENT FUND

In order to provide funds for the organization of the College, an initial fee of fifty dollars from each Fellow was voted at the first meeting. Realizing that the income to be derived in this manner was temporary and inadequate, and desiring to place the College on a sound financial basis, the Fellows voted in June, 1914, to raise an endowment fund of one million dollars. This plan provided that the endowment should be invested in perpetuity and only the income used for the budget of the College.

It developed later that the activities of the College called for expenditures beyond the income provided by the interest of the endowment, and the Fellows of the College, at the annual meeting in 1916, adopted a resolution which read in part as follows: "That the annual dues of the Fellows of the College be $25, payable January 1; that all Fellows who have subscribed $500 to the endowment fund of the College be exempt from annual dues; that the total amount required of any Fellow in annual dues or other fees not exceed $500."

On account of economic conditions existing in 1947, the Regents, on December 15, 1947, adopted the resolution which is published above under the heading "Fees and Dues."

In the latter 1920's, a letter was sent to each Fellow over the signature of Dr. W. J. Mayo referring to the activities of the organization and calling attention to a suggestion made by the Board of Regents regarding individual action by the Fellows in support of the endowment fund of the organization. More specifically, the thought was that if those who desire to co-operate in the fulfillment of the aims of the College would each make a codicil to his will or take out a life insurance policy in favor of the American College of Surgeons, the aggregate would, in the course of years, prove of most valuable assistance in making the endowment fund adequate without being at all burdensome to the donors. The minimum amount of $1,000 was suggested, with a statement that contemplated gifts in excess of the minimum would be very welcome.

A number of the Fellows have advised the College that they have taken out a policy or made a codicil in favor of the organization. It is anticipated that additional financing will be contributed by the public, through its knowledge of what is being accomplished by the work and financial co-operation of the Fellows. Fellows will greatly aid the College financial program by disseminating this information through proper channels.

The activities of the American College of Surgeons are entirely of an educational and scientific nature directed toward the benefit of the patient through the elevation of ethical, professional, and scientific standards of surgery as well as the improvement of surroundings and appurtenances incident to its performances.

In accordance with the keynote struck at the time of organization, the College has already demonstrated the practical value of the results of its work through its program of hospital standardization, promotion and establishment of organized cancer clinics in general hospitals of 100 beds and over, registry of bone sarcoma, development of standards for treatment of fractures and other traumas, development of fundamental principles and criteria for graduate training in surgery, services extended to the medical departments of industries for the benefit of the ill and injured person, and production and evaluation of medical motion pictures from the standpoint of teaching value.

The patient has received great benefit through the general education of the surgeon, which has been a field of great activity on the part of the College, accomplished by means of the Clinical Congresses, sectional meetings, publications, exhibits, scientific studies, and medical motion pictures.

APPLICATION FOR LIFE MEMBERSHIP

I hereby subscribe ONETHOUSANDFOUR HUNDRED DOLLARS ($1400) to the Endowment Fund of the American College of Surgeons. To this amount will be added the $100 Fellowship Fee, my total contribution being $1500. The balance of $1400 shall be payable during the calendar year 1950, or, at my option in three annual installments with interest on the unpaid balance at the rate of 3% per annum, payable as indicated below:

1. January 1st, 1951—$500 principal plus interest of $42
 2. January 1st, 1952—$500 principal plus interest of $27
 3. January 1st, 1953—$400 principal plus interest of $12

It is further understood that I shall be exempt from the annual Fellowship Dues beginning January 1, 1950, and that upon payment in full of this subscription the sum of $1500 will be credited to the permanent Endowment Fund of the College and my name listed in future issues of the College Year Book as a LIFE MEMBER—ENDOWMENT FUND CONTRIBUTOR.

To meet the need of co-ordinating literature and making it available quickly and easily to the busy practicing surgeon, the College maintains a library and Department of Literary Research.

The endowment fund on December 31, 1949, amounted to a little over $1,000,000. A life membership may be obtained by any Fellow upon payment of $1,500 to the endowment fund as provided for on the subscription card printed below.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE ENDOWMENT FUND

Contributions to the endowment fund from others than Fellows of the College will be gratefully accepted in the form of subscriptions, donations, or bequests.

BEQUESTS

The College loses by death each year an average of two hundred of its members. If each Fellow would add to his will a codicil reading "$1,000 to the American College of Surgeons at my death," or would leave that amount to the College through insurance, it would add approximately $200,000 each year to the endowment fund.

LOCAL CHAPTERS

Local Chapters of the American College of Surgeons are active in several states and in major cities. These Chapters are instrumental in furthering closer acquaintanceship and better relations between the surgeons of the community, in stimulating interest in the College, and in realizing the objectives for which the College was organized.

Most of the Chapters hold annual or semi-annual meetings, at which both scientific subjects and problems concerning surgical practice in the area concerned are discussed. Some chapters have arranged honorary lectureships and scholarships for deserving students. They stimulate the interest of surgeons in their community in College activities and make a special effort to see that surgical residents in the hospitals in the given area become acquainted with the advisory services of the Junior and Senior Candidate Groups.

The Board of Regents is cognizant of the accomplishments and advantages of local Chapters and encourages the Governors of the College to aid in the formation of Chapters where they do not now exist. Detailed suggestions and literature concerning organization of local Chapters are available on request at College headquarters.

INTER-AMERICAN PROGRESS

In 1915, at the Scientific Congress held in San Francisco during the Panama-Pacific Exposition, a number of Latin-American surgeons petitioned the American College of Surgeons to admit the surgeons of Latin America to the fellowship of the College. This affiliation, after some preliminary correspondence, was postponed until after the war and definite work was begun in 1920.

In that year Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Director General, and Dr. William J. Mayo, then President, made a trip to Latin-American countries to meet on their own ground the southern neighbors. At this time visits were made to the surgeons of Panama, Peru, Chile, Argentina, and Uruguay.

In February, 1921, Dr. Thomas J. Watkins and the Director General revisited these countries and added to the itinerary Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo in Brazil. Also, early in 1921, Dr. Francis P. Corrigan visited Ecuador and Bolivia as an official representative of the College.

In the winter of 1922, official visits were made by Dr. Edward I. Salisbury to Colombia, Venezuela, and Cuba; and by Dr. Corrigan, to Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, Peru, and Panama.

Early in 1923, representatives of the College from thirty-five states of the United States and five provinces of Canada visited Cuba, Panama, Colombia, Venezuela, Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, and Peru. Of these Fellows, eleven were Founders, nine Governors, one Regent, a Vice President, and the Director General.

Official receptions were tendered to the members of the cruise party by the Presidents of all countries whose capitals were visited, and formal meetings of the College were held in Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, and Montevideo. Meetings were held in each country of the respective Committees on Credentials.

During 1924, official visits were made to Cuba, Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Bolivia, Peru, Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico, and Venezuela. Committees on Credentials were formed in the places newly visited and meetings held of committees previously created.

In December, 1924, Dr. James T. Case represented the College at the Third Pan-American Scientific Congress held in Lima, Peru. He presented the Hospital Standardization program of the College and its Minimum Standard as the basis of that program. The Congress passed a motion that the program of the College have the full approval of the section on medicine and sanitation, and that the Congress as a whole give a vote of approval and request that all governments represented adopt steps toward the accomplishment of similar work in their respective countries. The motion was passed unanimously by this section and also by the Scientific Congress at its closing session.

Official visits were again made to Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, Peru, and Panama. Credentials Committee meetings were held in various cities, and talks in Spanish were given before the Fellows of the College, various medical and surgical societies, and faculties of medicine in these countries. About forty hospitals were surveyed and several placed upon the Approved List of the College.

On October 26, 1926, the Board of Regents constituted the Fellows of the College who are resident in Mexico a Committee on Credentials for that Republic.

To date nineteen Latin-American countries are represented, each having its Committee on Credentials, and fellowships in the College have been conferred upon 408 surgeons from Latin America, as follows: Prior to 1920, seven; Convocation in Montreal, 1920, thirty-five; Philadelphia, 1921, fifty-five; Boston, 1922, thirty-three; Chicago, 1923, forty-three; New York, 1924, thirty; Philadelphia, 1925, sixty-two; Montreal, 1926, five; Detroit, 1927, four; Boston, 1928, eleven; Chicago, 1929, two; Philadelphia, 1930, two; New York, 1931, four; St. Louis, 1932, three; Chicago, 1933, one; Boston, 1934, one; San Francisco, 1935, one; Philadelphia, 1936, nine; Chicago, 1937, three; New York, 1938, seven; Philadelphia, 1939, three; Chicago, 1940, seven; Boston, 1941, six; 1942, fourteen; 1943, fourteen; 1944, eleven; 1945, six; Cleveland, 1946, fifteen; New York, 1947, two; Los Angeles, ten; Chicago, two.

Honorary Fellowship in the College has been conferred upon some of the leading Latin-American surgeons. A number of applications for fellowship from surgeons in these countries are under consideration for future membership.

CLINICAL RESEARCH

REPORT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF CLINICAL RESEARCH

CHARLES F. BRANCH, M.D., Assistant Director

IT IS with deep regret that we report that Dr. Rowman Corning Crowell, Associate Director and Director of Clinical Research since 1926, retired on November 15, 1949. He now has the title of Associate Director Emeritus of the American College of Surgeons. Dr. Crowell's fetish for scientific honesty, his forthright pursuance of duty, and his strict adherence to the highest ideals were uncompromising. His ready humor, understanding, kindly sympathy, and warm friendship were unfailing. His broad grasp of the objectives and principles of the College and their development in relation to the humanitarian and sociological problems of the day was unequaled.

Since the last report, the personnel of the department has been augmented by the appointment of Dr. Harold R. Hennessy in January, 1949, and Dr. Walter E. Batchelder in September, 1949. Under the energetic program of field work conducted by these two individuals, we are able to report that over 400 cancer facilities have been personally surveyed since January, 1949. We are pleased to report that the December, 1949, BULLETIN lists more than 700 such facilities approved by the Regents.

This comprehensive work has been made possible through grants-in-aid to the College, authorized by the U.S. Public Health Service and the American Cancer Society. In its endeavor to investigate, consolidate, and strengthen certain aspects of cancer control, the College has enjoyed a unique position of productive co-operation and close liaison with these two organizations, both of which look to the College for the promotion and further development of greater clinical facilities in this field.

The Cancer Archives were brought up to date in a "Cancer Is Curable" Symposium at the Los Angeles Clinical Congress. The papers of this Symposium are being published in monograph form. Because this facility seems to have served its purpose and because of changing modalities of statistical treatment, the Regents at that time voted to discontinue the Archives.

The Registry of Bone Sarcoma, which was officially inactivated in 1939, by its sheer momentum, accumulated several hundred cases during the war years. Through a grant-in-aid from the U.S. Public Health Service, we have been able to proceed with the cataloging of this material, and the services of Dr. Lewis J. Rossiter have been invaluable in conducting the essential processing of these cases.

The activities of the Cancer Committee will be reported by its Chairman, Dr. Grantley W. Taylor, whose boundless energy and broad experience have made him a most effective spokesman for this group.

In keeping with present-day trends and the extension of its normal field of activity, the former Committee on Fractures and Other Traumas in February, 1949, officially changed its name to the Committee on Trauma. During the past two years the work and activities of the Committee have increased tremendously. Among other things a revised fourth edition of "An Outline of the Treatment of Fractures" was produced by a subcommittee of which Dr. Henry C. Marble, of Boston, was Chairman. Another major endeavor has been the reproduction and dissemination of six bulletins on the care of hand injuries, compiled through the courtesy of the American Society for Surgery of the Hand, as well as a similar bulletin on head injuries produced under the chairmanship of Dr. Frank H. Mayfield, by the Harvey Cushing Society. Dr. Robert H. Kennedy will report further for the Committee on Trauma.

Dr. Gaylord R. Hess continues to carry on ably as our sole representative in the Division of Medical Services in Industry. At present, 2,215 different industrial establishments, representing over 5,974,000 employees, have been surveyed by the College. Out of this number, approval has been granted to 1,393, which represents full or provisional approval of 62 per cent of all surveys.

I have the honor of submitting the report of the Cancer Committee.

Dr. Branch in his formal report will give you statistical data in regard to cancer clinics, cancer diagnostic clinics, and cancer detection centers. The formal list will be ready for presentation in the December, 1949, Approval Number of the College BULLETIN. Dr. Harold R. Hennessy, who has been doing some of the field work, came through New England and we were able to be of some help to him. One of the chief accomplishments is the correlation of the College's activities with those of the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society.

For some years a subcommittee has been trying to establish a classification of breast tumors. That task has now been undertaken by the National Research Council and Dr. Branch has reported that they are establishing terminology and classifications for various types of malignant disease. Since this information will be available to us, our subcommittee has been discontinued.

The cancer record forms have undergone revision so far as the mode of recording radiation therapy is concerned, and are now available in their revised state.

Dr. Branch represented the Committee at the American Cancer Society's Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Conference on Cancer Detection. The conclusions arrived at will undoubtedly have a bearing on the College's attitude toward cancer detection centers. The Registry of Bone Sarcoma has never been a function of this Committee, although it seems to the chairman that, if the Registry is to be continued, it might well be made an integral part of the Committee's program. Since the dissolution of the Committee on Bone Sarcoma in 1941, the Registry has been relatively inactive but Dr. Branch has recently secured funds with which to bring it up to date so that the material, which is now very worn, will again be available for teaching and research work on bone tumors. For the time being, the Registry has been closed. Nothing further has been done in regard to the cured cancer cases assembled in the Archives.

A year ago the Cancer Committee appointed a subcommittee to establish uniform methods of reporting end results and Dr. Daland is chairman of this group. Our activities in the study of this problem are integrated with those of the Public Health Service and the American Cancer Society. Very happily we have interlocking boards of directors for Dr. Ochsner is chairman of one, Dr. Daland chairman of the other, Dr. Harold F. Dorn represents the Public Health Service, and all three serve on our subcommittee.

The subcommittee will report later in the week to the Cancer Committee and, when this report is completed, it will be submitted to you for approval. The chairman feels that the conclusions set forth in this report, backed by the prestige of the College, will improve methods of reporting end results; and that this will also modify cancer forms and methods of recording cures. They will also facilitate correlation of statistical material.

Individual members of this Committee have participated extensively in cancer activities in various communities and in Symposia on Cancer at the Sectional Meetings. Response has been excellent. At these Sectional Meetings cancer has played a prominent part in the program. All of these meetings have been very well attended. There were also sessions on cancer clinics and detection centers in which Dr. Branch and your chairman participated.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Branch's time at the Sectional Meetings and elsewhere is largely taken up by men who wish to thresh out problems related to their respective clinics. It is obvious that the College exercises great care in approving cancer facilities and in keeping them in line with the requirements it has established.

Last year the possibility of organizing regional cancer foci similar to the Regional Committees on Trauma was submitted to you, but Dr. Crowell drew attention gently to the fact that such a program had been approved by the Regents in 1940 but was

MINIMUM STANDARD FOR CANCER CLINICS

1. ORGANIZATION. There shall be a definite organization of the service, and it shall include an executive officer and representatives of all the departments of the hospital concerned in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer. The services of a secretary and of a social service worker shall be available for the purposes of the clinic.

2. CONFERENCES. As an essential feature of the service there shall be regular conferences or consultations at which the diagnosis and treatment of the individual cases are discussed by all members of the clinic who are concerned with the case.

3. PATIENTS. Reference to the cancer clinic of all patients in whom the diagnosis or treatment of cancer is to be considered shall be either voluntary or obligatory in accordance with the vote of the medical staff or of the governing board of the hospital.

4. EQUIPMENT. In addition to the diagnostic and therapeutic surgical equipment which is required in every approved general hospital there shall be available an apparatus for x-ray therapy of an effectiveness which is generally agreed upon as adequate, and an amount of radium sufficient to insure effective treatment.

5. RECORDS. In addition to the records which are required in every approved general hospital, there shall be additional records of: (a) Details of the history and of the examination for cancer in different regions of the body, such as are indicated on the form records which are recommended by the Cancer Committee, American College of Surgeons; (b) Details of the treatment by radium or x-ray as indicated on the form records which are recommended by the Cancer Committee, American College of Surgeons; (c) Periodic examinations at intervals for a period of at least five years following treatment.

6. TREATMENT. The treatment of cancer patients shall be entrusted to the members of the staff of the cancer clinic except in cases in which adequate treatment in accordance with the collective recommendation of the staff of the cancer clinic can be procured otherwise.

held in abeyance during the war. Dr. Branch has lately, however, gone ahead with plans for establishing such regional subcommittees. There has been assembled a list of executive officers of approved cancer clinics, chairmen of Cancer Committees of all the state medical societies, chiefs of Cancer Sections in state Public Health Services, and American Cancer Society state chairmen. If regional or state groups are organized to increase and promulgate the activities of the Cancer Committee, these data will be of great value. However, earlier this week at the Governors' meeting there was some discussion of establishing regional Chapters of Fellows in order to further the work of the College. In such an event, it would probably be wise to hold up the organization of Cancer Committee subgroups until such Chapters could lend them their support.

Respectfully submitted,

GRANTLEY W. TAYLOR, Chairman

MINIMUM STANDARD FOR CANCER DETECTION CENTERS

1. ORGANIZATION. A specific plan for the organization and conduct of the center shall be approved by the County Medical Society before the project is made effective and the Society shall appoint a medical advisory committee for guidance of the staff. The detection center shall be conducted in a hospital approved by the American College of Surgeons or in the outpatient department of an approved medical school or under conditions permitting compliance with the other features of this standard. The medical staff shall adopt rules, regulations and policies governing the professional work of the center and shall review and analyze their clinical experience at regular intervals. In addition to the medical staff, which shall include representatives of the various branches of the medical profession, a secretary, nurse and medical social worker shall be available for the purposes of the center.

2. EQUIPMENT. The equipment shall be adequate for a complete physical examination.

3. PATIENTS. All applicants within specified geographic limits shall be admitted except those who are already under treatment. Some detection centers may be restricted to males and others to females.

4. RECORDS. There shall be maintained adequate, complete records of examinees which shall include identification data, occupation, history, physical examinations with indicated laboratory examinations, summary, and disposition of such persons.

5. DISPOSITION OF EXAMINEES. Persons who require further diagnostic procedures than are furnished by the center, or for whom treatment is indicated, shall be referred back to their physicians. If they have no physician, they shall be given a list of physicians, clinics, or hospitals from which choice may be made and to which the findings of the center shall be furnished. The detection center shall seek from the physician, clinic, or hospital a record of final diagnosis, treatment and follow-up. Examinees shall be encouraged to have periodic physical examinations as indicated.

6. FEES. A contribution of a specified sum of money toward expenses of the center shall be required of examinees who are able to pay.

Progress has been made by this Committee in many lines of endeavor during the past year. The 28th annual meeting was held in Boston, January 28-29, 1949, with twenty-eight members and sixteen invited guests present. The high point was the address of Dr. W. Edward Gallie on "Undergraduate Teaching of Fractures." This is well worth reading in the Proceedings of the meeting, as is also the prolonged discussion of the principles he expressed. Six men were added to the Committee. In our effort to widen interest in the field of trauma beyond fractures, these included a hand surgeon, a neurosurgeon, a vascular surgeon and a plastic surgeon. We now have 43 active members.

On August 19, 1949, the Committee lost its first chairman and best friend in the death of Dr. Charles L. Scudder in his 90th year. As chairman for the first eleven years he was the spark plug of all our efforts. His interest was maintained in spite of advancing age and for many years he had been Honorary Chairman. The Regional Committees represent one fitting memorial to his unflagging zeal for widespread education in fracture problems.

The Subcommittee on Regional Committees, under the chairmanship of Dr. Frederic W. Bancroft, has continued its intensive effort to have all parts of this country and Canada organized for increased interest in the field of trauma. New chiefs have been appointed in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Northwest Sections. We suffered a great loss last spring in the death of Dr. Robert M. Yergason, chairman of the Connecticut Regional Committee. Under his leadership for many years this committee has done outstanding work and taught us all new organizational methods of helping the injured person. Massachusetts is trying to have a state rehabilitation center started. The new committee in the Maritime Provinces has already interested itself in clinical meetings, ambulance equipment, medical school instruction, hospital care and equipment, and rehabilitation. The New York and Brooklyn Committee had its usual monthly clinical or executive meetings, its annual Fracture Day with 300 in attendance, and also entertained the New England and Philadelphia Committees at an all day meeting. Philadelphia seems again to have a large group of interested men. Washington, D. C., started an ambitious program of Sunday morning clinics rotating through all the hospitals. In Georgia each district medical society has named a man to serve on the committee. A number of clinical meetings have been held in various parts of the state. Tennessee has been working particularly with lay organizations in promoting proper early care of injuries. Ohio is concentrating its efforts on conducting meetings on trauma in the smaller communities. Michigan is doing an outstanding job in organization and accomplishment. Their 13-point program is ambitious. The results already are enviable. Chicago is continuing its excellent clinical meetings. In the New Orleans area arrangements have been made for the residents and interns to receive instruction in the transportation of the injured. The ambulance companies have been provided with traction splints personally by the section chief. In many states the results are limited to one or more clinical meetings a year. Much more can be accomplished by organization according to the plan we have repeatedly outlined. We are proud of the reorganization which has been accomplished since the war and are looking forward to more intensive results in the immediate future.

At the Los Angeles Clinical Congress the meeting of regional committeemen was well attended and elicited interesting discussion. The Regional Committees also met at each of the 1949 Sectional Meetings. A part of the time was devoted to demonstration of the rehabilitation of the amputee, which evoked much favorable comment.

Under Dr. Harrison L. McLaughlin, chairman of the Subcommittee on Education, the liaison between this Committee and the educational committees of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons and the American Association for the Surgery of Trauma is making progress. Recommendations for minimal standards for undergraduate education in the field of trauma have been prepared. The director of the current American Medical Association survey of medical education has expressed a desire to co-operate with this group. It is recommended that a minimum standard be prepared for the organized instruction of interns and residents in the treatment of trauma. After approval, it is recommended that the American College of Surgeons incorporate this standard into the graduate training program required of certified hospitals. It was also agreed that an attempt should be made to formulate the minimum adequate training necessary for qualification as an expert in motor-skeletal trauma. To further this a Subcommittee on American College of Surgeons Approval of Trauma Surgeons was appointed and we hope that they may present some concrete practical way of approaching this difficult, frequently recurring problem.

The Subcommittee on Transportation, under the chairmanship of Dr. Roscoe C. Webb, has been conducting an investigation of emergency care in five cities. It is planned to continue this in five different cities each year for five years. The 1949 cities were Los Angeles; Flint, Michigan; Birmingham, Alabama; St. Louis; and New York. This includes cities widely separated geographically and with a population of from 150,000 to 7,500,000. Much interesting data have been obtained regarding the equipment and training of personnel of ambulances, how the work is being done, how far hospitals are co-operating in their emergency rooms, and what is being accomplished in lay teaching and propaganda. We hope to get a base line by which we can rate cities of various sizes as to how fair a chance they give the injured person. It is a time-consuming but worthwhile project.

In March, 1949, Collier's published a striking two-part article entitled "Our Shocking Accident Wards." It was harsh, but had such a ring of truth in it that we requested a hundred reprints from them. These were contributed by Collier's and sent to each of the Regional Committee chairmen. In an accompanying letter we requested them to consider what they were doing in their communities to prevent and remedy these conditions. We hope this had some salutary effect.

The Subcommittee on Rehabilitation, of which Dr. A. William Reggio is chairman, is preparing a series of bulletins on this subject in an attempt "to make the doctors handling fractures and trauma deconditioning-conscious." The first of these has already been distributed to members of the Regional Committees. We will not progress far in much needed rehabilitation until we make the doctors enthusiastic for it by knowing what we are talking about.

Dr. Kellogg Speed, chairman of the Subcommittee on Nomenclature, proposed the terms "closed" and "open" fracture instead of "simple" and "compound" fracture. This was adopted. We learned at that time that the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons had recommended the same change the week before. It will take time to get these terms adopted in teaching and textbooks, but they are much more easily understood. Our Fracture Outline and the latest edition of Christopher's Textbook of Surgery have already appeared with the new terms.

The fourth edition of "An Outline of the Treatment of Fractures" appeared early in July, 1949. We are justly proud of the work done by the subcommittee in charge of this revision, of which Dr. Henry C. Marble is chairman. Much new material is included and a new format used. We expect that it will prove as popular as have the previous editions.

From all sides we have heard favorable comment on the motion picture "Fractures—An Introduction." Two others are in the formative stages, one on the early care of hand injuries and the other on injuries to the soft parts about the knee joint.

Two more sections of the bulletins on the "Early Care of Hand Injuries" have been distributed, making a total of four thus far. We have been thrilled by their enthusiastic reception and the number of medical journals which have reprinted them. Not only have they been sent to all members of our Regional Committees, but also to the directors of the more than 2000 industrial medical services which are approved by the College. The number and tenor of the replies received from the latter have been particularly gratifying. At our request the Harvey Cushing Society is preparing a bulletin on the "Management of Acute Head Injuries." We believe it is important with such wide distribution that these bulletins be agreed on by a national society in the special field and not be the work of one individual.

On our recommendation, the Board of Regents has changed the name of our group from Committee on Fractures and Other Traumas to Committee on Trauma. The former was an unwieldy term, particularly if applied to the Regional Committees. Most of these had kept the name "Regional Fracture Committee" and many men hesitated to join because they were not handling fractures, although they were interested in other forms of trauma. We expect our Regional Committees to change their names to "Regional Committee on Trauma." We hope through this change to approach more nearly the scope of the work which the Board of Regents asked us to cover.

We request the co-operation of every Fellow of the College in our efforts to improve education in trauma. You can scatter the seed of better care for the injured person in each of your communities. We can only suggest the kind of seed we think is worth scattering.

Respectfully submitted,

ROBERT H. KENNEDY, Chairman

MINIMUM STANDARD FOR TREATMENT OF FRACTURES AND OTHER TRAUMA IN HOSPITALS

1. HOSPITALS. Hospitals admitting cases of injury for treatment shall be required to meet the Standard for Hospitals of the American College of Surgeons and to have complied with the essential requirements for approval, which implies that they shall have available adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities.

2. EQUIPMENT. All general hospitals shall be equipped for care of fractures and other injuries, the minimum equipment for transportation, emergency treatment, and aftercare being the following or its equivalent: Murray-Jones arm splint; Keller-Blake hinged half-ring splint, with traction strap, slings, and buckle straps; Hodgen splints; coaptation splints, assorted sizes; Cabot wire splints; wooden splints, assorted sizes; plaster of Paris bandages; Bradford frame; overhead frame for suspension; fracture table; fracture bed; and portable x-ray.

In addition, the hospital shall provide an accident department with supplies available at all times for emergency use.

3. SUPERVISION. It is highly desirable that one individual surgeon competent in the field of fractures shall be responsible for supervising the care of fracture cases. Organization of the services for the care of all injuries shall include specialists competent to treat other specific injuries. A committee may be appointed for that purpose.

4. RECORDS. Adequate medical records shall be maintained for all cases of fractures and other injuries.

5. FOLLOW-UP. A close follow-up shall be maintained on all cases of injury for such time as is necessary to establish an accurate knowledge of end results, and this information shall appear in the patient's record.

MINIMUM STANDARD FOR MEDICAL SERVICE IN INDUSTRY

1. The industrial establishment shall have an organized medical department or service with competent medical staff including consultants and also shall have adequate emergency, dispensary and hospital facilities and personnel to assure efficient care of the ill and injured.

2. Membership on the medical staff shall be restricted to physicians and surgeons who are (a) graduates from an acceptable medical school, with the degree of Doctor of Medicine, in good standing and licensed to practice in their respective states or provinces, (b) competent in the field of industrial medicine and traumatic surgery, (c) worthy in character and in matters of professional ethics; in the latter connection the practice of the division of fees, under any guise whatsoever, shall be prohibited.

3. There shall be a system of accurate and complete records filed in an accessible manner, such records to include particularly a report of injury or illness, description of physical findings, treatment, estimated period of disability, end results, as well as other information pertinent to the case or required by statute for workmen's compensation claims or other purposes. All medical records shall be regarded as confidential material, filed under medical supervision, and kept in the medical department.

4. Patients requiring hospitalization shall be sent to institutions approved by the American College of Surgeons.

5. The medical department or service shall have general supervision over the sanitation of the plant and the health of all employees.

HOSPITAL STANDARDIZATION

REPORT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HOSPITAL STANDARDIZATION

MALCOLM T. MACEachern, M.D., Director Emeritus

THE THIRTY-SECOND annual list of hospitals approved by the American College of Surgeons includes, as of December 31, 1949, a total of 3,284 institutions in the United States, Canada, and a few other countries. Of this total 2,981 are fully approved and 303 are provisionally approved. The number of hospitals under survey during 1949 was 3,998. Therefore, the approved hospitals represent 82.2 per cent, the fully approved 74.6 per cent, and the provisionally approved 7.6 per cent of the total under survey.

In the 100 bed and over classification, in which 2,309 hospitals are under survey, 2,189 or 94.8 per cent are approved. Hospitals under survey in the 50 to 99 bed size total 1,068, of which 797 or 74.5 per cent are approved. Hospitals under survey in the 25 to 49 bed size total 621, of which 298 or 47.9 per cent are approved.

THE POINT RATING SYSTEM

The Point Rating System, after its second year of general application in the surveys of hospitals, continues to be regarded by hospitals as one of the best spurs to progress yet devised. Intense interest in it is manifested in all areas. Its appeal is in the definiteness with which specific factors may be appraised, both by the hospital itself and by the College representative who makes the survey.

Of course there are limitations to the effectiveness of any scoring system. As Dr. Arthur W. Allen, Chairman of the Board of Regents of the College, said in addressing the opening assembly of the Clinical Congress in Chicago in October:

"After all, the whole story of hospital service can never, never be measured in points . . . and I would not like for any hospital to feel that when it attains a nearly perfect score on the point rating scale, it can rest on its laurels. There comes then a challenge to use the score as an incentive to progress beyond the numerical rating possibilities. The human element in service to patients is in particular something that must be eternally nurtured. . . . But point rating is extremely important as far as it goes. I am sure that if all the factors on which scores are assessed are well up to standard, the hospital is certain to have a good scientific atmosphere."

Other countries are becoming extremely interested in the Point Rating System. An article in the London, England, Lancet, a few months ago, after stating that too little was known in that country about the influence on hospitals exerted for the past thirty years by the American College of Surgeons, said in part:

"To qualify for inclusion on the College's Approved List, the hospitals have to reach certain standards, and the desire to qualify has greatly improved their organization, equipment, and performance. . . . The many people in Great Britain who now find themselves visiting hospitals on behalf of boards and committees will be particularly interested in the new Point Rating System which the College has introduced as a further incentive to the hospitals on its list. This system will be used by the assessors, and it is also suggested that hospitals should themselves use the form as a means of judging their own progress. No departure is intended from the standards laid down in the Manual of Hospital Standardization, but the new method is intended to enable hospitals to take a more active part in meeting the College's requirements."

Explanation then follows of the two main sections of the report—essential divisions, and complementary and service divisions. The maximum points obtainable for the first are 640, and for the second 360, totaling 1,000, broken down as follows: physical plant, 20; administration, 35; medical staff organization, 200; medical record department, 125; clinical laboratory, 95; x-ray department, 50; nursing service, 90; dietary department, 25 (totaling 640 for these "essential divisions"); medical department, 50; surgical department, 100; obstetrical department, 75; anesthesia department, 40; physical medicine department, 35; outpatient department, 20; pharmacy, 20; medical social service department, 20; (totaling 360 for these complementary and service divisions). Details are then given in the article of certain parts of the scoring report.

The point rating form covers a total of 18 pages. Each hospital department is clearly indicated by a heading, under which specific questions are asked. The total points allotted for each department are broken down into separate scores for each main division. The ready acceptance of the Point Rating System is another excellent example of the genuine eagerness for progress and improvement which has motivated hospitals ever since Hospital Standardization was inaugurated in 1917.

STANDARDS FOR TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITALS

The American College of Chest Physicians has adopted the standards of the American College of Surgeons, with some additions of special features, in the evaluation of tuberculosis hospitals, and services or departments for the care of tuberculous patients in general hospitals. The two Colleges are collaborating in efforts to improve tuberculosis hospitals and departments. The features of the detailed standards which apply particularly to the care of tuberculous patients are being prepared by the Sanatorium Standards Committee and the Council of Tuberculosis Hospitals of the American College of Chest Physicians.

The tuberculosis hospital is evolving into an institution which renders more and more general service to its patients because of the advances in thoracic surgery in particular and because of recognition of the fact that these patients are subject to many other kinds of ailments which need medical or surgical treatment. Thoracic surgery has developed in recent years into a recognized specialty. Many cases which formerly were transferred to general hospitals for certain conditions are now being treated in tuberculosis hospitals. This is an important trend.

Another trend which is affecting general hospitals is the employment of antibiotic therapy in the management of tuberculosis. Regarding this, Dr. Benjamin P. Potter, Chief, Division 1, Dr. Berthold S. Pollak Hospital for Chest Diseases, Jersey City Medical Center, said at a session of the Clinical Congress in October: "General hospitals no longer are justified in giving tuberculous patients merely domiciliary care while they await transfer to specialized hospitals. Antibiotic and/or collapse therapy may be sufficiently urgent to require immediate induction to carry a patient over a crucial period."

STANDARDS FOR THE CARE OF PSYCHIATRIC PATIENTS

The American College of Surgeons and the American Psychiatric Association are working closely together on the problems of rating and approval of hospitals for the mentally ill, and this work will also be extended to the area of the psychiatric department of the general hospital. With the rapidly changing concepts of proper care of psychiatric patients, with increasing emphasis upon shock and other forms of therapy, the mental hospital is becoming more and more like a general hospital in its complexity, besides gaining better appreciation of its peculiar problems. The American College of Surgeons has a deep interest in improving the standards for mental hospitals, not only from the standpoint of the infirmaries which they maintain for the treatment of incidental illnesses, but also from that of treating mental illness, like any other, as a condition which is susceptible to alleviation or cure through proper treatment.

In connection with psychiatric departments in general hospitals, it is frequently possible to prevent or to cure mental illness by instituting promptly measures which promote the patient's general health. Such departments serve an important function also in enabling close study of patients so that if commitment to a mental hospital becomes necessary, they may be assigned to the proper services.

Using as a basis the Standard for Hospitals of the American College of Surgeons, the American Psychiatric Association is developing detailed requirements which apply particularly to mental hospitals and psychiatric departments in general hospitals. For the next two or three years the Central Inspection Board of the Association plans to collect information concerning the present condition of mental hospitals and to make an estimate of their needs. Upon completion of the surveys, detailed standards will be formulated. In the meantime the American College of Surgeons will continue to include the present approved mental hospitals in its list, later correlating its efforts with those of the American Psychiatric Association in the survey and approval program.

STATUS FOR THE GENERAL PRACTITIONER

Although the American College of Surgeons is an organization of general surgeons and surgical specialists, it has always recognized in its work of Hospital Standardization and other activities that the general practitioner—the "family doctor"—is the key figure in medical service to the patient.

The main consideration in granting hospital privileges to a physician is that he shall be competent to perform procedures which he undertakes. Otherwise the American College of Surgeons in its Standard for Hospitals imposes no restriction which prevents the general practitioner from having the status which he deserves on the hospital staff. Any other conception of the requirements is the result of misunderstanding.

The reasonable desires of the general practitioner for status in the hospital were well expressed at a session of the Clinical Congress in October by Dr. John O. Boyd, Jr., of Roanoke, member of the board of directors and chairman of the committee on hospitals of the American Academy of General Practice. A definite section on the active staff, of equal rank with the other sections, and with a representative voice in the affairs of the professional staff, is one of these desires. Dr. Boyd feels that each section of the active staff should be privileged to elect a representative to the executive committee of the medical staff. Another desire is the "right to be judged in his application for privilege in a specialty section on his individual merits" rather than on requirements closely duplicating those of the specialty boards. Dr. Boyd adds:

"It should be the responsibility of the specially trained members of the section to observe the applicant for that privilege but their conclusion should be arrived at objectively and without prejudice. It is my feeling that membership in such a specialty section carries with it an obligation to honestly supervise the practice of medicine within the limits of that specialty section and that this supervision of applicants falls well within the meaning of this responsibility. It follows that if this has been obtained the general practitioner will have the benefit of advice, co-operation and good will of his specialist colleagues."

The constitution and bylaws for hospital medical staffs which the American College of Surgeons has recommended may easily be modified by individual hospitals to provide for a section of general practice.

The American College of Surgeons in its Program of Hospital Standardization does not advocate restriction of the hospital to any particular group but feels that admission to hospital privileges should be extended to such physicians and surgeons as are ethical and competent in their area of performance. When the condition is beyond their background of training and competence they should call in one who is thoroughly qualified in that particular field to take over the care of the patient in co-operation with the original physician, or independently if that seems more desirable. Good judgment and recognition of limitations of professional ability to perform in the various fields of medical and surgical practice are highly essential. With this understanding, the general practitioner can find his status in the general hospital within the limits of the constitution and bylaws and accepted policies of the hospital.

STANDARDIZATION OF SMALL HOSPITALS

Anxiety to meet the standards for approval is constantly expressed by the administrative and professional staffs of small hospitals. It has always been the desire of the American College of Surgeons to make the requirements sufficiently flexible so that they can be met by the smaller institutions with certain adjustments. The introduction of scoring on a point rating system has presented some new problems for small hospitals.

A special section of the Manual of Hospital Standardization is devoted to explaining how the small hospital can meet the Standard for Hospitals. The American College of Surgeons is always ready to offer all possible aid to the small hospital in meeting its problems and in attaining high standards of service.

THE STANDARD FOR HOSPITALS

The fundamental principles upon which the Standard for Hospitals is based are as follows:

1. A modern physical plant, free from hazards and properly equipped for the comfort and scientific care of the patient.
2. Clearly stated constitution, bylaws, rules, and regulations setting forth organization, duties, responsibilities, and relations.
3. A carefully selected governing board having complete and supreme authority for the management of the institution.
4. A competent, chief executive officer or administrator, well trained in all phases of hospital administration, with authority and responsibility to interpret and carry out the policies of the hospital as authorized by the governing board.
5. An adequate number of efficient personnel, properly organized and under competent supervision.
6. An organized medical staff of ethical, competent physicians for the efficient care of the patients and for carrying out the professional policies of the hospital, subject to the approval of the governing board.
7. Adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities with efficient technical service under competent medical supervision.
8. Accurate and complete medical records, promptly written and filed in an accessible manner so as to be available for study, reference, follow-up, and research.
9. Group conferences of the administrative staff and of the medical staff to review regularly and thoroughly their respective activities in order to keep the service and the scientific work on the highest plane of efficiency.
10. A humanitarian attitude in which the best care of the patient is always the primary consideration.

To the basic Standard for Hospitals have been added 15 Standards covering distinct departments or services in hospitals. These standards are contained in the Manual of Hospital Standardization and are as follows:

1. Clinical Laboratories
2. X-ray Departments
3. Surgical Departments
4. Departments of Anesthesia
5. Obstetrical Departments
6. Eye, Ear, Nose, and Throat Departments
7. Treatment of Fractures and Other Traumas
8. Cancer Clinics
9. Physical Medicine Departments
10. Out-patient Departments
11. Pharmacies
12. Nursing Services
13. Dietary Departments
14. Medical Social Service Departments
15. Hospital Medical Libraries

RATING OF HOSPITALS

The American College of Surgeons grades hospitals according to one of three ratings:

1. Fully Approved. The hospital has met all of the requirements and is carrying them out in an acceptable manner.
2. Provisionally Approved. The hospital has accepted the requirements and is endeavoring to put them into effect, but for lack of time or other acceptable reasons has not been able to do so in every detail.
3. Not Approved. The hospital has not met the requirements in an acceptable manner.

If problems temporarily affect the eligibility of a hospital at the time the Approved List is published, the rating of that particular institution may be deferred for further information and consideration. The Certificate of Approval is granted to an institution that has been fully approved for a time sufficient to guarantee its continued meeting of the requirements in a capable manner.

STANDARD FOR HOSPITALS

1. That physicians and surgeons privileged to practice in the hospital be organized as a definite medical staff. Such organization has nothing to do with the question as to whether the hospital is open or closed, nor need it affect the various existing types of medical staff organization. The word staff is here defined as the group of doctors who practice in the hospital inclusive of all groups, such as the active medical staff, the associate medical staff, and the courtesy medical staff.

2. That membership upon the medical staff be restricted to physicians and surgeons who are (a) graduates of medicine of approved medical schools, with the degree of Doctor of Medicine, in good standing, and legally licensed to practice in their respective states or provinces; (b) competent in their respective fields; and (c) worthy in character and in matters of professional ethics; that in this latter connection the practice of the division of fees, under any guise whatsoever, be prohibited.

3. That the medical staff initiate and, with the approval of the governing board of the hospital, adopt rules, regulations, and policies governing the professional work of the hospital; that these rules, regulations, and policies specifically provide (a) that medical staff meetings be held at least once each month; (b) that the medical staff review and analyze at regular intervals their clinical experience in the various departments of the hospital, such as medicine, surgery, obstetrics, and the other specialties; the medical records of patients, free and pay, to be the basis for such review and analysis.

4. That accurate and complete medical records be written for all patients and filed in an accessible manner in the hospital, a complete medical record being one which includes identification data; complaint; personal and family history; history of present illness; physical examination; special examinations, such as consultations, clinical laboratory, x-ray, and other examinations; provisional or working diagnosis; medical or surgical treatment; gross and microscopical pathological findings; progress notes; final diagnosis; condition on discharge; follow-up; and, in case of death, autopsy findings.

5. That diagnostic and therapeutic facilities under competent medical supervision be available for the study, diagnosis, and treatment of patients, these to include at least (a) a clinical laboratory providing chemical, bacteriological, serological, and pathological services; (b) an x-ray department providing radiographic and fluoroscopic services.

The College has two lists of approved hospitals: (1) the "List of Approved Hospitals" that meet The Standard for Hospitals under the program of Hospital Standardization, and (2) "List of Programs of Graduate Training in Hospitals of the United States and Canada Approved for Graduate Training in General Surgery and the Surgical Specialties." Both of these lists are published in the December, 1949, Approval Number of the BULLETIN of the College.

Hospitals of the United States Army, Army Air Forces, Navy, Public Health Service, and Veterans Administration approved under Hospital Standardization are listed separately in the Approval Number.

SYMBOLS

Symbols which appear following the names of hospitals in the Approval Number of the BULLETIN indicate the following:

Provisionally Approved by the American College of Surgeons.

Approved for Graduate Training in Surgery and/or a Surgical Specialty by the American College of Surgeons.

Approved for Graduate Training in Surgery and/or a surgical specialty by the American College of Surgeons as a participant in a program, or programs, the greater part of which is given elsewhere.

Approved for training interns by the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals, American Medical Association.

Approved for residencies or fellowships by the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals, American Medical Association.

School of Nursing accredited by State Board of Nurse Examiners.

Approved for training interns by the Department of Hospital Service of the Canadian Medical Association.

Approved Cancer hospitals, Cancer Clinics, Cancer Diagnostic Clinics, or institutions in which departments are conducting Cancer Clinics.

FUNDAMENTAL REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATE TRAINING IN SURGERY*

1. DURATION AND OBJECTIVE. Graduate training in general surgery or in any of the surgical specialties shall be of sufficient duration and educational content to enable the young surgeon, upon completion of such training, to begin the practice of surgery in a scientific manner. An acceptable program must include, following an approved internship, three or more years of organized, institutional graduate training. In the case of ophthalmology or otolaryngology, the period of training required shall be not less than two years after internship; and in the case of the combined specialty, ophthalmology-otolaryngology, the period of training required shall be not less than three years after internship.

2. ORGANIZATION AND SUPERVISION. (a) The medical staff shall be organized with heads of departments and an educational committee responsible for the organization of the graduate training program and for the personal supervision and direction of the work of the resident staff. (b) The committee shall keep such records of the activities of the resident staff as may be necessary to indicate the accomplishment of each resident, to assure an equitable distribution of the work, and together with some form of examination, provide a basis upon which the resident's training may be evaluated.

3. BASIC MEDICAL SCIENCES. (a) The application of the basic medical sciences must be emphasized in the clinical work. In addition, the resident staff shall be required to observe and participate in autopsies, to devote adequate time to the study of gross and microscopic pathology, to acquire a practical knowledge of clinical roentgenology and radiology, to pursue anatomical studies including regional dissections, and to participate in clinical or experimental research or in other special study of the basic medical sciences. (b) The hospital shall maintain a clinical laboratory and x-ray department and other adjunct diagnostic and therapeutic facilities essential for diagnosis and treatment. Facilities for other basic medical science study and research work are desirable. (c) All services shall be under the continuous supervision of qualified heads of departments and shall have qualified technical assistants. (d) If not available within the hospital, provision for adequate study of the basic medical sciences shall be provided through affiliation with another hospital or with a medical school.

4. CLINICAL MATERIAL. (a) The hospital shall have an active surgical service and an organized out-patient department with systematic follow-up clinics. (b) The number of patients shall be adequate to give the resident staff opportunity for training and experience in the diagnosis, treatment and study of end results of a variety of surgical conditions. (c) Responsibility for the care of patients and operative experience, under supervision, sufficient to develop surgical judgment and technical efficiency shall be provided for the resident staff.

5. SUPPLEMENTAL ORGANIZED STUDY. (a) The hospital shall provide a medical library containing a wide range of standard textbooks, current medical journals and periodicals, with a librarian in charge. (b) The resident staff shall take an active part in general staff meetings, departmental conferences, and clinicopathological conferences, and shall be responsible for some teaching activity. A definite program of reading of scientific literature shall be carried out under the guidance of the medical staff.

DURING the last year of the war and the three years immediately following the end of the war, the main effort of the Graduate Training Division was devoted to hospital surveys and conferences with a view to developing new Graduate Training programs in hospitals whose resources showed prospect of their becoming additions to the College's approved list for Graduate Training. During the last two years, on the other hand, a major emphasis has been placed on the resurveying of programs which are already on the approved list. This has been done because of the importance of reinvestigating the effectiveness of those programs which were added to the list in the post-war years. It has been desirable, also, in the case of hospitals with long established Graduate Training programs to conduct resurveys in order to ascertain whether the curtailment in duration of training and the other deficiencies which developed under wartime restrictions have now been satisfactorily corrected. The following statistical summary of approvals and the list of approved programs which was published in the December, 1949, BULLETIN of the College reflect the result of approximately the first half of these resurveys together with a limited number of additional new programs approved in hospitals which were not previously on the College's Graduate Training list.

The Board of Regents of the College, at its meeting in October of 1948, adopted a resolution increasing the minimum duration for graduate training programs in general surgery and in two of the surgical specialties. The latter are: programs for combined training in obstetrics and gynecology, training in otolaryngology, and for the combined practice of otolaryngology and ophthalmology. This action is to apply to residents beginning training July 1, 1950, and thereafter.

The following are the programs affected:

1. General Surgery. Graduate training programs comprising at least four years of residency are recommended for training in general surgery. However, approved three-year programs of training in general surgery will continue to be recognized by the Graduate Training Division of the American College of Surgeons pending the development of a sufficient number of four-year training programs.

2. Otolaryngology. Approval of graduate training programs in otolaryngology will be limited to those which provide, after internship, at least three years of progressive training.

Approval of graduate training programs for the combined practice of ophthalmology and otolaryngology will be limited to those which provide, following internship, four years of progressive training with appropriate emphasis on training in each of the two fields of practice.

3. Obstetrics and Gynecology. Approval of graduate training programs for the combined practice of obstetrics and gynecology will be limited to those which provide, following internship, at least four years of progressive training with appropriate emphasis on training in each of the two fields of practice. (The minimum duration for individual programs of training for the practice of gynecology only, or for the practice of obstetrics only, will continue to be three years.)

The American Board of Surgery and the American Board of Otolaryngology also have recently made somewhat similar changes in their graduate training requirements.

A joint committee, representing the different organizations interested in the evaluation of hospital residency training, have been conferring with a view to further harmonizing requirements for graduate training. Many of the larger hospitals have for some years had in operation programs which meet the new requirements and a steadily increasing number of other hospitals have recently been developing four-year programs without great difficulty and with definite improvement in hospital service.

It is to be noted that the action of the Board of Regents of the College was so worded that it will not become retroactive in relation to those residents who had started surgical training programs before the Regents' action was taken. The new requirement applies necessarily only to those residents beginning their training programs July 1, 1950 and thereafter.

It should be emphasized that the beginning date of the new requirement for the trainees gives the hospitals which are now offering a shorter graduate training program a liberal period of time in which to make any departmental readjustments which may be needed for a longer program. A hospital now offering a three-year program but able to develop the resources in clinical material and staff for a four-year program, can, if necessary, postpone the actual filling of the fourth-year position until July 1, 1953, when the trainee who starts his first year of residency July 1, 1950, will have reached the end of his third year of training.

Attention is directed, also, to the fact that the Graduate Training Division of the College has for many years encouraged a development of collaborative graduate training programs where two institutions have clinical graduate educational resources of somewhat different type and can supplement each other in combining for more effective graduate training work. The establishment of the new requirement of the Board of Regents is intended not to discourage, but definitely to encourage the development of good collaborative programs.

THE 1949 APPROVED LIST

CIVILIAN HOSPITALS¹

The American College of Surgeons announces that 360 civilian hospitals and other medical institutions are participating in programs which it has approved for graduate training in General Surgery and in the Surgical Specialties. Receiving training under these programs there are approximately 4,500 residents.

The number of approved programs in General Surgery and each Surgical Specialty is as follows:

¹Not to be confused with the "List of Approved Hospitals" under Hospital Standardization.

SPECIALTY	PRESENT NUMBER OF APPROVED PROGRAMS
General Surgery.....	282
Plastic Surgery.....	9
Proctology.....	2
Thoracic Surgery.....	8
Neurological Surgery.....	37

Gynecology.....	11
Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology.....	6
Ophthalmology.....	65
Otolaryngology.....	75
Total.....	775

GOVERNMENT HOSPITALS

Post-war developments and re-organization have resulted in the establishment of graduate training programs in a limited number of government hospitals which have been specially selected and staffed for this educational objective. There are 5 United States Army Hospitals, 8 United States Naval Hospitals, 5 United States Public Health Service Hospitals, and 38 United States Veterans Administration Hospitals that are giving graduate training programs approved by the American College of Surgeons. The number of residents assigned for training in general surgery and the surgical specialties in these programs is about 900.

The number of approved programs in General Surgery and each Surgical Specialty is as follows:

SECTIONAL MEETINGS, 1950

S EVEN two-day Sectional Meetings were held in January, February, March, and April, 1950, for the benefit of the Fellows of the American College of Surgeons, the medical profession at large, and hospital representatives, as follows:

Date	City	States and Provinces
January 9, 10	Belleair	Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia
February 13, 14	El Paso	Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas
February 20, 21	Louisville	Arkansas, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Tennessee
March 14, 15	Pittsburgh	Connecticut, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, West Virginia
March 20, 21	Montreal	Maine, Massachusetts, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, New Hampshire, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Rhode Island, Vermont
April 3, 4	Winnipeg	Iowa, Manitoba, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Saskatchewan, South Dakota, Wisconsin
April 10, 11	Seattle	Alberta, British Columbia, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington, Wyoming

SCOPE OF ATTENDANCE

The medical profession at large, medical students, and hospital executives were invited to join the Fellows of the College in these meetings. The policy of extending an invitation to the entire medical and hospital profession continues because of the interest shown at the 1946, 1947, 1948, 1949 Sectional Meetings and at the War Sessions held during the war. Total attendance averaged nearly 800 per meeting in 1950. The College recognizes the need for disseminating information about new methods and therapies through regional meetings in which nationally prominent authorities will participate as speakers and discussion leaders.

COMMITTEES ON LOCAL ARRANGEMENTS

An active Committee on Arrangements in each city was of great assistance in planning and managing the meetings. This committee was representative of all of the groups in the local medical profession and included Fellows of the American College of Surgeons, the American College of Physicians, the local medical society, local hospitals, and in some cases state medical societies. The chairmen of these committees at the seven meetings were as follows: WILLIAM M. ROWLETT, Tampa; FELIX P. MILLER, El Paso; J. ANDREW BOWEN, Louisville; J. HUBER WAGNER, Pittsburgh; G. GAVIN MILLER, Montreal; GORDON S. FAHRNI, Winnipeg; and RALPH H. LOE, Seattle.

SCIENTIFIC PROGRAMS

The programs for the medical profession began at 8:30 each morning with the showing of medical motion pictures, followed by scientific sessions commencing at 10:00 o'clock. Scientific sessions were also held each afternoon. Inclusion in the programs of such topics as "Recent Advances in Anesthesia," "Hormone Therapy in Breast Lesions," "Gastric and Intestinal Intubation," and "The Relation of Pancreatic Activity and Peptic Ulceration," besides being of great interest to surgeons, attracted many other members of the medical profession. Among the surgical subjects presented were the following: "Caesarean Section," and "Uterine Prolapse," "Intestinal Obstruction," "Surgery of the Hand," "Surgical Lesions of the Stomach," and "Bronchiogenic Carcinoma."

LUNCHEON AND DINNER MEETINGS

The luncheon meetings, the dinner on the first evening, and the scientific session were all well attended. The luncheon meetings on both days were devoted to round table discussions of topics presented at the morning sessions. The dinner was followed by a description of the activities of the American College of Surgeons, presented by members of the College staff. Eight of the leading activities were discussed, as follows:

Hospital Standardization, generally conceded to be the greatest single influence in the elevation of standards of service to the hospital patient; a total of more than 60,000 reports of surveys are now on file; 3,284 hospitals are meeting the Standard.

Clinical Research, a far-reaching activity embracing survey and approval of cancer clinics; survey and approval of cancer detection centers; maintenance of a Registry of Bone Sarcoma; maintenance of the Archives of Cured Cancer Cases; education of the profession in the treatment of fractures and other trauma; and survey and approval of medical services in industry. At the end of 1949 there were 574 approved cancer clinics; 129 approved cancer detection centers; and 1,359 approved medical services in industry.

Library and Literary Research, a far-reaching service which is extensively used by physicians all over the world.

Graduate Training in Surgery, a very successful program through which 969 individual plans of training in general surgery and/or the surgical specialties were developed to the end of 1949 to meet high standards for the benefit of young surgeons and the surgical patient.

Medical Motion Pictures, a program of review and evaluation of films, begun in 1926, and involving to date the study of more than 2,500 productions; and an expanded film production program, begun by the College in 1946, which is described in this publication under the heading of Medical Motion Pictures.

Clinical Congress, one of the greatest yearly medical events, attracting between four and five thousand leading surgeons of the United States, Canada, and other countries, to a five-day intensive clinical and scientific program.

Sectional Meetings, a series of two or three-day meetings conducted each year in a number of different cities widely distributed geographically, to provide opportunities to discuss current medical and hospital problems and advances for smaller groups than are possible at the Clinical Congress.

Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics, the official journal of the College, a surgical publication of the highest type, with a circulation of more than 25,500 copies monthly.

HOSPITAL CONFERENCES

Except in Seattle, where a workshop conference on the point rating system was substituted, the hospital representatives who attended the 1950 Sectional Meetings enjoyed a series of conferences on a wide variety of subjects. The Seattle program followed a different pattern because of its nearness to the dates of the convention of the Association of Western Hospitals.

At the six other meetings, discussion of nursing problems and trends in nursing service was prominently featured. Other major themes common to all six meetings were "Increasing Costs and What to Do about Them," "Community Relations,"

"Organization and Control of the Professional Work," and the "Medical Audit." Among the specific topics discussed at the meetings were "Anesthesia Service," "Operation of the General Practice Section," "Role of the Tissue Committee," "The Hospital in Time of Disaster," and "The Value of Regional Hospital Councils in the Integration of Hospital Services and Community Planning in the Care of the Sick."

At three of the sessions, the hospital representatives met with the surgeons for the luncheons. In El Paso, Pittsburgh, Montreal, and Winnipeg separate luncheons with speakers on hospital subjects were held.

At Belleair and Louisville, the hospital programs were extended over a third day to include workshop conferences on the "Point Rating System for the Accrediting of Hospitals," similar to the workshop which was held in Seattle.

GRADUATE TRAINING IN SURGERY

The activities of the Division of Graduate Training in Surgery of the College were reviewed briefly. At the evening session on the first day of each Sectional Meeting special emphasis was placed on three phases of this work: (1) personal interviews and consultations with veterans, medical officers, and other graduates who are interested in graduate training in general surgery or one of the surgical specialties; (2) surveys of hospitals for which graduate training programs are contemplated, and conferences with the educational committees of these hospitals; (3) conferences with administrative officers and members of the faculties of medical schools which are collaborating in regional graduate training programs. Intense interest was shown in the graduate training program and the Sectional Meetings offered an invaluable opportunity for many informal discussions of individual graduate training problems presented by surgeons and hospital administrators who were in attendance.

CANCER

Discussion of cancer and the problems associated with its detection, diagnosis, and treatment were a prominent feature of each Sectional Meeting. Approximately one half of each program was devoted to papers on operative procedure and the best methods of ameliorating the disease and increasing the comfort and extending the life span of the patient. Early detection and diagnosis were emphasized at each session by a full presentation of the program for detection centers. Following the dinner the evening of the first day, a Symposium on Cancer was held, papers being delivered by outstanding surgeons in that field. The general subjects covered this year were melanomata, differential diagnosis of brain tumors, and ovarian tumors.

COMMITTEE ON TRAUMA

The expanding activities of the Committee on Trauma, particularly through the functions of its local or Regional Committees, have necessitated an increasing acknowledgment of these trends in arranging the program. Each session has included numerous papers on subjects having to do with fractures, and the care, handling, and treatment of various forms of traumatic injuries. For the past two years an hour and a half on the morning of the second day has been devoted to a meeting of the Regional Committees in the area where the Sectional Meeting is held. The first half of this program was devoted to discussion of organization and local problems. The second half of the time allotted was devoted to a forum on some topic assigned by the central Committee. Last year this subject was the care and education of amputees. The response to this portion of the program was so enthusiastic that it was deemed advisable to incorporate a symposium on a similar subject in the 1949 Clinical Congress program.

MEDICAL MOTION PICTURES

Medical motion pictures were shown each morning from 8:30 to 10:00 a.m., including: "Malnutrition in the Hospital Patient." EUGENE F. DUBOIS, New York; ROBERT ELMAN, St. Louis; and HERBERT POLLACK, New York.

"Fractures: An Introduction." HARRISON L. McLAUGHLIN, M.D., New York. (Sponsored by the American College of Surgeons and its Committee on Trauma, and made possible through a grant from the Johnson & Johnson Research Foundation.)

"Surgical Anatomy of the Femoral Triangle." CONRAD J. BAUMGARTNER, M.D., Beverly Hills.

"Injuries of the Peripheral Nerves." LOYAL DAVIS, Chicago, and GEORGE PERRET, Chamblee, Georgia. (Sponsored by the American College of Surgeons and its Committee on the Nervous System and made possible through a grant from the Johnson & Johnson Research Foundation.)

"We Speak Again. The Rehabilitation of Laryngectomized Patients." LEROY A. SCHALL, Boston.

These films aroused great enthusiasm and several requests were made for reshowings.

Preview of New Film

The third in a series of films which are being produced by the College under a grant from the Johnson & Johnson Research Foundation was shown at each of the meetings in order to elicit constructive criticism. "Injuries of the Peripheral Nerves" is a teaching film of which LOYAL DAVIS, Chicago, and GEORGE PERRET, Chamblee, Georgia, are co-authors.

The other two films in this series made possible through the grant from Johnson & Johnson are: "Anomalies of the Bile Ducts and Blood Vessels; Strictures of the Common Duct" by WARREN H. COLE, Chicago, and "Fractures: An Introduction" by HARRISON L. McLAUGHLIN, New York.

These films have received many favorable comments.

PARTICIPANTS IN THE PROGRAMS

The names of participants in programs that were presented at the 1950 Sectional Meetings, together with an outline of the program presented at each meeting, were published in the January, 1950, BULLETIN of the American College of Surgeons (pages 3-6).

STATE AND PROVINCIAL COUNSELING COMMITTEES

PURPOSES AND DUTIES

1. The members of the local Counseling Committees are consulted by the Administrative Board concerning the most favorable location and time for holding Sectional Meetings.

2. The full co-operation of the Committees is expected in the preparation for Sectional Meetings, in the selection of the Committee on Local Arrangements in the city in which the meeting is to be held, and in the general conduct of the meeting.

3. The Board of Regents will from time to time enlist the services of the Counseling Committees in accomplishing the purposes for which the American College of Surgeons was established.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES IN EVALUATING MEDICAL MOTION PICTURE FILMS

The principles which guide the American College of Surgeons in evaluating medical motion picture films are as follows:

PROFESSIONAL STANDPOINT:

1. Subject matter.
2. Method of presentation.
3. Selection of case for the procedure indicated.
4. Relevancy of subject matter to material presented.
5. Technique.
6. Teaching value.
7. Sacrifice of efficient service to the patient to photographic quality.
8. Originality of presentation.
9. Possible better portrayal of subject matter by other existing films.
10. Elements introduced.
11. Ethics.
12. Distribution:
 - a. Profession in general.
 - b. Specialists only.
 - c. Medical students.
 - d. Hospitals.
 - e. Lay public.
13. Suggestions for improving the film.

MECHANICAL STANDPOINT:

1. Method of presentation.
2. Logical sequence.
3. Photographic quality.
4. Clearness of operating field.
5. Illumination.
6. Terminology.
7. Legends.
8. Possibility of better portrayal of subject matter through:
 - a. Animation.
 - b. Diagrams.
 - c. Drawings.
 - d. X-rays.
9. Quality of:
 - a. Animation.
 - b. Diagrams.
 - c. Drawings.
 - d. X-rays.
10. Unnecessary duplication.
11. Condition of the film.
12. Date of production.
13. Suggestions for improving the film.

MEDICAL motion picture films are an important means of disseminating medical knowledge, and they present a valuable supplement to the classroom lecture, to the demonstration, or to the thesis. Every film which is produced should comply with the "Guiding Principles in Evaluating Medical Motion Picture Films," which appear on the facing page.

I. REVIEW AND APPROVAL OF FILMS

The Committee on Medical Motion Pictures of the American College of Surgeons desires to review films on medical, surgical, and allied subjects. Many pictures have been received, and as they are reviewed a card catalogue is being compiled for the purpose of recording detailed data concerning medical and surgical films of high quality. This digest enables the College to supply information regarding films which are available on a given subject, where they may be obtained, and whether or not they are satisfactory for the purpose desired.

Information has been and is being assembled from approved medical schools in the United States and Canada regarding films on medical, surgical, and allied subjects that have been produced by members of the medical faculties, or pictures that are available through the film libraries of the medical schools.

Films received at the College are reviewed by a committee consisting of recognized authorities on the subject matter portrayed. The teaching value of films is a major factor in the evaluation of medical motion pictures by the reviewing committees. Films which meet basic standards from the standpoint of professional technique, general teaching value, and photographic quality are approved by the College, and the author of the film is authorized to insert a legend which reads:

Passed by the Committee on Medical Motion Pictures of the AMERICAN COLLEGE OF SURGEONS

II. THE LOAN OF FILMS

A list of medical motion picture films which meet the basic standards of the American College of Surgeons is published in the Approval Number of the College BULLETIN, issued annually in December. Information regarding any of the films (including rental or purchase charges and conditions under which the films may be procured) may be secured from the individual or organization listed in the right hand column opposite the title of the particular film. The year in which each film was produced appears in parentheses following the title of the film. The College does not at present maintain a library of medical motion pictures.

III. FILMS SPONSORED BY THE COLLEGE

A motion picture "R.N.—Serving All Mankind," was sponsored by the College under a grant from the Becton Dickinson Foundation for the Extension of Scientific Knowledge. It is a two-reel sound-on-film picture, produced under the supervision of the College.

The story is woven around the decision of two typical American girls to become nurses. It pays high tribute to the Registered Nurse. The various steps taken by the girls in selecting and enrolling in a nursing school depict graphically information of benefit to girls who are considering nursing as a career. The classroom work and experiences of the girls in nursing school are faithfully portrayed.

Another two-reel, sound motion picture entitled "White Battalions—Serving All Mankind," was also sponsored by the American College of Surgeons under a grant from the Becton Dickinson Foundation. The film will prove an important factor in promoting public appreciation of the accomplishments and potentialities of hospitals. It was designed for showing in neighborhood theaters, at hospital meetings, and at school and club events. It will impart to the public a knowledge of the scope of hospital service and of the focusing of every effort in the hospital on the care of the patient, regardless of his ability to pay. Thus it will serve to enlist active public interest in hospitals.

Since 1947 three additional College sponsored films have been completed. All of these films have been produced under a grant from Johnson & Johnson Research Foundation. Following is a descriptive resumé of each of the films:

"Anomalies of the Bile Ducts and Blood Vessels: Strictures of the Common Duct." The film is in color, is silent, runs forty minutes and is entirely animated. The normal anatomy of types most commonly observed in dissections is first illustrated. Following this the most common anomalies of the bile ducts and blood vessels are shown. Emphasis is then given to the dangers encountered as a result of carelessness, haste, or the presence of anomalies. The fact that the great majority of strictures are caused by operative trauma is emphasized; likewise the danger of damage to the common duct during the control of hemorrhage is stressed. The film has had a wide circulation in recognition of its excellent teaching qualities.

"Fractures: An Introduction." This is the first of a series of films to be produced dealing with fractures and other traumas. It is a sound motion picture in full color. It is a film which emphasizes the modern concept of treating a fracture as a regional derangement of function as well as anatomy, and as an injured individual rather than a broken bone. The mechanism, pathology, repair and management of fractures are explained and simplified by animated anatomical drawings depicting what happens under the skin, to supplement the live-action photography. This treatment was chosen to make the picture adaptable for use by medical schools and hospitals in the instruction of both undergraduate and graduate students and nurses, and by medical societies in scientific programs and as a basis for discussion.

"Injuries of the Peripheral Nerves." The film is a 3-reel film with color and sound. It is excellent for its teaching qualities, illustrating the pathology which arises when a peripheral nerve is severed and the physiology of regeneration after the nerve is repaired. There is depicted the anatomy of the peripheral nerves most frequently injured and some well selected cases are used to illustrate the clinical results following nerve injuries. The accepted method of repairing a nerve and the postoperative management including various types of physiotherapy are presented. This film is well suited for teaching purposes for medical students, interns, and residents, and for showing before any group of physicians and surgeons who are interested in the diagnosis or management of cases of injuries to the peripheral nerves.

FOREIGN DISTRIBUTION OF APPROVED MEDICAL MOTION PICTURE FILMS

I. LATIN AMERICA

A program of loaning films to Latin American countries through the Division of Cultural Relations of the United States Department of State was begun early in 1940. Under this plan approved medical motion picture films have been circulated in the Latin American countries. Forty-nine subjects were made available by the authors or producers of these films, at whose expense duplicates were provided on an indeterminate loan basis for display under recognized medical groups in the countries of Latin America which had requested this service. The list of contributors was included in an article on "Medical Motion Picture Films," published in the September, 1944, issue of the College Bulletin.

A program of distributing approved medical motion picture films in the other American Republics became effective in the autumn of 1942. This program was a joint effort on the part of the American College of Surgeons through the co-operation and with the financial support of the United States Office of Inter-American Affairs.

Under the co-operative plan it was the responsibility of the Motion Picture Department of the College to select appropriate films from its approved list, to secure the loan of the films from the authors or producers, to supervise the translation of the legends and/or dialogue into Spanish and Portuguese, to adapt the films, and to furnish to the Office of Inter-American Affairs films from which sufficient copies were made by the Coordinator's Health and Medical Film Unit for distribution in all of the other Americas through committees of the Coordinator.

Each film provided under the joint program of the Coordinator and the College includes the following introductory legend:

This subject is one of a series of medical motion pictures which, at the request of medical authorities in the American Republics, is being presented by the American College of Surgeons in co-operation with the United States Government.

Through this program, 72 films bearing the approval seal of the College were made available in the other Americas. An article with reference to this subject and the list of the films included in the program appear in the September, 1943, issue of the College Bulletin.

II. DISTRIBUTION OF FILMS IN OTHER COUNTRIES

Through the co-operation of the College, approved medical motion picture films have been distributed also in other countries, among them: South Africa, Australia, Syria, Turkey, England, Iran, Sweden, India, Egypt, Portugal, Spain, New Zealand, China, and countries in Latin America.

The Office of War Information of the United States during the war asked the College to extend its program of distributing films in occupied and liberated countries, in all of which medical education was interrupted. There were selected for world-wide distribution 20 scientific films and 20 films for the lay public. Thus the College has been a great factor in extending medical education throughout the world.

EXPANDED PROGRAM OF MEDICAL MOTION PICTURE FILMS AUTHORIZED BY THE BOARD OF REGENTS

I. NEED FOR THE PROGRAM

The expanded medical motion picture film program of the American College of Surgeons, authorized by the Board of Regents in 1945, promises great advancement in visual educational methods—for the student, the intern, the resident, and especially the practicing physician, surgeon, and specialist.

The development and availability of films of the highest type is especially important at this time in view of the disruption of medical education and medical practice in countries throughout the world. It has been stated by recognized authorities that American medicine is destined to leave its imprint throughout the world into the indefinite future.

The expanded program of the College contemplates the production of films that represent the highest conception from the standpoints of scientific value, artistry, and workmanship. This is possible since the College has at its disposal on a voluntary basis services that cannot be purchased—the services of the leading physicians, surgeons, and specialists in the United States and Canada, and these services are essential in the production of medical motion pictures of the highest quality that will represent the consensus of the leaders in each field.

II. SPONSORSHIP OF THE SERIES OF FILMS

It has for a long time been the ambition of the College to put into effect the plan that is here outlined. It is a far-reaching program and it has been started with a grant from the Johnson & Johnson Research Foundation.

III. THE PLAN

Through the co-operation of the leading physicians, surgeons, and specialists of the United States and Canada, the program is being conducted as follows:

1. Selection of Subjects. The subjects are being selected in order of their importance by Advisory Committees of the College, and the operative procedures under the respective subjects will also be selected in the order of their importance by these same committees.

2. Selection of the Author or Authors of the Respective Films. The author or authors of films are selected from among the leaders in the respective field, many of whom have already had some experience in the production of films within their specialty.

3. Preparation of the Scenarios. The scenarios are prepared under the supervision of the College by the author or authors selected by the College's Advisory Committees.

4. Production of the Films. After the scenarios have been prepared the College secures a consensus from among authorities on the subject matter and aids as necessary in supervising the production of the films.

5. Review and Evaluation of Films. A critical review and evaluation of each film will be had from the authorities on the subject matter before the film is finally reviewed from the standpoint of acceptance by the College.

6. Listing of Films by the College. There will be established a separate listing of films of exceptional quality. This separate listing will include all of the films produced with the guidance of the College under this expanded program.

The College will continue to publish a list of films that are independently produced and that have been or may be reviewed and passed by the College.

7. Motion Picture Department. A motion picture department has been established at the College headquarters.

IV. TYPES OF FILMS IN CONTEMPLATION

It is estimated that a minimum of fifty films will be required in the field of surgery and the surgical specialties—films on embryology, surgical anatomy, physiology, pathology, and operative procedures. The films will all be of the 16 millimeter dimension, some silent and some with sound. Each of the fifty films will contain from 1,200 to 2,000 feet, involving a running time of from 40 to 60 minutes.

1. Embryology. These films will be designed to present embryologic development, including a demonstration of the actual embryologic growth by the use of the animated process in connection with the motion picture photograph, and they will show the development of the organs from their earliest stages to full growth.

2. Surgical Anatomy (Descriptive and Applied). The films will illustrate the systematic regional dissection of the human body, layer by layer.

3. Physiology. The functions of the many organs of the body will be depicted in these films. The action of individual muscles and groups of muscles will be portrayed by animated drawings. The passage of impulses from the central nervous system along the nerve tracts to their endings, with the result of these impulses, will be shown. The phenomena of respiration and alimentation with digestion will be depicted with a combination of animated drawings and direct photography in connection with fluoroscopy.

NOTE: The films on embryology, surgical anatomy, and physiology will be basic for all of the medical and surgical films that are contemplated in this program.

4. Pathology. A knowledge of the altered structure and function of tissues and organs brought about by disease or injury is a prerequisite to any therapeutic measures, surgical or otherwise, designed to repair injury or restore function. Each film should include features elucidating these phases.

5. Surgery. Common major operative procedures will be presented, based on definite principles of surgical treatment:

a. Basic principles to which every method of successful surgical treatment must conform.

b. A technique that has given good results in the hands of the majority of able surgeons.

The field is too great to permit of showing all of the variations in technique that might be utilized. Many of the variations are simply matters of individual training or preference. While absolute standardization of technique is unnecessary and perhaps even not desirable, operations as performed in the best hospitals and clinics are rather an amazing sight to the surgeon or physician who has not often had the opportunity of seeing these operations performed under the most advantageous surroundings. If the technique employed in the best hospitals and clinics is made available for study and observation of students and surgeons everywhere, it will be of great assistance in raising the standard of surgical treatment throughout the world.

6. Other Subjects. In addition to the fundamental or basic films outlined above, subsidiary films dealing with special subjects in the various branches of medical science may be planned later.

"It is a man's duty to have books. . . . A library is not a luxury, but one of the necessities of life."

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

GROWTH OF THE LIBRARY

THE Library of the American College of Surgeons, organized in 1921, comprises a collection of some forty thousand volumes: current textbooks, journal files, and historical works. These reference works are supplemented by a collection of reprints, consisting of more than one hundred twenty-five thousand items.

The nucleus of the Library consisted of the volumes in the library of the late Dr. John B. Murphy. To this collection have been added journal files and individual volumes from the library of the late Dr. Albert J. Ochsner; eighteenth and nineteenth century volumes in French and English from the library of the late Dr. William McDowell Mastin of Mobile, Alabama; the comprehensive collection of the late Dr. H. W. Mills of San Bernardino, California, on the subject of echinococcus cysts; and the historical works and current monographs on orthopedic surgery which Dr. H. Winnett Orr of Lincoln, Nebraska, has assembled and to which he is constantly adding. Included with the orthopedic material is a set (almost complete) of the reports of the twenty-eight Congresses of the Italian Orthopedic Society, gift of the late Dr. Vittorio Putti of Bologna, Italy. The Orr contribution includes a number of unique and valuable historical works. A collection of two hundred and fifty volumes in the field of otolaryngology has been presented by Dr. Otto Joachim of New Orleans and fifty volumes of recent journals by Dr. Lawrence L. Iseman of Chicago. The late Mrs. Franklin H. Martin presented a valuable collection of literary and historical publications, especially rich in items concerned with the settlement of Illinois and the Northwest, and with the development of medicine in these sections; also thirty scrapbooks of clippings and mementos pertaining to the early Congresses and Sectional Meetings of the College, and to the official trips taken by Dr. and Mrs. Martin to the Latin American countries and elsewhere.

In 1941 six tons of books, journals, and reprints, the library of the Morgan County (Jacksonville, Illinois) Medical Society, were received. This was originally a collectors, library. It contained many interesting and valuable items as well as the journal files, textbooks, and reference works written during the period when this library met the literary needs of that society. This collection was presented through the interest of the late Dr. Carl Black, Fellow and Governor of the College.

The outstanding acquisition of the war years was the library of the late Dr. W. W. Pearson of Des Moines, Iowa, Fellow and Governor of the College. This library which was received in 1944 consisted of a well rounded collection of textbooks and monographs covering every phase of medicine and surgery, but indicating an especial interest in pathology and otolaryngology. Approximately one thousand bound journals pertaining to this specialty were likewise included.

Another gift which was received during this period and which is worthy of especial mention is that received through the interest of Colonel Harold W. Jones, then Librarian of the Army Medical Library; it consisted of three thousand theses from the University of Paris (1935-1939) which duplicated material in the Army Medical Library. This is an especially useful and desirable addition to the College Library.

In addition to the gifts above mentioned, Fellows and friends of the College have contributed many valuable smaller collections and individual volumes, some consisting of treatises of historic interest and others of current reference works. These together with the journal files regularly received through subscription are valuable facilities for the furthering of the many research problems which are constantly being studied in the Department.

The College Library has likewise been made a depository for manuscripts. Representative of this type of contribution is the monograph of Dr. Joseph McFarland who has made a thorough study of Dysontogenetic and Mixed Tumors of the Urogenital Region. In publishing this article it was not possible to include the charts, graphs, and analysis of cases which formed a portion of this study and the extensive bibliography (513 titles and references) upon which it was based. Dr. McFarland has, therefore, presented a complete copy of this study to the Library of the American College of Surgeons and one to the College of Physicians in Philadelphia in order that this material may be available to anyone studying this problem. Other members of the profession, considering the College Library as a suitable means for the preservation and distribution of such studies, have added similar material to the files.

Another collection of manuscripts which has been undertaken includes signed papers of significance to the annals of the College. This group of manuscripts should include presidential and fellowship addresses, orations, and other addresses presented at the Clinical Congresses. It is hoped that officers and guest speakers will co-operate by contributing this material for the archives of the College.

The College reprint collection is divided into two sections. The first, the Fellow file, includes the reprints of articles by Fellows of the College arranged alphabetically by author and is representative of the contributions each man has made to the progress of surgery. The second division also includes the publications of Fellows and friends of the College. In this section, however, the reprints are classified by subject so that they may be readily accessible for loan when requests for data upon specific subjects are received. Although this loan file, the College Package Library, is extensive and representative of the best in the surgical literature, it is not complete with respect to every subject. In order that it may be as comprehensive as possible, Fellows are urged to continue their contributions of reprints and of unbound journals, when feasible, placing the College Library upon their mailing lists to receive duplicate copies of their writings as published.

SERVICES OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LITERARY RESEARCH

The value of this collection of reference works and reprints, especially in so far as the individual surgeon located at a distance from a College is concerned, is determined by the service rendered by the Department of Literary Research. This Department consists of a staff of workers equipped to select reprints on medical and surgical subjects, compile bibliographies, and prepare abstracts and translations. If reprints only are desired, these are supplied without charge in Package Library form; the number of articles sent in response to each request varies depending upon the extent of the collection assembled upon the subject. No foreign reprints are included in the Package Library and it is not possible in every instance to include reprints of all desirable English articles. However, the collection is extensive and up to date; hence the time expended by the investigator in making his research is considerably lessened through the use of this loan material.

His time may be conserved, likewise, in the compilation of bibliographies and translations. Trained workers in each of these fields, assisted by accurate typists, compose a staff of workers equipped to care for any research problem in the domain of medical literature. Whether the bibliography be a simple one covering only the literature of recent years and requiring the checking of references from a single heading in the indices, or more comprehensive, requiring the selection of titles listed under numerous anatomical divisions, this experienced staff can be depended upon to do the work with a minimum expenditure of time and money. The complete and accurate citations furnished by these workers, accompanied by the free loan material in the College Package Library, form an excellent basis for the surgeon's investigation. When this portion of his study has been completed, he may select from the bibliography additional articles to be abstracted or translated.

If it be the abstract of an English article which is required, or a translation or abstract from the foreign literature (including the German, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Rumanian, Hungarian, Polish, Russian, Dutch, or Scandinavian languages), or a series of translations, the staff is equipped to care for the request. Each year, many requests for research are received, some of them being continuous surveys which have carried through the years. Whether the material is to be utilized as a background for laboratory experiments, for the study of an unusual clinical case, or to assist in reviewing an extensive series of cases in connection with the preparation of a scientific paper, the Department is ready to be of service. Its purpose is to make the medical and surgical literature of the world available to members of the profession, whatever the need and wherever they may be located, and to do this expeditiously and economically.

The war years added their special burden to the work of the Department. The reprint collection, especially those sections which were of interest to medical officers, was amplified. Package library material was furnished to medical officers and units during the long period of training in the States and later when overseas. It is known that material was sent to Canada, Panama, Great Britain, France, North Africa, Sicily, Italy, Spain, Alaska, New Zealand, Australia, Hawaii, and Okinawa. The remaining destinations indicated by APO addresses can only be surmised.

During this period also the War Bibliography was prepared and published. It included pertinent references to the American, British, Canadian, and Australian journals. Installments appeared in each issue of the BULLETIN of the College which was published between April, 1942, and February, 1946. Approximately 190 pages were devoted to this compilation, an estimated 10,000 references. Its early distribution to every Fellow, regardless of location, afforded him the opportunity to obtain from a local library, from the Army Medical Library, or from the College Library an item which might otherwise have escaped his attention until a much later date. It was utilized also by other medical librarians who likewise had occasion to serve these officers.

The Departmental record for recent years shows a marked interest on the part of the Fellows in the work of the South American countries as evidenced by the number of requests for information about clinics, hospitals, and medical schools located there and for translations from the Spanish and Portuguese publications of the South American countries. A considerable number of these publications are being received regularly in the Library and many South American writers are arranging for the presentation of their scientific writings to the Library. All of this planning and organization to bring about the interchange of ideas on an enlarged scale is indicative of the increase in solidarity in the interests of the men of science on the two continents.

In September, 1947, the list of books recommended for use in the hospital medical library was revised and published in the BULLETIN of the American College of Surgeons and in reprint form. This is a perennial activity of this Department in which the assistance of a board of specialists is regularly obtained.

COMMITTEE ON THE LIBRARY

At the annual meeting of the Board of Regents in 1935 a Committee on the Library was appointed. The function of this Committee is to advise and assist the Librarian in the further development of this Department of the College. The present Committee consists of approximately forty members, selected because of their marked interest in books and libraries, and, in particular, in the Library of the American College of Surgeons. They have been especially effective in searching out material representative of their professional interests and of the localities in which they reside. Grateful acknowledgement is made of their services in this connection as well as those extended in an advisory capacity.

RARE-BOOK ROOM

The beautiful room on the main floor of the College building, which served the former residents as a library, has been equipped with suitable lighting so that the rare volumes which form an important part of the College collection may be properly displayed. The present collection includes volumes from the historical group presented by Dr. H. Winnett Orr of Lincoln, Nebraska, and single volumes, as well as smaller collections, presented by individual Fellows.

In this room has been placed the gift of The Fourth Martin Memorial Lecturer, Sir James Learmonth. It is the beautifully bound historical item by the late Clarendon Hyde Creswell entitled "The Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, Historical Notes from 1505 to 1905." The fly-leaf bears the inscription:

"To the Library of the American College of Surgeons from the President and Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh, by the hand of The Fourth Martin Lecturer—Sir James Learmonth, K.C.V.O., F.R.C.S. (Ed.), October 17th, 1949."

The room likewise contains several appropriately chosen medals:

(1) The Gold Medal Award of the Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons, 1943. This award was given to Dr. H. Winnett Orr in recognition of an exhibit of historical books from the H. Winnett Orr collection made at the annual meeting of the Academy.

(2) A replica of the Malcolm T. MacEachern Medal, awarded annually by Northwestern University for exceptional achievement in the study of Hospital Administration. This award is financed by the Johnson and Johnson Research Foundation.

(3) A replica of the Henry S. Wellcome Medal awarded annually to a member of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States. This replica was presented to the College in 1939.

(4) A replica in bronze of the gold medal that was presented to Sir Benjamin Collins Brodie on his retirement from St. George's Hospital. This replica was presented to the College by The Lord Webb-Johnson upon the occasion of his visit to the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons, October 21, 1949.

PORTRAITS AND MEMORIALS IN THE LIBRARY

The Albert J. Ochsner Memorial Room contains the collection of photographs assembled by the late Dr. Ochsner, a founder, treasurer, and past president of the College, as well as mementos of his life and work. Portraits of Dr. Elijah Dewey Harmon, physician and surgeon at Fort Dearborn in 1830, and Mrs. Harmon, and a photograph of Mrs. Maud Mellich Wilson, have been hung in the Reading Room. A picture of the Nicholas Senn Memorial Banquet of 1905 is of great interest, including as it does in the group pictures of many other prominent Chicago medical men assembled to do him honor. Dr. Alfred A. Knapp of Peoria, Illinois, has presented several pictures of medical men and classes of fifty years ago. Mementos of historical significance—the mortar and pestle of the early physician and the medicine chest of the venturesome surgeon who accompanied the early French explorers along the Mississippi—these and other items of historical significance have been fittingly placed in the Library where it is hoped they will serve as an incentive for further gifts of a similar nature.

Eleven beautiful anatomical plates, the gift of Dr. Edward Ochsner of Chicago and Mrs. Nancy Ekström Amour of Stockholm, Sweden, adorn the north wall of the Reading Room. These are engravings from copperplates which bear the name of A. Cattani. One carries the date: 16 Novembre 1778, and the inscription: In Bologna presso l'Aulore nel Borgo delle Tovaglie. These plates are representative of the beautiful workmanship of the time and place, and, as such, are a much appreciated gift.

Mrs. Amour and Dr. Ochsner have likewise presented to the Library an antique Italian Medicine Case of great interest. The case is approximately four hundred years old; it is veneered in mahogany and is ornamented with handwrought hinges and bosses. When the cover is raised and the anterior portions opened out, two very small drawers are disclosed and three larger ones, together with cubicles for bottles, nearly all of which are occupied by handblown flasks containing remnants of ancient drugs. The hand rolled pills add interest to the case as does the list of contents written in Italian. One drawer contains a fragment of ancient parchment upon which appears an annotation in Italian, telling of the presentation of the case to Mrs. Amour by her associates in the Italian Red Cross, April 28, 1915. In giving this case to the Library, Mrs. Amour and Dr. Ochsner have presented a gift which has great sentimental as well as historical value.

Dr. Bowman C. Crowell, upon his retirement as Associate Director of the College, presented to the Library a large portion of the collection of photographs which had adorned the walls of his office. These were the photographs of personal friends, outstanding members of the profession. They have been placed appropriately on the walls of the library reading room.

The Library has a small but interesting collection of bookplates. To extend this collection, the librarian would be glad to receive two copies of the personal bookplate of each Fellow of the College and would also appreciate having such bookplates placed in any monographs presented to the Library. To these volumes, further, would be added the College bookplate which affords an opportunity for the registration of the signature of the donor.

CLINICAL CONGRESS

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS—OCTOBER 16 TO 23, 1949

THE THIRTY-FIFTH annual Clinical Congress was held in Chicago from October 16 to 23, 1949, with headquarters at The Stevens. The Congress included the Sixth Inter-American Congress of Surgery, which is described in a separate article. The attendance was approximately 7,300 surgeons and 1,000 hospital representatives.

The inclusion of the Sixth Inter-American Congress of Surgery was a distinctive feature of the Thirty-fifth Congress. The American College of Surgeons has been a member since 1942 of the Association of Inter-American Congresses of Surgery, founded in 1941. The five previous Congresses were held in South American countries. The College is obligated by the bylaws of the Association to act as host for the Congress once in every eight or nine years, the period between varying with the number of countries which are represented in the active membership.

The Clinical Congress is always attended by a number of foreign surgeons. In 1949 this attendance was larger than usual because of the Inter-American Congress and because the International Society of Surgery met in New Orleans the previous week, and many of the overseas surgeons who attended it came on to Chicago for the Congress.

The success of the 1949 Congress was the result of enthusiastic co-operation by the members of several committees, the hospitals which conducted clinics, the speakers, discussion leaders, sponsors of the television, and many other participants.

The opening session of the Thirty-fifth Clinical Congress and Twenty-eighth Hospital Standardization Conference, Monday morning, October 17, took the form of a General Assembly for physicians, surgeons, hospital administrators, and others. The keynote of the entire Congress was sounded in the opening address of Dr. Arthur W. Allen, Chairman of the Board of Regents, whose subject was: "The Ever Present Challenge—Good Care of the Patient."

Hospital Clinics. Surprisingly good attendance, in view of the many events occurring simultaneously at the hotel including the telecasts, was reported at the hospital clinics. The clinic ticket plans developed by Dr. H. Prather Saunders proved most effective in the smooth functioning of this activity.

One of the chief centers of interest at the 1949 Congress was the meeting room at the hotel in which color television of surgical and other hospital procedures was shown on the mornings of October 18, 19, 20 and 21, and on the afternoons of October 17, 18, 19, and 20. This was the first time that the College had utilized color television and only the third time in history, to show procedures being performed at a hospital to an audience in a distant conference room. The following operations were shown: craniotomy, corneal graft, herniorrhaphy, orchiectomy, nephrectomy, vaginal hysterectomy, abdominal hysterectomy, thyroidectomy, skin grafting operation, appendectomy, subtotal gastric resection, cholecystectomy, McArthur autoplasmic herniorrhaphy, common bile duct exploration, hemicolectomy, esophageal resection, pneumonectomy, lumbodorsal sympathectomy, triple arthrodesis of ankle, arthroplasty of hip, arthrotomy of knee, radical mastectomy, femoral herniorrhaphy, hand reconstruction operation, and leg amputation with refrigeration anesthesia. The hospital at which the telecasts originated was St. Luke's and the color television was provided by Smith, Kline and French Laboratories of Philadelphia.

The telecasts of nursing and other training techniques shown on Thursday evening, October 20, were the first demonstration of the use of color television in other than medical teaching.

Another television program, in black and white, shown within the hospital, was held at Lewis Memorial Maternity Hospital under a grant from Ciba Pharmaceutical Products, Inc. Obstetrical procedures under saddle block anesthesia, and other obstetrical and gynecological operations, were shown.

Programs for Evening Sessions and Panel Discussions. Based on suggestions of the Regents and the Committee on Programs, Dr. George H. Miller and his collaborators prepared an excellent program. The 3 evening sessions, 6 major panel discussions on general surgery, 6 surgical specialty panel discussions, the surgical seminar, and the evening sessions on ophthalmology and on otorhinolaryngology, were all very well attended.

Forums on Fundamental Surgical Problems. The Forums on Fundamental Surgical Problems were presented in two concurrent sessions on each of four mornings, and in one session on each of three afternoons. The popularity of these forums continues at a high level. Of the 345 abstracts submitted, the Committee headed by Dr. Owen H. Wangenstein accepted in its review 108 for presentation.

Special Programs. Programs prepared under the direction of Dr. Bowman C. Crowell and Dr. Charles F. Branch in co-operation with the respective committees of the College included one on Amputees, one on Trauma, and one on Cancer. These were all of exceptional interest and were well attended.

Medical Motion Picture Exhibition. The medical motion pictures, presented each day according to definite schedules, were carefully selected by Dr. H. Prather Saunders for their teaching value. A special feature was the presentation of the new medical motion picture: "Injuries of the Peripheral Nerves." This film was directed by Dr. Loyal Davis. It was sponsored by the American College of Surgeons and made possible through a grant from the Johnson & Johnson Research Foundation.

Graduate Training in Surgery. The program for the Symposium on Graduate

Training in Surgery and the Surgical Specialties was prepared by Dr. George H. Miller and Dr. Paul S. Ferguson with the advice and co-operation of Dr. Frederick A. Coller, Chairman of the Committee on Graduate Training in Surgery.

Hospital Standardization. The program for the Hospital Standardization Conference was planned by Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern. It comprised 14 sessions on 5 days, all of which were exceptionally well attended. An extremely wide range of topics of interest to surgeons, physicians, administrators, trustees, nurses, and all others interested in the care of the sick and injured, was covered.

Memorial Service—Dr. Irvin Abell. A special program which preceded the 1949 Annual Meeting of Fellows was the Memorial Service for Dr. Irvin Abell. Dr. Frederick A. Coller, President, presided, and Dr. James M. Mason of Birmingham, The Lord Webb-Johnson of London, Dr. Elmer L. Henderson of Louisville, and Dr. Arthur W. Allen of Boston presented expressions of appreciation. Dr. Abell served as Chairman of the Board of Regents, 1939-1949, and his death on August 28 was a serious loss to the College and cast a shadow upon the Thirty-fifth Clinical Congress where his kindly presence and his wise counsel had been anticipated and were greatly missed.

Presidential Meeting and Convocation. The Presidential Meeting on Monday evening, and the Convocation on Friday evening, were held in the Grand Ballroom of The Stevens. Eight distinguished surgeons received Honorary Fellowship at the Convocation. Details of the presentation are given on a following page.

Entertainment. An appreciated added feature of the Clinical Congress during the past three years has been the program of social activities planned for the wives and other guests of the visiting surgeons. This was a particularly important feature of the 1949 Congress because of the large number of foreign visitors. Mrs. Dallas B. Phemister was chairman of the entertainment committee. Tours of the city were arranged under the direction of Mr. Edward G. Sandrok. One of the main attractions was the visit to the College on the return trip from one of the tours. On this occasion several hundred women made a tour of the headquarters building under the guidance of members of the College staff headed by Miss L. Marguerite Prime. After the tour the women gathered in the Murphy Auditorium to hear Dr. MacEachern and other members of the staff briefly describe the activities of the College.

Office and Meeting Room Accommodations. Offices for the Administrative Staff, meeting and dining rooms for the Board of Regents and the various committees, and headquarters for press and radio representatives, were maintained on the third and fourth floors of the hotel.

All sessions of the Clinical Congress and Hospital Standardization Conference were held at The Stevens in the Grand Ballroom, South Ballroom, North Ballroom, West Ballroom, Normandy Lounge, Boulevard Room, Upper Tower, and various private dining rooms, with the exception of a few sessions which were held in the Eighth Street Theater; and the annual meeting of the Board of Governors and the Assembly of Initiates which were held in the Murphy Auditorium.

Registration. Registration proceeded more smoothly and expeditiously than at any previous Congress, despite the heavy attendance. The practice of advance registration has greatly speeded this activity.

Daily Clinical Bulletin. The Daily Clinical Bulletin was prepared and edited under the supervision of Dr. H. Prather Saunders, assisted by Dr. Michael L. Mason, Dr. Harold Earnheart, Dr. George Erickson, and Mrs. Elizabeth Petty Shaw. The final schedule of operative and non-operative clinics at the hospital, the television program, and other information were published for each day, with distribution of the bulletin early on the day preceding the one on which the events were to take place.

Public Relations. The press, radio, and public relations activities of the Clinical Congress were supervised by Miss Laura G. Jackson with the counsel of the Administrative Board. Dr. Charles B. Puestow was Chairman of the Public Relations Advisory Committee on which local surgeons, representing the various clinical specialties, served as consultants. A great volume of newspaper and magazine publicity about the developments reported at the Congress was published, with particularly extensive space devoted to the successful utilization of color television.

Every national radio network carried at least one specially scheduled program about the Clinical Congress, besides inclusion of surgical news from the Congress in the regular news broadcasts. Several programs were also broadcast by local radio stations.

Technical Exhibitions. The large and excellent technical exhibition was under the management of Mr. Edward G. Sandrok, Comptroller of the College, and Mr. James S. Shannon, General Manager of The Franklin H. Martin Memorial Foundation. Medical, surgical, and hospital equipment, instruments, and supplies were demonstrated and shown in the 139 booths which comprised the Exhibition.

Summary. The tenor of the many gratifying comments received by members of the Board of Regents and the administrative staff concerning the Clinical Congress, is that those who attended obtained information and stimulation beyond their greatest expectations, and thoroughly enjoyed the varied and timely programs. The Clinical Congress, with the accompanying Sixth Inter-American Congress of Surgery, was another memorable epoch in the history of successful meetings of the American College of Surgeons.

SIXTH INTER-AMERICAN CONGRESS OF SURGERY

THE SIXTH Inter-American Congress of Surgery met in Chicago with the Thirty-fifth Clinical Congress on Monday through Thursday, October 17 to 20, and on Friday afternoon and evening. On Friday morning its separate sessions were opened with the inaugural ceremony in the Murphy Auditorium of the American College of Surgeons, followed by a luncheon for the delegates at the Lake Shore Club. Scientific sessions were held on Saturday morning and afternoon and on Sunday afternoon in the Murphy Auditorium. The official banquet was held on Saturday evening in the North Ballroom of the Stevens Hotel, and the executive session was held on Sunday morning in the Murphy Auditorium, with a luncheon following it for the delegates at the Pearson Hotel.

The officers and committees in charge of arrangements for the Congress were as follows:

FREDERICK A. COLLIER, M.D., President

PAUL B. MAGNUSON, M.D., Secretary

ARNALDO CAVIGLIA, M.D., Secretary-General, Association of Inter-American Congresses of Surgery

This was the first time that the American College of Surgeons has been host to the Inter-American Congress. The College joined the Association of Inter-American Congresses of Surgery in 1942, after having sent Dr. Leo Eloesser as a delegate to the First Congress in Santiago, Chile, that year. Dr. Eloesser was again a delegate in 1943 to the Second Congress in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Dr. Alton Ochsner was the delegate to the Third Congress, which was held in Montevideo, Uruguay, in 1946, the meetings of 1944 and 1945 having been cancelled because of war and post-war conditions. The Fourth Congress was held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, 1947, without representation from the United States. At the Fifth Congress, held in La Paz, Bolivia, in 1948, Dr. E. Payne Palmer and Dr. Hu Crim Myers represented the College.

The inaugural ceremony on Friday morning was opened with the invocation by The Most Reverend Bernard J. Sheil, D.D., Auxiliary Catholic Bishop of Chicago. Greetings from the City of Chicago were brought by Honorable Martin H. Kennelly, Mayor, and from the Federal Government by Dr. Otis L. Anderson of Washington, Assistant Surgeon General and Associate Chief, Bureau of Medical Services, United States Public Health Service. Official greetings from the signatory societies were brought by the following:

Dr. Manuel Ruiz Moreno, Buenos Aires, Argentina

Dr. Benedicto Montenegro, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

Dr. Italo Alessandrini, Santiago, Chile

Dr. Manuel Costales Latatu, Havana, Cuba

Dr. Galo Ballesteros, Quito, Ecuador

Dr. José Castro-Villagrana, Mexico City, Mexico

Dr. Alejandro Victorica, Montevideo, Uruguay

Dr. Jaime de la Guardia Silva, Panama, Panama

The Presidential Address was presented by Dr. Frederick A. Collier, and the address on the "Value of the Inter-American Congresses" by Dr. Arnaldo Caviglia of Buenos Aires.

Dr. E. E. Charlton, of Schenectady, New York, Head of the X-ray Division, Research Laboratory, General Electric Company, gave an address on "The Role of Electronics in Medicine" at the luncheon at the Lake Shore Club following the inaugural ceremony. The luncheon was attended by 89 delegates and their wives, Regents of the College, and other official guests.

The official themes for the Sixth Inter-American Congress of Surgery were as follows:

Acute Craniocerebral Trauma

Treatment of Injuries in the Region of the Ankle with Complications and Sequelae

Pulmonary Carcinoma

Dr. E. Jefferson Browder of Brooklyn was the Relator, and Dr. Ricardo Morea of Buenos Aires, Argentina; Dr. Italo Alessandrini of Santiago, Chile; and Dr. Pedro Larghero Ybarz of Montevideo, Uruguay, were the Co-relators for the first theme. Dr. Larghero was unable to attend but it was voted at the executive session that his paper be included in the proceedings.

Dr. Harrison L. McLaughlin of New York was the Relator for the second theme and Dr. Carlos E. Ottolenghi of Buenos Aires, Argentina; Dr. Filiberto Oviedo Rodas of La Paz, Bolivia (not present, but paper was read by Dr. David Siles of La Paz); Dr. Orlando Poblete-Nunez of Santiago, Chile; Dr. Galo Ballesteros of Quito, Ecuador; and Dr. Domingo Vazquez Rolfi of Montevideo, Uruguay, were the Co-relators for the second theme.

Dr. Evarts A. Graham of St. Louis, was the Relator, and Dr. Mario M. Brea of Buenos Aires, Argentina; Dr. Antonio Rodriguez Diaz of Havana, Cuba; and Dr. Alejandro Victorica of Montevideo, Uruguay, were the Co-relators for the third theme.

The speaker at the official banquet on Saturday evening, October 22, in the North Ballroom of the Stevens Hotel was Carl R. Gray, Jr., Washington, D.C., Administrator of Veterans Affairs, U.S. Veterans Administration, whose subject was "An International Problem—Veterans' Medical Affairs." Dr. Collier presided and introduced several honored guests who gave brief talks. Among them were Dr. Francisco Villagran, Consul-General of Mexico; Señor Humberto Mendoza, Consul of Chile; Dr. Francis P. Corrigan of New York, Adviser on Latin-American Affairs to the United Nations; Dr. Leo Eloesser of San Francisco who had just returned from an official visit to China; Dr. George F. Lull of Chicago, Secretary and Manager of the American Medical Association; Dr. Arthur C. Bachmeyer of Chicago; Associate Dean of the University of Chicago Medical School; and William Laurence of New York, Science Editor of the New York Times. Entertainment was by Dr. José Gonzales-Mora, formerly of Mexico City and now a field representative for the College, who sang several Spanish songs.

On Sunday the College gave a luncheon at the Pearson Hotel which was attended by fifty delegates and their wives.

All of the sessions except the luncheons and dinner were held at the Murphy Auditorium which was equipped through the courtesy of the International Business Machines Company with the Filene translating system.

SEVENTH INTER-AMERICAN CONGRESS OF SURGERY

It was announced at the executive session on Sunday morning, October 23, that the Seventh Inter-American Congress of Surgery will be held in Lima, Peru, November 19 to 23, 1950. The official themes are as follows:

Traumatisms of the Urethra

Rectosigmoid Cancer

Sequelae of Burns and Their Treatment.

PRESENTATION OF HONORARY FELLOWS

CONVOCATION, OCTOBER 21, 1949

REGENT GRAHAM: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present to you for the Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons, Honoris Causa:

RUSSELL CLAUDE BROCK, London, England

Member of the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, Thoracic Surgeon to the Brompton Chest Hospital and Lecturer in Thoracic Surgery at Guy's Hospital, London. His name is known to thoracic surgeons throughout the world. He was a pioneer in the exposition of the anatomy of the bronchial tree and in the radiological recognition of the segmental bronchi. His work on the pathogenesis of pulmonary abscess is a well-known classic which greatly clarified our previous confused conceptions of how that condition developed. His recognition of and emphasis on the importance of the lymph glands on the middle lobe bronchus laid the foundation for our clear understanding of what is now commonly called the middle lobe syndrome. More recently he has developed and used successfully a new principle in the surgical treatment of pulmonary stenosis.

His first teacher in thoracic surgery has watched with enormous satisfaction and pride the development and accomplishments of his brilliant pupil over a period of nineteen years. This opportunity to present him personally for this Honorary Fellowship is a climax to a long friendship and a source of such gratification to his teacher that only those engaged in education can fully appreciate it.

REGENT OCHSNER: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present for Honorary Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons:

JOSÉ CASTRO-VILLAGRANA, Mexico City, Mexico

Doctor of Medicine; Fellow of the American College of Surgeons; Professor of Therapeutic Surgery, Faculty of Medicine of the National University of Mexico; Chief of the Medical Service, Hospital Juárez; Chief and Surgeon, Medical Service of the Hospital of the Mexican Syndicate; Member of the Academy of Medicine of Mexico, the Brazilian College of Surgeons, and the Mexican National Society of Surgery; author of many articles on surgical and orthopedic subjects; general and orthopedic surgeon of distinction.

REGENT NAFFZIGER: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present for Honorary Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons:

SIR WILLIAM STEWART DUKE-ELDER, London, England

Knight Commander Royal Victorian Order; Master of Arts, Doctor of Science, Philosophy, and Medicine; Bachelor of Surgery; Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England; Director of Research, Institute of Ophthalmology, University of London; Ophthalmic Surgeon, St. George's Hospital, London; author of text books and articles on ophthalmological subjects; recipient of the Nettleship and William Mackenzie Medals, Middlemore and McIntosh Prizes; Gold Medal in Biology and Leng Prize and Medal; Fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine, and Member of Ophthalmological and Biochemical Societies; Surgeon-Oculist to H. M. The King.

REGENT CAVE: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present for Honorary Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons:

MALCOLM C. GROW, Washington, District of Columbia

Doctor of Medicine. Major General Grow entered the military service of the United States in 1917 and saw duty in France during World War I. Since January of 1928 he has had various assignments with the Air Forces, until in June of 1942 he served as Surgeon of the 8th Air Force in the European Theater of Operation. Later, he was designated Surgeon, United States Strategic Air Forces in the European Theater and in Guam. In January of 1946 he was made The Air Surgeon. In 1947 he received the John Jeffries Award, for his study and research on conditions affecting the health and efficiency of air crews at high altitudes. In May of 1949 he became The Surgeon General of the United States Air Force Medical Service. A notable contribution made by the General, and of special interest to surgeons, was his development of body armor for flyers, resulting in the saving of many combat pilots' lives in the past war. He was awarded the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Service Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, and the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

REGENT MASON: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present for Honorary Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons:

JOHN HELLSTRÖM, Stockholm, Sweden

Doctor of Medicine; Professor of Surgery, Karolinska Medical-Surgical Institute of Stockholm; Chief of the Surgical Service of the Karolinska Hospital; Member of the Committee of Sweden, International Society of Surgery; Delegate of Sweden, International Society of Urology; Honorary Member of the British Association of Urological Surgeons; Member of the Italian Urological Society, Nordisk Surgical and Swedish Surgical Societies; Recipient of the Jubilee Medal of the Swedish Medical Association, Legion of the Northern Star with brilliants, and Danish, Finnish, Norwegian and Icelandic Legions of Honor; surgeon and urologist of distinction; author of many articles on surgical, urological, and other subjects.

DR. COLE: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present for Honorary Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons:

SIR JAMES LEARMONTH, Edinburgh, Scotland

Knight Commander Royal Victorian Order; Commander Order of the British Empire; Bachelor of Medicine; Master of Surgery; Fellow of the Royal Society and of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh; Honorary Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England; Regius Professor of Clinical Surgery and Professor of Surgery, University of Edinburgh; Surgeon in Ordinary, Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh; Director of Surgical Units, Municipal General Hospitals, Edinburgh; Member of Association of Surgeons of Great Britain and Ireland, British Association of Urological Surgeons, Royal Society of Medicine, Society of Neurological Surgeons, Society of Surgery of Belgium, and French Association of Surgery; Surgeon to H. M. The King; author of many scientific articles on surgical subjects.

REGENT BLALOCK: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present for Honorary Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons:

RENÉ LERICHE, Paris, France

Professor of the College of France. He was previously Professor of Surgery at Strasbourg and at Lyon. He is an Honorary Fellow in many surgical organizations, including the American Surgical Association and the Royal College of Surgeons of England. Many universities including Harvard have awarded him honorary degrees. His distinctions include that of Officer of the Legion of Honor of France and of the Order of Leopold of Belgium. Only last week at the meeting in New Orleans he was chosen as the President of the next Congress of the International Society of Surgery. He was a pioneer in vascular surgery and in surgery of the sympathetic nervous system and he has continued over many years to make important contributions. It is with great pleasure that I present to you, sir, this distinguished gentleman who is known and respected throughout the world and whose name will survive the passing of time.

REGENT PHEMISTER: Mr. President, on recommendation of the Board of Regents, I have the honor to present for Honorary Fellowship in the American College of Surgeons:

JEAN VERHOOGEN, Brussels, Belgium

Doctor of Medicine; Doctor (Honoris Causa), University of Lyon, France; Honorary Professor of Surgery, University of Brussels; Honorary Surgeon, Saint Jean Hospital; Honorary Fellow, Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh; Member of the Royal Academy of Medicine of Belgium, Association of Surgeons of Great Britain and Ireland, Royal Society of Medicine, Belgian Societies of Urology, Orthopedics, and Surgery, French Association of Surgery, French Society of Urology, and Academy of Surgery of Paris; President of the International Committee, International Society of Surgery; Honorary Distinctions: Civil Cross, 1st Class; Officer of the Order of Leopold; Commander of the Order of the Crown; and Grand Officer, Star of Romania.

PRESIDENT COLLIER: By and with the authority vested in me by the Fellows of the American College of Surgeons, I admit you,

RUSSELL CLAUDE BROCK
JOSÉ CASTRO-VILLAGRANA
SIR WILLIAM STEWART DUKE-ELDER
MALCOLM C. GROW

JOHN HELLSTRÖM
SIR JAMES LEARMONTH
RENÉ LERICHE
JEAN VERHOOGEN

to Honorary Fellowship in the College and to all of the rights, privileges, and distinctions pertaining thereto; and in testimony thereof, I present to you this diploma bearing the seal of the College, and the inscription of its proper officers. Let each candidate be invested with the hood appropriate to the Honorary Fellowship.

PRESENTATION OF INITIATES—CLASS OF 1949

CONVOCATION, OCTOBER 21, 1949

ARTHUR W. ALLEN, M.D., Chairman, Board of Regents: On behalf of the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons, I have the honor to present for fellowship in the College Initiates as follows:

United States.....	878	Australia.....	2	Lebanon.....	1
Territory of Hawaii..	3	China.....	1	Mexico.....	1
Canada.....	29	India.....	2	Uruguay.....	1
Africa.....	2	Ireland.....	1
					921

Mr. President, inasmuch as the Initiates herewith presented have fulfilled all of the requirements for admission and have pledged themselves to live in strict accordance with all of the principles, declarations, and regulations of the American College of Surgeons, on authority of the Board of Regents of the College, I take great pleasure in presenting them for fellowship.

PRESIDENT COLLIER: By and with the authority vested in me by the Fellows of the American College of Surgeons, I admit you to fellowship in the College with all of the privileges pertaining thereto.

ADDRESS OF THE RETIRING PRESIDENT

AN EVALUATION OF FULL-TIME AND GROUP-PRACTICE FOR THE CLINICAL FACULTY OF A MEDICAL SCHOOL*

DALLAS B. PHEMISTER, M.D., F.A.C.S., Chicago, Illinois

IN an effort to bring to you a message worthy of this office and fitting for the changing times in medicine, I shall attempt an evaluation of full-time appointments and group-practice for the clinical faculty of a medical school.

Full-time group-practice has been in operation in private clinics in this country for more than half a century and has achieved outstanding success in a number of institutions, the oldest and largest of which is the Mayo Clinic. Modern business methods of organization and operation have been applied in the care of the sick on both large and small scales with a degree of satisfaction to both patients and medical staffs that leaves no doubt about the great efficiency of the system. All fees for professional services are paid to the clinics, and all expenditures, including remuneration and travel expenses of the professional staff, are paid by the clinics. Some of the large private clinics have at the same time made valuable contributions in the fields of medical research and postgraduate teaching and graduate training of specialists in the various fields of medicine. It is appropriate to emphasize here that these achievements have usually been realized by the utilization of the earnings of the clinics from professional services and not from gifts or grants from outside sources.

Full-time employment of members of the preclinical departments of medical schools was a development of the Nineteenth Century and came into widespread use first in the German universities. It has met with such great success in both teaching and research that at present nearly all preclinical medical education throughout the world is conducted on that basis.

In the early stages of the reformation in medical education in the United States that began about forty years ago, certain universities started full-time appointments for a limited number of the members of the clinical departments in an endeavor to bring their work more nearly in line with that of the full-time members of other university departments. There were two forms of appointments, namely, geographic full-time and strict full-time, and the educational and resident training activities of each form were centered about a teaching service of patients who paid no fees for professional service. Geographic full-time was introduced first by Harvard University and the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in 1913. The professor heading a department and some of his associates were provided with offices in the hospital and spent their time there and in the medical school engaged in academic work for which salaries were paid. They were also privileged to do private practice in the institution and collect their own fees. The plan has since been extended to other clinical units of the Harvard Medical School, and the only limit placed on private practice is the broad statement that "private work is not to interfere with University duties." There is no provision for any portion of the private earnings of a full-time appointee to go to the University or the hospital. This system, in either the original form or variously modified, has been adopted by other universities and today is perhaps the most widely used full-time plan. But under some of the modifications, it is possible for the appointee to spend so much time at private practice in the institution for his own financial profit instead of at teaching and clinical investigation that the academic motive of the plan is greatly weakened. In certain universities there is a limit placed on the amount of income from private practice which may be retained by the clinical appointee, the balance, if any, going to the medical school to be used for a variety of purposes.

Strict full-time was introduced first in 1913 at Johns Hopkins University and shortly afterward at Washington University and Barnes Hospital, assisted in both universities by grants from the General Education Board. Under that plan, the professor heading a clinical department and a few of his associates not only confined their work to the premises of the medical school and hospital but received university salaries as the sole source of remuneration aside from that derived from writing, outside lecturing, and awards which seldom have been substantial. Private practice was not absolutely obligatory, but if for reasons of research or otherwise a full-time staff member elected to care for private patients, as he sometimes did, the professional fees were collected and turned over to the university for use in a variety of ways depending on the institution.

The object of strict full-time was to relieve the appointee of the necessity of earning money by treating private patients who were not used for teaching and were estimated as being too often of little scientific interest. He would be free to teach, direct the work of assistants, and participate in the care of the service patients, with emphasis on those of educational and research value. He would also be able to engage more extensively in laboratory and clinical investigation than under any other system. In the course of twenty years following its introduction, strict full-time was put into effect for a limited group of the clinical faculty of eight universities—one state and seven private. For that purpose, six of the universities received grants-in-aid from the General Education Board. One of the eight subsequently changed to geographic full-time, and two changed to part-time. During this period, the General Education Board also made grants-in-aid to two universities, one private and the other state, for the establishment of geographic full-time, and each has since retained that status.

In the past fifteen years, very few universities have adopted the strict full-time plan with the appointees freed from the necessity of earning money from private practice. This is apparently related to increasing costs and the fact that the General Education Board has not contributed to the establishment of full-time units during the period. But in recent years, some of the universities that are operating most successfully on that plan have expanded it, partly by making greater use of income from professional services for support.

In nearly all universities employing either form of full-time for a part of the clinical faculty, there exists a much larger part-time clinical faculty whose appointments vary widely according to special fields of work, amount of time devoted, scale of remuneration if any, and extramural activities. Also there are large numbers of full-time fellows and members of the house staff; and when they are included, the full-time personnel approaches or exceeds that of the part-time staff.

Despite the great success realized from group-practice in private clinics, it has been little used in the clinical departments of medical schools. At Duke University, some of the members of the clinical faculty receive smaller salaries than others who are on a strict full-time basis, but they carry on group-practice on private patients in Duke Hospital and the Private Diagnostic Clinic. The latter is managed by a business organization independent of the university. The income goes partly for operating expenses, partly for a building fund in lieu of rent to the university, and partly for research in the participating department. The remainder is divided among the department members according to the amount of work done by each individual. A somewhat similar procedure is in operation for the surgical staff of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

At The University of Chicago, the members of the clinical faculty are appointed on a full-time group-practice basis and render services to both paying and non-paying patients in both hospital and out-patient department. All fees for professional services are set and collected by the university and go into a common fund to be used for the best interests of the clinical departments. The salaries of the clinical faculty are paid by the university and are based collectively but not individually on three types of service, namely: academic duties, professional services to patients who do not pay professional fees, and professional services to patients who do pay professional fees. All patients in both hospital and out-patient department, except a small percentage of the private class, are used in the educational program.

After this survey, it is in order to say something of the influence which full-time and group-practice have had on teaching, research, patient care, graduate training of medical specialists and teachers, and on medical economics as it affects both the universities and the full-time members of clinical departments. Obviously this is a difficult task, approached with hesitancy, since there are so many variations of both strict and geographic full-time and the problems are numerous, some being very controversial and still unsolved.

Teaching and research are the two activities in which a university is primarily interested, and but for them it assuredly would never enter the field of clinical medicine. The established facts and disciplines of clinical medicine may be taught equally well by part-time and full-time clinicians provided they are equally qualified, and undergraduate education in clinical medicine is being well done in many schools without full-time members of clinical departments. But undergraduate clinical teaching has been improved by the full-time system because of the greater attention that has been paid to teaching obligations. The best clinical teacher, whether part-time or full-time, is also an investigator, since the student should not only acquire a sound knowledge of practical medicine but also be exposed to the spirit of inquiry and the techniques of advancing medical knowledge. All things considered, the research incentive is more apt to be imparted by the full-time clinician who is also engaged in investigation.

That full-time has increased the quantity and improved the quality of basic research work of the clinical departments of American universities is a fact so well demonstrated that it scarcely calls for further discussion. Many of the most important contributions to clinical medicine during the past thirty years have been made by full-time clinicians. Good laboratories and budgets for research have practically always been provided as an essential condition for the establishment of such appointments. Full-time, the strict more frequently than the geographic, saves time and frees time that can be devoted to research; and both the contractual obligation as well as the desire to investigate assist the appointee in realizing his goal. Part-time staff members more frequently do good investigation if working in a department containing some full-time members. But there are also failures at research under full-time, the fault most frequently of the man but sometimes of the system. If the head of a department is neither provocative nor productive, most of the members may follow in his wake, and no system will make a successful investigator out of a weak or misfit man. But a potentially productive full-time man may fail as a result of inadequacy of supervision or financial support.

The care of patients may be as well done on one type of appointment as another, depending on the amount of time and attention which is devoted to them. Full-time men giving much time to other duties including research may not and should not necessarily be expected to do all-around routine clinical work as well as able and experienced part-time men who, in their daily professional activities, devote much more time to it. But the full-time men who make the most important basic contributions to knowledge usually restrict their clinical and research work to special fields. This plan makes it possible for them to develop a high standard of specialized professional service to patients and at the same time make use of many of the patients for clinical investigation. With specialization in a sufficient number of fields and a liberal amount of overlap, it is thereby possible for the full-time staff to cover all of the work of a clinical department.

The creation of medical specialists in the various clinical fields by the resident training system is on the average better done when at least a part of the clinical faculty are on a full-time basis. If there is a large ward service of patients receiving free professional care, mainly at the hands of the resident staff, the quality of the service is enhanced by the presence of a full-time chief and associates for consultation, assistance, or actual rendering of professional care, such as the performance of a difficult operation. Research can more readily be made a part of the resident training program if there are full-time members of the attending staff who are actively engaged in research. Also, the surest way of making efficient clinical teachers and investigators out of suitable candidates who have completed the resident training is to have them continue full-time work as junior members of the faculty of their respective departments.

The economic problems of the clinical departments are among the most involved and difficult to solve of all problems that arise in the field of university education. It is the desire of the university, which is concerned primarily with teaching and research, to have a financial policy for the clinical departments as nearly the same as that for all other university departments, consistent with the difference between the duties which the two groups are called on to perform. The duties of the full-time members of the clinical departments consist of teaching, research, and the practice of medicine, while the duties of the full-time members of other university departments consist of teaching and research.

Although the practice of medicine is essential for clinical teaching and certain types of research, it is not primarily an academic discipline but the rendering of a human bodily service, frequently of vital concern to the patient and an important responsibility for the doctor. It is the execution of a legally binding agreement between doctor and patient under which the doctor undertakes the investigation and treatment of the disease of the patient. The patient enters the university hospital or out-patient department primarily not to be utilized for academic purposes but for the purpose of having his health improved or restored. If mistakes are made in medical care, whether rendered gratuitously or for pay, the doctor and not the university is held accountable regardless of the nature of his appointment, and he may be sued for them. And although the financial responsibility for malpractice of the strict full-time clinician may be borne by the university, the stain of professional inefficiency or negligence is not removed from him thereby. It is obvious that in these particulars the care of patients differs extensively from the purely educational disciplines of teaching and research, and consequently its financial implications may differ extensively from those of other university departments. The universities clearly recognize the financial difference and the magnitude of responsibility of patient care when, in dealing with paying patients treated by full-time staff members, they usually make charges for professional services commensurate with those made in private practice which are greatly in excess of charges made for instruction. Under this policy the income to the university from the paying-patient part of the practice of a successful full-time clinician who is also a successful teacher and investigator is often very much greater than that from his teaching.

The most desirable plan for the clinical faculty of a university possessing adequate medical school and hospital facilities and desirous of carrying on clinical teaching and research with as nearly as possible the efficiency of the rest of the university, should be some form of full-time appointment and group-practice of medicine on both paying and non-paying patients. The organization of all successful businesses, private medical clinics, and large engineering and law firms calls for full-time employment of the entire personnel on a co-operative or group basis. Why should not the same organization apply to the clinical division of a medical school? It would provide favorable teaching and research facilities for many more members of the clinical departments than exist at the present time. However, such appointments, in some ways, might not be as advantageous as those enjoyed by members, particularly heads of departments, who serve on either a strict or geographic full-time basis.

There are universities in which the existing clinical departments could scarcely be reorganized on this basis for a variety of reasons, such as geographic separation of medical school and hospitals, disproportionate hospital facilities for paying and non-paying patients, an inadequate budget for research, and failure of either the university or the clinical faculty or both to adjust to the financial and educational realities of the situation. However, in some of these institutions it should be possible to realize much of the benefit to be derived from the system, such as utilizing paying patients more fully in the educational program, if the professional services for both paying and non-paying patients were performed by the staff operating on a group-practice basis but organized independently as an association of physicians similar to that of some full-time group-practice private clinics.

There are other universities which possess the physical facilities and financial resources that would make it possible for them to operate the clinical departments on a full-time group-practice basis. But this can only be done if they render professional services in both hospital and out-patient department to both paying and non-paying patients. A great deal of administration by opportunism with unequal and unfair financial remuneration of different members of the same clinical department could thereby be avoided. If only non-paying patients are cared for, it will be financially impossible to operate on this basis since sufficient funds cannot be obtained for the purpose either by private universities from endowment and voluntary contributions or by state universities from tax appropriations. The only feasible way is to derive a large part of the budgets of the clinical departments and of the hospital and out-patient department from fees paid by patients for professional and hospital services. That this can be accomplished has already been demonstrated in The University of Chicago School of Medicine. It has been accomplished mainly because of educational and economic adjustments on the part of both the university and the clinical faculty to the recent economic and social changes that have taken place in the country, and to conditions resulting from changes in the quality of medical care.

Within the past two or three decades, there has been a tremendous advancement in the quality of medical care including that rendered in the teaching hospitals and out-patient departments of medical schools. At the same time, there has been a very appreciable elevation in the economic standards of the masses of the people and also a reduction in the economic standards of the upper levels of society. The quality of professional service in the hospital and out-patient departments at the various levels of accommodations has been high enough, and the number of patients at the different economic levels who are able and willing to pay for such service has been large enough to make it possible for the university to collect money in professional fees mainly from those of moderate and lower income levels to meet the major percentage of the budgetary requirement. An additional economic advantage of utilizing a large percentage of patients of these economic levels is that they pay for hospital service either directly or through various forms of insurance. And with appropriate methods of assignment and control of students and internes, it has been possible to utilize paying patients for routine undergraduate teaching and training, and a part of the training of the resident staff, with just as great a degree of success as that realized with non-paying patients. Junior clerks are assigned to duty in the hospital and senior clerks in the out-patient department. However, it is also essential to have patients who pay no fees for professional services to meet the necessary requirements of the departments for some of the teaching, for types of clinical investigation, and for a part of the training of the resident staff.

The staff of each large department is divided into groups, each group operating an in-patient and an out-patient service and having laboratory facilities and time for research. The organization varies with the departments and divisions, but in surgery the internes and assistant residents rotate from one group to another and are trained under the attending staff members rather than under the chief resident surgeon who operates his own service similar to that of an attending man. Also during the period of resident training each trainee spends at least one year at research.

The most important advantage of full-time group-practice for the clinical faculty is in research and the training of future investigators, since more members in proportion to the number of the staff are given the opportunity of carrying on clinical and experimental investigation than under any other existing system. With proper leadership and a good departmental organization, the basic contributions to knowledge of relatively small departments or specialized divisions may exceed those of very much larger institutions in which there is a less systematic approach to research. The accomplishments in the other educational disciplines have been of such a nature as to commend this type of organization for the clinical departments of a medical school.

The problem of working out a financial arrangement for the care of patients who pay fees for professional services that is satisfactory to both university and members of the clinical faculty is an old one, difficult of solution. The university is interested primarily in education, and prefers clinical faculty members who are primarily interested in clinical education. If a clinician uses university and hospital facilities, which are operated not for profit, to engage in private practice, and if he profits financially far in excess of his educational and research contributions in return, he may be exploiting the university or an affiliated hospital. On the other hand, if the university employs a full-time clinician on a salary to do practice, teaching, and research, all of which he may do efficiently, and in doing so he earns during the part of his time spent at practice on paying patients a sum markedly in excess of what he is paid in total salary, the university may be exploiting him. The clinical staff should not exploit the university nor should the university exploit the clinical staff. If the clinical staff adhere to the policy that their primary goal is educational, and if the university adequately supports them financially in performing the duties and shouldering the responsibilities which are called for, one of which must be the care of patients paying fees for professional services, there is no doubt, as indicated by experience, that the plan will succeed. Salaries may most fairly be based, collectively but not individually, on academic duties, professional services to patients who do not pay professional fees, and professional services to patients who do pay professional fees. The professional fees should go into a common fund to be used for the best interests of the clinical departments.

Under existing economic and social conditions in the United States, the most promising way of gradually placing education in clinical medicine on a uniform basis of organization and on an educational level that most nearly approximates the educational level of other university departments appears to be by the employment of full-time group-practice for the clinical departments of the medical school.

THE FOURTH MARTIN MEMORIAL LECTURE¹

COLLATERAL CIRCULATION, NATURAL AND ARTIFICIAL*

SIR JAMES LEARMONTH, K.C.V.O., C.B.E., F.R.C.S.(Ed.), Edinburgh, Scotland
Regius Professor of Clinical Surgery and Professor of Surgery in the University of Edinburgh

The custom of establishing memorial lectureships in honor of those distinguished in science and in the arts is an old one that is common to many countries. To my mind, it is a wholly admirable way of paying tribute to those who have left us in their debt. The narrow view is sometimes expressed that in the course of time subjects will tend to elude lecturers, but this will happen only if the lectures are restricted in scope. The regulations framed by the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons are generous enough to admit any topic relating to the life and to the work of its distinguished founder—"a scientific subject"—a definition that might well have been Martin's own.

¹The Martin Memorial Lectureship was established by the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons in 1946 as a memorial to Dr. Franklin H. Martin and Isabelle Hollister Martin. The founder of the College and of Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics was joined by his wife in making the College a beneficiary under his will.

I am very conscious of the honor you have done me in asking me to deliver this Martin lecture, and I tender my thanks to you, Mr. Chairman, and to the Regents. You will perhaps forgive me if I find particular pleasure in that provision of the Regents which associates with Franklin H. Martin, Isabelle Hollister Martin, his wife.

I hope that Martin would have approved of my choice of subject—"Collateral Circulation, Natural and Artificial"; at any rate he had a habit of working from first principles. Indeed I chose the subject from among my own interests because I knew that he had devoted considerable thought to it. He would not have devised and practiced his operation of transvaginal ligature of the uterine arteries for excessive bleeding, unless he had been certain that the uterus had a collateral circulation sufficient to maintain its nutrition; and he was to learn by experience that the very richness of this collateral circulation occasionally defeated his ingenious idea.

I quote his analysis of this aspect of his problem from his original paper, published in the American Journal of Obstetrics in April, 1893:

"The first objection which arose in my mind was the fact that there was such intimate anastomosis between the uterine artery and the spermatic or ovarian artery above, that a compensatory supply of blood would soon be derived from that source.

"I met that objection, mentally, with the fact (a) that the compensatory supply of blood must come from a much smaller artery which derives its blood in a single channel from a long distance; (b) that the nerve supply to the trunks of the two arteries were comparatively widely separated, and that by the time the nervous mechanism had communicated the fact of the blood drought in the uterus and had succeeded in beginning the process of correcting it, the abnormal growth would have been changed in nutrition, atrophy would have begun, and in the meantime blood would have been saved.

"The second objection which presented itself to me was the fact that I might not be able to ligate the main artery far enough away from the uterus to prevent collateral circulation being derived from branches given off further back. As collateral circulation is oftenest supplied by arteries arising from the same source or trunk back of the obstruction, this gave me more anxiety than my first objection. Fortunately there were two methods of avoiding the difficulty—viz. (a) by being able to ligate the trunk of the uterine artery far enough away from the uterus to include its uterine branch; and (b) by ligating not only the uterine artery, but by including en masse the whole base of the broad ligament, thereby shutting off all possibility of leaving any anomalous branches, should they exist."

FROM time to time every surgeon, whether he be a general surgeon or a specialist, is confronted with the problem of conserving some tissue, or some organ, whose normal arterial supply has been interrupted by injury, by disease, or by design. I do not underestimate the importance in such circumstances of adequate venous and adequate lymphatic drainage; but my time is limited and fortunately Nature has been more prodigal in the provision of alternative venous and lymphatic routes than she has been in arranging for arterial collaterals to which I shall confine my attention.

It will be wise for me to follow an excellent rule in the consideration of any scientific problem: that is, to begin by defining it. Reduced to its essentials, the problem is to maintain a sufficient flow of blood through the capillaries of the threatened part to suffice for its nutrition when it is at rest, and to encourage the increase of this flow to suffice for its nutrition when it is physiologically active. This is a problem which can be stated in plain terms, for the flow of blood through any given capillary can be expressed according to Poiseuille's law:

where P_1 is the blood pressure at the arteriolar end of the capillary loop, P_2 the blood pressure at the venous end of the loop, r the radius of the capillary, and L its length. Obviously the most important value is r : for if the radius of the capillary is doubled, the flow within it is increased sixteenfold. It is an intriguing thought that at any given time only about 6 per cent of the total blood volume is accommodated in the capillaries: 94 per cent of the blood volume is either approaching them or returning from them. It is with the moiety which is approaching them that we are specially concerned.

We can now define our therapeutic objective: it is, to keep the pressure at the arterial end of the capillary as high as possible, and so to keep its caliber as wide as possible. To do this, in clinical practice we must first arrange for two quite fundamental requisites: (1) we must maintain adequate blood volume, and (2) we must maintain normal or near normal systemic arterial pressure, that is, one which is not being maintained by excessive vasoconstriction to compensate for loss of circulating blood.

The clinical answer to these first demands — if one is necessary — is early and adequate transfusion. Given this, what alternative pathways are available to bring blood to parts threatened by ischemia? We may adopt Mall's classification, and decide that they are large arteries, their main branches, their terminal branches and their arterioles. Moreover, in the majority of cases the blocks with which we are concerned affect large arteries, and so we may concentrate attention upon their main and terminal branches, and upon the arterioles. In order to define our problem more accurately, we must study, for each of these types of vessel, three properties: (1) the volume flow, (2) the internal resistance, and (3) the total cross-sectional area.

The volume of blood passing a given point in an artery varies with the fourth power of its radius (1). This factor is so important that after the interruption of a large artery the surgeon must do everything he can to secure routes of large caliber. On this physical law was based the use of silver tubes in the war of 1914 to 1918, and its variants in the last war—glass tubes and immediate homografts of veins—to replace an obstructed arterial segment or to bridge a missing one. Substitutions of such large caliber permit maximum flow, with minimum resistance. In the absence of such substitutes for arterial segments, we must depend upon the main and terminal branches of arteries. At once difficulties increase, for the volume flow in channels of this smaller size is much reduced, and the internal resistance is increased. Moreover, their total cross-sectional area is not increased sufficiently to offset these disadvantages (1). Also in these vessels volume flow may be reduced and internal resistance increased by the presence of spasm. We must therefore direct clinical treatment to maintaining as wide a caliber as possible in them. This leads me to state a consideration which is of great value in prognosis. If we examine the architectures of collateral circulations, we shall find that they fall into two well defined groups. In the first group, after a short course in alternative channels, the arterial blood is returned into the main artery or arteries of the part (2). There is little loss of volume flow and little loss of blood pressure in overcoming internal resistance in the alternative channels because they are short.¹ Blood reaches the arterioles in quantity and at a high pressure (3). In such cases, the prognosis for the nutrition of the threatened part is good, whether it be the distal part of a limb, or the gut; and the clinical indication of this desirable state of affairs is the immediate or early presence of arterial pulsation distal to the obstructed artery. The pulse returns only when large and short collateral channels are available; when collateral channels are small, the pulse is dissipated, and the considerable differences in their lengths would lead to the arrival at the periphery of a multitude of tiny impulses so out of phase with each other that they would cancel each other out.

In the second group, the arterial blood never returns to the main arteries, usually because they have been blocked by extensive thrombosis. The part depends for its nutrition solely upon main and terminal branches (4). Because of the progressive narrowing of these branches as they approach the periphery, there is great loss of volume flow, and much loss of blood pressure in overcoming their internal resistance (5). Blood reaches the arterioles in reduced quantity and at a low pressure. In such cases, the prognosis for the nutrition of the threatened part is bad, whatever its situation; and the clinical indication of this ominous state of affairs is the absence of arterial pulsation detectable either by the finger or by a more sensitive instrument such as an oscillogram.

We have now followed the arterial supply to the arterioles. In a normal arterial tree this stage is reached after the expenditure of arterial pressure of about 20 millimeters of mercury in overcoming internal resistance (6); when short collateral vessels return the blood to main channels the loss of pressure is but little more, but when small branches alone are available the loss of pressure is considerable. Passage of the blood through the arterioles absorbs much more of its energy; in a normal circulation the fall in pressure thus produced is of the order of 60 millimeters of mercury. This is because the internal resistance in an arteriole is about a thousand times that in an average terminal branch, whereas the total cross-sectional area of the arterioles is only about twenty-five times that of the terminal branches. Landis has shown that the average pressure at the arteriolar end of a capillary loop is 32 millimeters of mercury.

Although the total cross-sectional area of the capillaries is large, the rate of blood flow is so slow that relatively little energy is required to drive blood through them. At the venous end of a capillary loop the average pressure is 12 millimeters of mercury, so that the fall in pressure in the loop is 20 millimeters of mercury. Thus the amount of energy expended in driving blood through the capillaries is of the order of that expended in driving blood from the aorta to the end of the arterial terminal branches.

It is clear, from a consideration of these data, that in order to avoid, to diminish, or to correct ischemia the clinician must try to arrange: (1) that as much blood as possible reaches the arterioles, by keeping the arterial main and terminal branches dilated, and (2) that the arterioles are kept widely dilated, to increase the amount of blood reaching the capillaries.

The remainder of this paper will describe various methods for accomplishing this.

GENERAL METHODS. When arterial obstruction is of slow evolution, enlargement of pre-existing collateral channels may keep pace with the gradual narrowing of the original channel, provided that the needs of the tissues are not increased by increased calls upon their physiological activity. The most remarkable example of such a natural adjustment of which I have knowledge was recorded in 1869 by John Chiene, one of my predecessors in Edinburgh. The origins of the celiac, superior mesenteric, and inferior mesenteric arteries, and the lower part of the abdominal aorta had all undergone gradual obliteration. The supply of all the viscera was maintained by somatic arteries and by the subperitoneal arterial plexus (7).

The majority of you will have encountered less extensive adjustments of this type. If the existence of a block is detected clinically, it is well to prevent consecutive thrombosis by the administration of anticoagulant drugs. In an emergency, such as the lodgment of an embolus, or the sudden closure of an arteriosclerotic artery by thrombus, heparin will be necessary at first, until coagulation can be controlled by a drug effective by mouth—dicumarol, or better its successors tromexan and pelentan. If the process is less rapid one of the latter three drugs is all that is necessary. Even in emergency, with this precaution the collateral channels are usually sufficient for nutrition, and it is fascinating to follow their effectiveness by clinical methods (8).

General measures include rest, which reduces the metabolic needs of the part, and the avoidance of local heating, which increases them.

NONOPERATIVE METHODS FOR DILATING ARTERIAL BRANCHES. The nonoperative methods for dilating arterial branches fall into two groups. First, peripheral vasodilatation may be produced reflexly by heating areas of the body other than the threatened part at a temperature of about 45 degrees C.; and second, it may be induced by the action of drugs. Both these methods have the disadvantage that widespread vasodilatation leads to a fall in peripheral resistance and so to a fall in aortic blood pressure, which is undesirable because it must be compensated for by increase in cardiac output by increase in pulse rate, if peripheral volume flow is to be maintained at a high level. This disadvantage is least if the vasodilatation is induced reflexly, when the fall in blood pressure is slight (9).

To secure the best results in treatment I believe that it is absolutely essential for the vasodilatation to be continuous and prolonged; it is difficult if not impossible to achieve this by the action of drugs. We have found that peripheral vasodilatation may be continuously maintained, with least inconvenience to the patient, by the use of electrically heated gloves. The silk inner-gloves used in military aeroplanes are best, because they need not be removed while the patient is writing or reading; a small pad of chamois leather sewn to the palmar surface of the tip of the index finger makes it easy for the patient to turn pages. By this method vasodilatation may be kept up all day (10). It need not be artificially produced during sleep, because then the vessels are relaxed.

Peripheral vasodilatation may be produced by drugs in several different pharmacological ways. First, the action of the drug may be central, and cause a general decrease in vascular tone; this is one action of the dihydrogenated alkaloids of the dimethylpyruvic acid group, the mixture of which is called hydergine (Sandoz). Second, vasoconstrictor impulses may be blocked at their synapses in sympathetic ganglia, as by tetraethyl ammonium bromide or chloride and by C5 and C6, or at the periphery in the neuromuscular junctions in the walls of the arteries, as by the second action of hydergine. Third, vasodilator nerves may be stimulated as by butylsympatol, which like hydergine acts at the periphery. We have tested these drugs and many others on a number of patients, with the following results:

Hydergine. We have found this to produce (a) slight fall in blood pressure, (b) no change in pulse rate, (c) slight increase in blood flow through subcutaneous vessels, and (d) variable changes in blood flow through muscles. We do not feel that it is of value in the type of case I have been discussing, although in certain other fields it is promising.

*Pentamethonium iodide (C5) and hexamethonium iodide (C6)*¹. Our investigation of these drugs showed that they produced (a) a moderate fall in blood pressure; (b) little change in the pulse rate; (c) a rapid and prolonged increase in the blood flow through the subcutaneous vessels of the lower limbs but no significant increase in the upper limbs; and (d) little change in the blood flow through muscles. We feel that these drugs are unlikely to be useful in securing vasodilatation in the upper limb but may be of considerable value in securing vasodilatation in the lower limb.

Butylsympatol. In our tests this drug has produced: (a) a rise in systolic blood pressure and a slight fall in diastolic blood pressure, (b) no increase in pulse rate, (c) variable changes in blood flow through subcutaneous vessels, and (d) in 50 per cent of cases, an increase in blood flow through muscles. We feel that butylsympatol may have a place in the treatment of threatened ischemia, particularly in improving the blood supply to muscles.

Although drugs may ensure transient increases of peripheral blood flow greater than that resulting from reflex vasodilatation produced by heating indifferent parts, I believe that this is offset by the effect of the continuous mild vasodilatation produced by the latter treatment, which is also infinitely more comfortable for the patient.

OPERATIVE MEASURES. I shall not refer to the correction of intrathoracic anomalies, so ably described by the Martin lecturer of 1948, Dr. Crafoord. I have already referred to the introduction of free venous or arterial grafts. There is also a proce-ture which I have used in one region which utilizes a collateral circulation to return blood to a major vessel of large caliber. It is applicable to other regions.

When the bifurcation of the common carotid artery is obstructed by thrombus, or when it is necessary to resect it in dealing with a tumor, it may be possible to utilize the rich anastomoses between the two external carotid arteries to return blood to the internal carotid. The development of these anastomoses is encouraged, when this is necessary, by performing a preliminary cervical sympathectomy on the normal side. After the common carotid has been ligatured and the bifurcation resected, the uninvolved parts of the external carotid and internal carotid are controlled by clamps, and the ends of the two vessels are united by suture (11); in such a case I have seen pulsation transmitted to the internal carotid.

When a procedure is a success, it is always a salutary and often a chastening experience to make a detailed examination of its possibilities. My colleague in anatomy, Professor Brash, found such considerable variations in the size of the internal and external carotids, that their union by suture might not be always practicable (12). Moreover we were made aware of a potential barrier to the collateral circulation after ligature of the common carotid, in the presence of an intra-arterial septum at the bifurcation, which might amount to as much as 12 millimeters in length.

Lastly there is the operation of sympathectomy, which includes division of the vasoconstrictor nerves destined for the precarious region of the body. This procedure is based on sound physiological principles. The area in which constrictor tonus is released is a limited one. Over the remainder of the body constrictor tonus maintains the peripheral resistance at normal values, with the result that the blood pressure is maintained at its normal value. As we have seen, this and the maintenance of normal blood volume must be the first cares of the surgeon. The only contraindication to the operation is the existence of organic disease in the arterial tree of the threatened part, which deprives the vessels of their capacity to dilate and may even convert them into rigid tubes. Its immediate postoperative result is to supplement the natural resources of the body against the threat of ischemia at the time when aid is most valuable: for the nutritional fate of ischemic parts is rapidly settled, and ischemic pathological changes are largely irreversible. The objection that after sympathectomy blood is deflected from muscles to subcutaneous vessels does not withstand investigation (13). Its remote result is to retain for the area a most valuable proportion of the immediate postoperative increase in blood flow, assessed with due regard to the age of the patient and to the pathological nature of the original obstructing lesion.

And so I come to the end of my lecture. In surgery, as in any other science, it is wise to resist temptation to oversimplify any problem, however easy its solution may appear at first sight. I chose this problem, with the approval of the then chairman of the Board of Regents, nearly two years ago, because I thought it would have intrigued Franklin H. Martin. But the particular problem to be investigated is a secondary matter. The method of approach is inviolable, and my acquaintance with American surgeons and with American surgical literature leads me to hope that you will have been sympathetic to mine.

SUMMARY

1. The physics of the arterial circulation before and after obstruction of a main artery is described.
2. The task of a collateral circulation is to carry blood to the capillaries in quantity and at a high pressure.
3. This is best accomplished when the alternative routes return blood to the main arteries distal to a block.
4. General measures to encourage collateral circulation include rest, anticoagulant drugs, and avoidance of local heat to the ischemic part.
5. The collateral circulation may be encouraged artificially by reflex vasodilatation, by drugs, or by operation. The advantages and disadvantages of each of these methods are discussed.

NOTE: Sir James Learmonth's address, published in the April, 1950, issue of Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics, included 13 charts and cuts which were presented as illustrations at the time the address was delivered in Chicago. The legends follow:

FELLOWSHIP ADDRESS

SCIENCE IN SURGERY—STOP AND LOOK AND LISTEN*

THE LORD WEBB-JOHNSON, K.C.V.O., C.B.E., F.A.C.S. (Hon.), London, England
Immediate Past President, Royal College of Surgeons of England

FIRST of all I wish to thank the Board of Regents for the honour they have done me and for their generous provision for my journey and my sojourn among you. I am impressed by the imagination and vision which prompted the gift by the Johnson & Johnson Research Foundation for this purpose. I venture to express the hope that the Foundation will provide a permanent endowment to finance a regular exchange of visits by the Presidents or Representatives of this College and the Surgical Colleges of Great Britain. There is no doubt that great benefit would result.

I am extremely happy to be addressing the Fellows of this College once again. I have the pleasantest memories of my previous visits to Chicago and was present at the Stone-laying of the Murphy Memorial Hall. I cannot but be impressed by the distinguished record of the College since that date. I am acutely conscious of the new faces on this platform since I had the honour to address the Clinical Congress twenty-six years ago. I see among them, aye, even among the younger of them, those whose names are household words in the world of surgery. This augurs well for the future of surgery in this Continent. It is also a most remarkable testimonial and tribute to the dear friends and great leaders and teachers who were here when I last visited you. We shall not see their faces again—but, in a higher and nobler sense, in their pupils and successors, are they not with us today? Honour to their names!

It was but yesterday that we commemorated our most recent loss, and we may learn from Irvin Abell's life that by so much as we give of ourselves, our labour, and our loyalty to things which have immortality, by so much shall we increase the joy of life and remove the sting from death. For centuries after we have gone, this College will continue and it will increase the joy of life for us to work in its service.

In giving the Fellowship Address in this College, of which I am proud to be an Honorary Fellow, my inclination is to tell you something about my College at home and about our Fellowship which is awarded on quite a different basis from yours.

I trust that no one will think that I am trying to make comparisons, or imagining that we can adopt each other's plans or procedures, though, of course, each College can learn from the other. Conditions for the English College are absolutely different from yours—mainly owing to the different sizes of our countries. The total area of England is less than the drainage area of Lake Michigan; and the distance from London to the Scottish border, or to Dublin or to Paris, is less than that from the south to the north of the great inland lake at your doors.

The Fellowship of the Royal College of Surgeons of England was instituted in 1843, over a hundred years ago, a few years before the real birthday of modern surgery, which may be regarded as dating from when anaesthesia was established. From the first, the Regulations have required the passing of two examinations, the Primary and the Final. The subjects of the Primary Examination are anatomy, pathology, and applied physiology. The Fellowship of the English College, therefore, is attained in much the same way as the Diploma of the American Examining Board in Surgery.

No one can look into the seeds of time and see which grain will grow and which will not, but I venture to drop one grain and make the suggestion that we might aim at complete reciprocity between the Colleges of Surgeons of English-speaking countries in regard to the Primary Examination for higher surgical diplomas.

We attach great importance to the Primary Examination and to the additional postgraduate training in the basic medical sciences which it involves because we feel that a greater familiarity with these subjects will be likely to encourage the scientific approach to surgery, and enable a surgeon not only to "stop, and look, and listen," but to do so intelligently.

The diploma of Fellow which has contributed so largely to the prestige of the English College was instituted mainly owing to the initiative, exertions, and influence of Sir Benjamin Collins Brodie, who was then Vice President and the following year became President of the College. You may not take the same delight in eponyms as we do, but the name is well known to all students in my Country and may be familiar to you from being attached to "Brodie's Abscess" and other pathological conditions.

Brodie was a great man in the history of British Surgery. In this respect he satisfies all criteria, especially in that he so handled matters during his life that the course of after events has been continuously affected by what he did.

He was the first Surgeon to attain the eminent position of President of the Royal Society. The immortal Lister was the second Surgeon to be elected to that famous Chair, and he succeeded, more than any other person who has yet lived, in applying science directly to the saving of human life. Brodie, however, may be said to have been the one who succeeded more than all his predecessors in connecting the pursuit of surgery with the cultivation of science in general.

It was John Hunter who first established the connection between surgery and the science of physiology, and who thus became, as his monument in Westminster Abbey justly styles him, "The Founder of Scientific Surgery." But it was Brodie's peculiar glory, his main title to posthumous fame, to have carried this connection further and to have shown how much the practice of surgery may gain from the possession by its practitioners of a competent acquaintance with physical science in general.

In one of his Presidential Addresses to the Royal Society, Brodie said: "The first step in all physical investigations, even in those which admit of the application of mathematical reasoning, and the deductive method afterwards, is the observation of natural phenomena; and the smallest error in such observation in the beginning is sufficient to vitiate the whole investigation afterwards."

In another Presidential Address, Brodie observed that: "Physical observations more than anything else help to teach us the actual value and the right use of the imagination—of that wonderful faculty which . . . properly restrained by experience and reflection, becomes the noblest attribute of man—the source of poetic genius; the instrument of discovery in science, without the aid of which Newton would never have invented fluxions, nor Davy have decomposed the earths and alkaloids, nor Columbus have found another Continent beyond the Atlantic Ocean.”

Is it any wonder, in view of his opinions, that Brodie, when instituting the Fellowship of the English College, required from candidates for this high diploma proof of advanced knowledge of the basic medical sciences before admission to the Final Examination? He planned so wisely that the By-Laws governing the Regulations for the Fellowship have needed little modification since they were drafted over one hundred years ago under Brodie’s guidance. Moreover, they have been adopted by other Surgical Colleges and Examining Bodies.

In the words of its Founder, the object of the Fellowship was: “To insure the introduction into the profession of a number of young men who may be qualified to maintain its scientific character, and will be fully equal to its higher duties as hospital surgeons, teachers and improvers of physiological, pathological and surgical science afterwards.”

We respect, and endeavour to keep constantly before us, the ideals which prompted Brodie; and, at the termination of each day’s viva voce parts of the Final Fellowship Examination, the successful candidates are invited to meet the Court of Examiners. The Chairman, after the Roll has been called and allegiance has been promised, then addresses them as follows: “It is my pleasant duty to inform you that your examinations have been satisfactory to this Court. Your success will be reported to the Council of the College with whom it rests to confer on you, when eligible, the Diploma of Fellow. We congratulate you on obtaining the highest diploma which this College can confer, and we hope that the possession of this distinction will be an incentive to you to cultivate the science as well as the practice of surgery.”

I urge the younger Fellows of this College to bear that “Charge” in mind and also Osler’s words of nearly sixty years ago: “Scan the lives of, say, twenty of the men most prominent in special lines of medicine and surgery today in this Country, and you will find, with scarcely an exception, the early days devoted to anatomical, physiological, or pathological studies. They rose high because their foundations were deep.”

We pride ourselves that we live in an age of science, but do not let us forget history and the past—the past that is always with us, never to be escaped, for it alone is enduring. The scientific method, based upon observation and experiment, was the intellectual habit of the Greeks. It vanished in the Dark Ages, for, like beauty and culture, it was swept away by the barbarian tidal wave that swamped Europe. In the words of Gibbon, “In the revolution of ten centuries not a single discovery was made to exalt the dignity or promote the happiness of mankind.” The scientific method reappeared with the Renaissance, when facts re-established their birthright, and it has progressed ever since. The great anatomists laid the foundations which paved the way for Harvey and brought about a new surgery—founded on nature and experiment. Harvey compelled a return to the experimental methods of the Greeks and of Galen—to the method of experimental science which beyond all shadow of doubt is the most effective implement for the advancement of knowledge ever invented by man.

The excellent combination of gifts that distinguished Harvey were constructive imagination, the power of deduction, self-criticism, and such patience in labour as few men have possessed. His constant injunction was “to search and study out the secrets of nature by way of experiment.” On this occasion it is appropriate to recall his encouraging and stimulating advice to a young man: “Dei laboribus omnia vendunt,” —“For toil the Gods sell everything.”

Though he was an iconoclast, Harvey laid no profane hands on any symbol in which the spirit of truth lingered. He brought his new knowledge into the existing structure of knowledge, and reanimated existing institutions. In this respect he showed himself wiser than his great contemporary, Oliver Cromwell.

Some politicians of today might learn from Harvey's method, and bear in mind the importance of the biblical teaching to hold fast that which is good. They might also remember with profit the words of Edmund Burke: "A disposition to preserve and an ability to improve, taken together, would be my standard for a statesman. Everything else is vulgar in the conception, perilous in the execution."

It was in the latter half of the 18th Century that John Hunter founded the science of pathology and comparative anatomy, and so, for the first time, made possible a truly scientific surgery, based upon an accurate knowledge of the processes of disease and repair. I have put in the hands of each one of you an exact replica of Hunter's letter to Jenner which contains his famous question: "Why think, why not try the experiment?"¹ This was the keynote of the great flood of experimental research in the 19th Century, on the findings of which in pathology, physiology, and bacteriology all the stupendous surgical progress of the last hundred years is based.

I naturally place Hunter above all other inspiring leaders, for his wonderful Museum was entrusted by Parliament to the Royal College of Surgeons of England. It is an everlasting possession—not the show-piece of an hour. We are but the custodians and hold it for British Medicine and indeed for the Medical World. But, as Trotter said in his Hunterian Oration, Hunter's fame does not rest on the Museum that bears his name. He was a consistent and expert user of the experimental method in the study of living processes, and it is on this fact that his fame essentially and ultimately rests. It was by impressing this method on his pupils and successors that his services to science and to surgery have had their most extended and their richest effects.

So long as surgery continues, Hunter's influence will be felt. He is a quickening spirit among surgeons today for, as Paget said, "The influence of such men as Hunter reaches far beyond the time and space of their conscious activity. Their true thoughts live after them. Thus when we honour the memory of Hunter we honour not only that which is passed, but that which is still present—a still abiding power doing good."

Hunter's greatest follower was Joseph Lister, whose patient labours have been rewarded with a success to which all the world pays tribute and which crowns his head with imperishable laurels. He, too, had a scientific training, and made a scientific approach to surgery.

After this peep into history, it must be clear to all that those aspiring to high places in surgery should be educated soundly in science. Those at the end of the trainee stage have factual equipment and technical skill, but if they are to rise high, or even be worthy of their place, they must have the foundations of a scientific training.

To obtain factual equipment they have been disciplined and taught. They have had knowledge imparted to them by teachers, and have not been given their own choice to develop their own way—to learn what they wanted to learn and ignore things they found difficult or tiresome. Experiments of free choice in education may be all very well in some spheres, but in the practice of surgery the public must be protected, and Surgical Colleges must guarantee that practitioners have the requisite knowledge.

To obtain technical skill surgeons have had to be trained—they have had to cultivate aptitude, and for that they have been dependent on opportunities and on themselves. The method of apprenticeship is the keynote of training in a practical art, because, besides being brought into familiar contact with his material, the trainee has before him the example of master exponents of the actual things he himself will ultimately have to do.

A large part of surgery is essentially a practical art. A surgeon must always bend his mind to particular cases and in many instances he must proceed at once to treatment. Intuition may lead him, but intuition is only inference from experience—stored, but not actively recalled. The surgeon may often stand confidently between life and death provided that he has skill and judgment, and the greater of these is judgment. Surgical skill has reached such a stage of development—some have been so unwise as to use the word perfection—that there seems no limit to what may be attempted and, indeed, achieved. It is therefore all the more important to develop character and judgment, and to bear in mind that the feasibility of an operation is not always the best indication for its performance.

In the practice of his art a surgeon might be compared with an actor—a prima donna, a prima ballerina, or a matador—who “struts and frets his hour upon the stage, and then is heard no more.” But the work of the artist is not lost, for in the arts all improvements and discoveries that are logical are carried on by someone else; so nothing is lost except the man himself. It has been said that only Art is Immortal, but the reference was to the Creative Arts. Mastership of a practical art, such as surgery, does not lead to immortality. The scientific approach to surgery can, however, lead to immortality, and hence men like Harvey, Hunter, and Lister hold their place among The Immortals.

The properly educated surgeon must have had his intellectual curiosity awakened. It will go on developing, for the practice of surgery encourages intellectual curiosity in those who are awake and aware. A surgeon's education has been faulty if he has not been taught to try to test things for himself, and not merely accept them from others.

This criterion might be applied with advantage to all education, for the method avoids the mass-produced units which are the easiest possible prey for what we have seen come very close to us in the last twenty years. The dictatorial method of education produces the sort of man or woman who is the ideal victim of mass propaganda and mass hysteria. It was the kind of answer of the teacher “Because I told you so” to the inquiry of “Why?” which produced a type of education which made so many countries on the Continent of Europe such easy victims to dictatorship and propaganda.

Lastly, to produce the best type of surgeon, the community spirit must be inculcated and preserved, and this your College helps to do. This is no new idea, for Harvey gave his patrimonial estate to provide an annual feast at the Royal College of Physicians of London to perpetuate a spirit of concord and social fellowship amongst his brethren.

In this respect the task of the English College is much easier than yours because of the size of our country and the unrivalled attractions of the Capital City. For some time we have been following a policy of providing facilities and amenities for young surgeons, especially those from the Commonwealth, and from the United States and other countries, who come to London for post-graduate study. It is our fervent hope that all Fellows of this College will regard the Royal College of Surgeons as their natural academic and spiritual home whenever they visit London.

The Royal College of England is now a teaching body. Lectures are delivered regularly at the College, and whole-time practical courses in the basic medical sciences are held throughout the year. But the College is also a Collegiate Home. Common Rooms and a Refectory are provided. We have recently opened residential accommodation on a small scale—a precursor of what we shall provide when we can build the Residential College in the precincts of the academic headquarters. This is a development which has been made possible by the gift of a quarter of a million pounds by Lord Nuffield. Graduate students will be able not only to have free access at all times to our unique museums, and to the library and laboratories, but will also have the opportunity to live together, and to meet socially the principal surgeons of Great Britain as well as distinguished teachers from other countries who may be visiting London. Thus they will absorb something of the spirit of the collegiate life of our older residential universities, and they will make contacts with leaders of their profession which will be a stimulus to them and their pupils throughout their lives, however many thousands of miles away from London they may be.

It is impossible to overrate what it may mean to graduates at home or from overseas to have these opportunities. If such amenities had been available when I was a young graduate, I might have sat next to the immortal Lister and others of the great men of my youthful days.

Now, it is not given to all of us to have the opportunity or the aptitude for experimental research, nor are all discoveries made on the laboratory bench. But if you have a scientific training, you can add to knowledge by careful observation. While looking for the new, however, it is well to exercise a wise conservatism. The modern citizen, like the Athenian in the time of St. Paul, is perpetually desiring "to hear some new thing," but, as extreme views are put forward or waves of enthusiasm develop for some particular line of treatment, remember the advice of the French savant Descartes and give unqualified assent to no propositions but those the truth of which is so clear and distinct that they cannot be doubted. Also bear in mind Oliver Wendell Holmes' description of what he learned during his studies in Paris when the Paris School was at the height of its reputation: "Do not take authority when you can have facts, do not guess when you can know, and do not think a man must take physic because he is sick."

Now let me tell you what Rudyard Kipling said when addressing the Fellows of the Royal College of Surgeons of England: "Your calling exacts the utmost that man can give—full knowledge, exquisite judgment, and skill in the highest—to be put forth, not at any self-chosen moment, but daily at the need of others." That gives you a key to your heavy load of responsibility to your patients.

Your responsibility to your profession is to waste no opportunity for observation. Every man is a debtor to his profession, and must endeavour to honour that debt. If you have anything to communicate to your colleagues, also bear in mind the words of Starling, the great physiologist: "Without appreciation of language clearness of thought is impossible, and literary form is one of the best guarantees of good reasoning. Even a scientific article could and should be beautiful in its fitness of expression, and it will not lose in its usefulness if it pleases the ear as well as satisfies the reason."

In making clinical observations do not too readily accept the conclusion of those who maintain that to get an accurate knowledge of any disease it is necessary to study a very large series of cases. In some hands it has undoubtedly proved an invaluable instrument of research. But do not think that without large numbers useful observations, even fundamental observations, cannot be made.

One of my dearest friends and one of the greatest figures in American Surgery—George Crile—once said to me: "In surgery it is only numbers that count." I strongly disagreed with him, and reminded him that the fundamental conclusions of Trotter on pharyngeal growths, for example, showed that the few cases he had at his disposal, far from adequate by Crile's standards, afforded him all the observations he needed. In spite of his small numbers the conclusions he drew therefrom have stood the test of time.

And now I must make an end, but I would like to observe before closing, that, although science in the surgeon's hands is beneficent, all thinking men are worried by the breakdown of the world's morality, due to the changes in the way of life of nations and to the terrible concentration of power in the hands of individuals. This is one of the results of the labours of the scientist. But the evil wrought by science springs, not from any intrinsic evil in science itself, but from its misuse by men who do not really understand what science is. As Osler said, however: "To us whose work is with the sick and suffering, the great boon is the fact that the leaves of the tree of science have been for the healing of the Nations."

Remember that throughout the ages a golden truth is blazoned—the path of progress is by experiment, research, and trial. So in the words of Rudyard Kipling, which he gave to me for the Royal College of Surgeons before they were published:

Send here the bold, the seekers of the way—
The passionless, the unshakable of Soul,
Who serve the inmost mysteries of man's clay,
And ask no more than leave to make them whole.

THE LETTER FROM JOHN HUNTER TO EDWARD JENNER

There follows the text of the letter from John Hunter to Edward Jenner, an exact replica of which was made available by The Lord Webb-Johnson to each one in the audience at the Convocation of the American College of Surgeons:

TEXT OF THE LETTER¹

Dear Jenner,

I rec'd yours in answer to mine, which I should have answer'd. I own I suspected it would not do; yet as I did intend such a scheme, I was inclinable to give you the offer. I thank you for your Exp^t [experiment] on the Hedge Hog; but why do you ask me a question, by the way of solving it. I think your solution is just; but why think, why not try the Exp^t [experiment]. Repeat all the Exp^t [experiments] upon a Hedge Hog as soon as you receive this, and they will give you the solution. Try the heat: cut off a leg at the same place, cut off the head, and expose the heart and let me know the result of the whole.

I am Dear Jenner
Ever yours
JOHN HUNTER

PRESENTATION OF THE BRODIE MEDAL

By THE LORD WEBB-JOHNSON

Mr. President, it is my privilege to present to the American College of Surgeons a copy in bronze of the gold medal that was presented to Sir Benjamin Collins Brodie on his retirement from St. George's Hospital.

Obverse: (Portrait head) Brodie (signed) W. Wyon R. A.

GREETINGS FROM THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS OF ENGLAND

Presented by THE LORD WEBB-JOHNSON

The President and Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England desire to extend their most cordial greetings to their Colleagues of the American College of Surgeons on the occasion of the visit of The Lord Webb-Johnson to the Annual Meeting.

It has been a great privilege to us in the last few years to welcome several of your most distinguished Fellows and we hope that many more will follow.

We are ever mindful of the magnificent gifts which your Fellows have made to our College in recent years and it is the very sincere wish of the Council that the cordial relations which exist between the two Colleges may always continue.

(Seal)

(Signed) CECIL WAKELEY, President.

CONVOCATIONS

THE first convocation of the College was held in Chicago on November 13, 1913. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Sir Rickman Godlee, Bt., K.C.V.O., LL.D., F.R.C.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. Fellowships were conferred upon 1,059 initiates. Sir Rickman presented to the College the following greetings from the Royal College of Surgeons:

"We, the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, have heard with much interest of the approaching inauguration of the American College of Surgeons. We hereby convey to it our hearty good wishes, and express the hope that it may have a successful career and fill a position beneficial alike to the Profession and to the Community.

"We cannot forget the important advances in the Science and Art of Surgery, achieved by many distinguished Surgeons in the Continent of America during the past, and are proud to have enrolled upon our list of Honorary Fellows the names of some of the most active workers in these fields at the present day.

"In accepting the invitation for our President to take part in the opening Ceremony, we desire to show how we appreciate the intention of the American College to strengthen the bonds that already unite the Medical Profession amongst English-speaking peoples. It is a sentiment which always meets with a cordial response in this country, and it is one which this College will endeavor to support by all the means in its power.

"In witness whereof we have caused the Common Seal of the College to be hereunto affixed this 9th day of October, 1913. President RICKMAN J. GODLEE FREDERIC EVE."

Vice-Presidents { G. H. MAKINS

The second convocation was held in Philadelphia on June 22, 1914. Fellowships were conferred upon 1,065 initiates. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Dr. James G. Mumford of Clifton Springs, New York.

The third convocation was held in Washington, D. C., on November 16, 1914. Fellowships were conferred upon 646 initiates. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Dr. Edward H. Bradford, Dean of Harvard Medical School.

The fourth convocation was held in Boston on October 29, 1915. Fellowships were conferred upon 484 initiates. The Fellowship Address was delivered by President E. J. James of the University of Illinois.

The fifth convocation was held in Philadelphia on October 27, 1916. The Fellowship Address was delivered by President John H. Finley of the University of the State of New York, and fellowships were conferred upon 228 initiates.

The sixth convocation was held in Chicago on October 26, 1917. Fellowships were conferred upon 313 initiates, 37 of these being in the regular service of the United States Army and 25 in the regular service of the United States Navy. The occasion was a great military gathering, hundreds of medical officers being present on leave. The Fellowship Address, entitled "What Is the War About?" was delivered by Sir Berkeley Moynihan, K.C.M.G., F.R.C.S., Colonel in the Royal Army Medical Corps.

The seventh convocation of the College was scheduled to be held in New York on the evening of October 25, 1918. On October 12, because of the prevalence of influenza throughout Canada and the United States, the Regents considered it imperative to cancel the meeting.

In the meantime the surgeons from England, France, and Italy who had accepted the invitation of the College to take part in the Clinical Congress program had sailed for New York. These surgeons were Sir Thomas Myles, C.B., F.R.C.S., Dublin, Ireland, Honorary Surgeon to His Majesty King George, Consulting Surgeon, Irish Command, Member, Board of Consultants, British War Office, and Senior Surgeon, Richmond Hospital, Dublin; Lieutenant Colonel Raffaele Bastianelli, F.R.C.S., Italian Army Medical Corps, Rome, Italy, Associate Professor of Clinical Surgery, Royal University, and Surgeon-in-Chief, First Pavilion, Hospital Policlinico Umberto I; Major Pierre Duval, French Army Medical Corps, Paris, France, Consulting Surgeon to Seventh Army, Honorary Professor, Faculty of Medicine, Paris, and Surgeon to hospitals of Paris; Colonel George Ernest Gask, C.M.G., D.S.O., F.R.C.S., London, England, Consulting Surgeon, British Expeditionary Forces, Joint Lecturer on Surgery, St. Bartholomew's Hospital, University of London, and Surgeon-in-Charge of Out-Patients, St. Bartholomew's Hospital; Major George Grey Turner, F.R.C.S., Royal Army Medical Corps, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, Lecturer on Surgery, University of Durham, and Honorary Assistant Surgeon, Royal Infirmary, Newcastle-upon-Tyne; and Major Adrien L. P. Piolet and Major Henri Beclere, both of the French Army Medical Corps. Lieutenant Colonel George E. Brewer of New York, at the time in service in France, came with these guests as the official representative of the Medical Corps with the American Expeditionary Forces.

That the value of the messages which these surgeons brought from the allied lines at the front might not be lost as a result of the canceled meeting, the College arranged visits to as many of the surgical centers as possible. These visits included Washington where the foreign guests were greeted by President Woodrow Wilson; Camp Greenleaf, Georgia, where approximately 1,500 doctors were in training; Minneapolis, Rochester, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and New York.

The seventh convocation was held in New York on October 24, 1919, when 325 initiates from the preceding year were formally admitted to fellowship together with 213 new initiates. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Sir Anthony Bowlby, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., F.R.C.S., of London, Senior Vice President of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

The eighth convocation was held in Montreal on October 15, 1920, this being the first convocation to be held in the Dominion of Canada. Fellowships were conferred upon 691 initiates. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Sir William Taylor of Dublin, Ireland.

At the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 11, 1920, the first John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Sir Berkeley Moynihan, K.C.M.G., C.B., of Leeds, England. At the same meeting the Great Mace, described on a succeeding page, was presented to the American College of Surgeons by the Consulting Surgeons of the British Armies in the World War.

The ninth convocation was held in Philadelphia on October 28, 1921. Fellowships were conferred upon 724 initiates. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Sir Harold Stiles, K.B.E., of Edinburgh, Scotland. An interesting feature of the convocation was the ceremony incident to the conferring of Honorary Fellowships in the Royal College of Ireland upon eight distinguished American surgeons.

The second John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Dr. William J. Mayo at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 24.

The tenth convocation of the College was held in Boston on October 27, 1922. Fellowships were conferred upon 756 initiates. Of these initiates, 661 were from the United States, 63 from Canada, 17 from Cuba, 13 from South America, 1 from the Dominican Republic, and 1 from China. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Professor Raffaele Bastianelli, F.R.C.S. (Eng.) Hon., of Rome, Italy.

The third John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Professor Bastianelli at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 23.

The eleventh convocation of the College was held in Chicago on October 26, 1923. Fellowships were conferred upon 531 initiates. Of these initiates, 453 were from the United States, 29 from Canada, 2 from the Canal Zone, 1 from the Republic of Panama, 11 from Cuba, 28 from South America, 4 from China, 1 from England, 1 from India, and 1 from South Africa. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Sir William I. de Courcy Wheeler, President of the Royal College of Surgeons, Dublin, Ireland.

The fourth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Dr. George Crile of Cleveland, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 23.

The twelfth convocation of the College was held in New York City on October 24, 1924. Fellowships were conferred upon 561 initiates. Of these initiates, 481 were from the United States, 18 from Canada, 1 from Alaska, 6 from Puerto Rico, 2 from Cuba, 2 from the Dominican Republic, 4 from China, 1 from Central India, 1 from the Republic of Panama, 14 from Central America, 5 from South America, 16 from Australia, 9 from New Zealand, and 1 from the Fiji Islands. The Fellowship Address was delivered by W. W. Chipman, Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics, McGill University Faculty of Medicine.

The fifth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Mr. Norman D. Royle, M.B., Ch.M., and Mr. John I. Hunter, M.D., Ch.M., Sydney, Australia, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 20.

The thirteenth convocation of the College was held in Philadelphia on October 30, 1925. Fellowships were conferred upon 533 initiates. Of these initiates, 453 were from the United States, 9 from Canada, 1 from Australia, 3 from New Zealand, 2 from China, 1 from England, 1 from Ireland, 1 from Iran (Persia), 5 from Central America, 51 from South America, 2 from Cuba, 2 from the Dominican Republic, 1 from Mexico, and 1 from Puerto Rico. The Fellowship Address was delivered by The Right Hon. Lord Dawson of Penn, London, England, G.C.V.O., K.C.M.G., C.B., M.D., London, Physician-in-Ordinary to His Majesty the King.

The sixth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, Bt., M.S., F.R.C.S., of London, England, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 26.

The fourteenth convocation of the College was held in Montreal on October 29, 1926. Fellowships were conferred upon 448 initiates. Of these initiates, 421 were from the United States, 19 from Canada, 1 from China, 1 from Korea, 1 from New Zealand, 1 from Brazil, 1 from Cuba, and 3 from Guatemala. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Professor Sir Ewen J. Maclean, M.D., F.R.C.P., London, F.R.S., Edinburgh.

The seventh John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Archibald Young, Regius Professor of Surgery, University of Glasgow, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 25.

The fifteenth convocation of the College was held in Detroit on October 7, 1927. Fellowships were conferred upon 597 initiates. Of these initiates, 583 were from the United States, 8 from Canada, 3 from Cuba, 1 from the Virgin Islands, 1 from the Republic of Colombia, and 1 from Turkey. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Clarence Cook Little, A.B., LL.D., S.D., President of the University of Michigan.

The eighth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Sir John Bland-Sutton, Bt., of London, England, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 3.

The sixteenth convocation of the College was held in Boston on October 12, 1928. Fellowships were conferred upon 673 initiates. Of these initiates, 643 were from the United States, 11 from Canada, 1 from Australia, 1 from Bermuda, 4 from Brazil, 1 from China, 1 from Jamaica, 6 from Mexico, 2 from Newfoundland, 1 from Siam, 1 from Wales, and 1 from Argentina. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Dr. William J. Mayo, Rochester, Minnesota.

The ninth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Professor Vittorio Putti of Bologna, Italy, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 8.

The seventeenth convocation of the College was held in Chicago on October 18, 1929. Fellowships were conferred upon 669 initiates. Of these initiates, 642 were from the United States, 11 from Canada, 1 from Australia, 1 from France, 7 from Hawaii,

1 from India, 1 from Japan, 1 from Iran (Persia), 2 from South America, 1 from Siam and 1 from Puerto Rico. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Glenn Frank, Litt.D., LL.D., President of the University of Wisconsin.

The tenth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by D. P. D. Wilkie, M.D., F.R.C.S., of Edinburgh, Scotland, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 14.

The eighteenth convocation of the College was held in Philadelphia on October 13, 1930. Fellowships were conferred upon 654 initiates. Of these initiates, 630 were from the United States, 20 from Canada, 2 from Hawaii, 1 from Mexico, and 1 from South America. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Dr. George Crile, Cleveland, Ohio.

The eleventh John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Professor George Grey Turner of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 13.

The nineteenth convocation of the College was held in New York on October 16, 1931. Fellowships were conferred upon 642 initiates. Of these initiates, 619 were from the United States, 7 from Canada, 4 from Hawaii, 1 from the Philippine Islands, 1 from Alaska, 1 from Australia, 1 from China, 1 from England, 1 from Guatemala, 1 from India, 2 from Mexico, 1 from Panama, and 2 from Siam. The Fellowship Address was delivered by James R. Angell, LL.D., Ph.D., President of Yale University.

The twelfth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Arthur H. Burgess, LL.D. (Hon.), M.Sc., M.B., Ch.B. (Manch.), F.R.C.S. (Eng.), L.R.C.P. (Lond.), of Manchester, England, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 12.

The twentieth convocation of the College was held in St. Louis on October 21, 1932. Fellowships were conferred upon 633 initiates. Of these initiates, 623 were from the United States, 2 from Canada, 1 from Alaska, 1 from Australia, 1 from Costa Rica, 1 from Cuba, 1 from Korea, 1 from Iran (Persia), 1 from Puerto Rico, and 1 from the Republic of Panama. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Robert A. Millikan, Ph.D., Pasadena, California.

The thirteenth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Sir William I. de C. Wheeler, M.S., F.R.C.S.I., London, England, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 17.

The twenty-first convocation of the College was held in Chicago on October 13, 1933. Fellowships were conferred upon 623 initiates. Of these initiates, 597 were from the United States, 17 from Canada, 3 from China, 1 from Honduras, 1 from England, 1 from New Zealand, 1 from Iran (Persia), and 2 from Syria. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Robert Maynard Hutchins, A.M., LL.D., President of the University of Chicago.

The fourteenth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Dr. Loyal Davis, Chicago, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 9.

The twenty-second convocation of the College was held in Boston on October 19, 1934. Fellowships were conferred upon 590 initiates. Of these initiates, 563 were from the United States, 4 from Puerto Rico, 12 from Canada, 1 from Nicaragua, 2 from China, 2 from Chosen, 1 from Bahama Islands, 1 from England, 2 from India, 1 from Syria, and 1 from Turkey. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Lotus D. Coffman, Ph.D., LL.D., President of the University of Minnesota.

The fifteenth John B. Murphy Oration on Surgery was delivered by Dr. Donald C. Balfour, Rochester, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 15.

The twenty-third convocation of the College was held in San Francisco on November 1, 1935. Fellowships were conferred upon 572 initiates. Of these initiates, 553 were from the United States, 1 from Hawaii, 9 from Canada, 1 from Japan, 2 from China, 3 from Mexico, 2 from India, 1 from Syria, and 1 from Uruguay. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Robert Gordon Sproul, B.S., LL.D., President of the University of California. The first Annual Oration on Surgery of the American College of Surgeons, entitled "The American College of Surgeons—An Educational Institution; A Tribute to Franklin H. Martin," was delivered by Dr. George Crile, Cleveland, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 28.

The twenty-fourth convocation of the College was held in Philadelphia on October 23, 1936. Fellowships were conferred upon 520 initiates. Of these initiates, 489 were from the United States, 1 from Hawaii, 11 from Canada, 3 from Puerto Rico, 1 from Africa, 1 from Argentina, 1 from Brazil, 3 from China, 1 from Chosen, 1 from Colombia, 1 from Cuba, 1 from Guatemala, 3 from Mexico, 1 from the Philippine Islands, 1 from the Republic of Panama, and 1 from Siam. The Fellowship Address was delivered by Judge Harold M. Stephens, Associate Justice, United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. The second Annual Oration on Surgery of the American College of Surgeons, entitled "The Formation and Treatment of Calculi in the Biliary Ducts and Gall Bladder," was delivered by Sir James Walton, M.S., F.R.C.S., K.C.V.O., London, England, at the presidential meeting of the Clinical Congress, held October 19.

The twenty-fifth convocation of the College was held in Chicago on October 25, 1937. Fellowships were conferred upon 525 initiates. Of these initiates, 487 were from the United States, 24 from Canada, 1 from Africa, 1 from Argentina, 2 from China, 1 from Egypt, 1 from England, 2 from India, 1 from Iran, 1 from Japan, 1 from Mexico, 1 from Siam, 1 from Syria, and 1 from Venezuela. The third Annual Oration on Surgery of the American College of Surgeons, entitled "The Surgeon as a Biologist," was delivered by Mr. John Percy Lockhart-Mummery, M.B., B.Ch., F.R.C.S., London, England, at the presidential meeting and convocation, held on October 25.

The twenty-sixth convocation of the College was held in New York on October 17, 1938. Fellowships were conferred upon 539 initiates. Of these initiates, 496 were from the United States, 1 from Hawaii, 2 from Puerto Rico, 1 from the Virgin Islands, 23 from Canada, 1 from Africa, 1 from Antigua (West Indies), 1 from Australia, 1 from Bermuda, 3 from Brazil, 1 from Chile, 3 from China, 1 from Colombia, 2 from India, 1 from Iran (Persia), and 1 from Mexico. The fourth Annual Oration on Surgery of the American College of Surgeons, entitled "Our College Mandate—A Tribute to Allen B. Kanavel," was delivered by Dr. Walter W. Chipman, Montreal, at the presidential meeting and convocation, held on October 17.

The twenty-seventh convocation of the College was held in Philadelphia on October 16, 1939. Fellowships were conferred upon 496 initiates. Of these initiates, 471 were from the United States, 1 from Hawaii, 15 from Canada, 1 from Arabia, 1 from the Bahama Islands, 1 from Brazil, 1 from Chile, 2 from China, 1 from England, 1 from India, and 1 from Panama. The fifth Annual Oration on Surgery of the American College of Surgeons, entitled "Intrathoracic Tumors," was delivered by Dr. Evarts A. Graham, St. Louis, at the presidential meeting and convocation, held on October 16.

The twenty-eighth convocation of the College was held in Chicago on October 21, 1940. Fellowships were conferred upon 611 initiates. Of these initiates, 587 were from the United States, 3 from Hawaii, 1 from the Philippine Islands, 1 from Puerto Rico, 6 from Canada, 1 from Argentina, 1 from China, 1 from Chosen, 1 from Egypt, 1 from Newfoundland, 1 from Scotland, 1 from Trinidad, and 6 from Venezuela. The sixth Annual Oration on Surgery of the American College of Surgeons, entitled "Principles of Colonic Surgery," was delivered by Dr. Fred W. Rankin, Lexington, at the presidential meeting and convocation, held on October 21.

The twenty-ninth convocation of the College was held in Boston on November 3, 1941. Fellowships were conferred upon 624 initiates. Of these initiates, 601 were from the United States, 2 from Hawaii, 5 from Puerto Rico, 5 from Canada, 1 from Argentina, 2 from Brazil, 1 from Cuba, 2 from India, 1 from Mexico, 2 from Newfoundland, and 2 from Venezuela. The seventh Annual Oration on Surgery of the American College of Surgeons, entitled "Some Lessons Learned in the Great War," was delivered by Dr. W. Edward Gallie, Toronto, Ontario, at the scientific evening meeting, held on November 4.

The thirtieth convocation of the College was scheduled to be held in Cleveland on the evening of November 17, 1942. However, the annual Clinical Congress was cancelled by the Board of Regents on October 14, 1942, and a Congress was not planned for 1943 because of conditions surrounding the general war program which led to a great burden on the members of the surgical profession in their local communities as a result of the large proportion of the medical profession which was serving with the armed forces during World War II. The Regents by their action took cognizance of the desire of the profession to do nothing which would interfere with the successful prosecution of the war program such as would have been caused by the temporary absence of its members from civilian duty during the period of the Clinical Congress, embarrassment of the transportation system, and interference with the work of the local profession in preparations and presentations incident to the annual meeting.

In 1944, the United States Office of Defense Transportation favored the holding of a War Session of the Clinical Congress as it was felt that meetings of this type should be held despite war-time travel restrictions. However, because of the acute war situation that developed, involving greater demands than at any time previously upon transportation systems for the carrying of wounded military personnel, troops, and war matériel, the Congress and the thirtieth convocation which were to have been held in Chicago during the week of October 23, 1944, were cancelled by the Regents in August.

Because of the continued acute situation in the closing days of World War II, a Clinical Congress was not planned for 1945.

The thirty-second Clinical Congress was scheduled to be held in New York City September 9 to 16, 1946. Ninety days after arrangements for the Congress had been completed, plans were announced for a meeting of the United Nations in New York City during the same month. As the Fellows of the College would have been put to great discomfort and inconvenience, since the United Nations required hotel accommodations for about 8,000 participating individuals, the 1946 Clinical Congress was transferred to Cleveland, where it was held December 16 to 20, 1946. The major theme of the Congress was the war-time and post-war developments in surgery and the surgical specialties.

The thirtieth convocation of the College was held in Cleveland on December 20, 1946. Fellowships were conferred upon 579 initiates of 1946, and upon 2,544 initiates who were received into fellowship in absentia in the war years of 1942 to 1945, during which no convocation was held. Of these initiates, 787 were admitted in 1942, 612 in 1943, 564 in 1944, and 581 in 1945.

The Fellowship Address, entitled "The Education of a Physician," was delivered by Dr. Reuben G. Gustavson, Chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

In lieu of the Annual Oration in Surgery, which was established in 1935, the Board of Regents on April 1, 1946, established the Martin Memorial Lecture as a memorial to Franklin H. Martin and his wife, Isabelle Hollister Martin. The founder of the College and of Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics was joined by Mrs. Martin in making the College a beneficiary in their wills to the Journal and its physical plant, operated by The Surgical Publishing Company of Chicago of which they were the owners. Dr. Martin died in 1935 and Mrs. Martin in 1945. The First Martin Memorial Lecture, entitled "The American Surgeon, A. U. S.," was presented at the presidential meeting on December 16, 1946, by Dr. Edward D. Churchill, John Homans Professor of Surgery, Harvard University School of Medicine.

The thirty-first convocation of the College was held in New York City on September 12, 1947. Fellowships were conferred upon 762 initiates. Of these initiates, 729 were from the United States, 20 from Canada, 3 from Hawaii, two each from Australia and India, and one each from Africa, Brazil, England, the Philippine Islands, Syria, and Uruguay. The Fellowship Address, entitled "Liberal Medical Education," was presented by Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Vice President, University of Illinois, in Charge of Chicago Professional Colleges, and Distinguished Professor of Physiology.

The Second Martin Memorial Lecture of the College, entitled "The Qualifications of the Surgeon and the Cancer Problem," was delivered at the presidential meeting on September 8 by Dr. Allen O. Whipple, Clinical Director, Memorial Hospital, and Emeritus Valentine Mott Professor of Surgery, Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The thirty-second convocation of the College was held in Los Angeles on October 22, 1948. Fellowships were conferred upon 943 initiates. Of these initiates, 886 were from the United States, 30 from Canada, 5 each from Brazil and Mexico, 3 from China, 2 each from the Philippine Islands and Uruguay, and 1 each from the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Chile, Egypt, England, India, Panama, Peru, Syria, and Venezuela. The Fellowship Address, entitled "Hereditary Errors in Metabolism," was presented by George W. Beadle, Ph.D., Pasadena, Chairman, Division of Biology, California Institute of Technology.

The Third Martin Memorial Lecture of the College, entitled "Some Aspects of the Development of Intrathoracic Surgery," was delivered at the presidential meeting on October 18 by Dr. Clarence Crafoord, Stockholm, Sweden, Professor of Thoracic Surgery, Karolinska Institutet.

The thirty-third convocation of the College was held in Chicago on October 21, 1949. Fellowships were conferred upon 921 initiates. Of these initiates, 878 were from the United States, 29 from Canada, 3 from Hawaii, 2 each from Africa, Australia, and India, 1 each from China, Ireland, Lebanon, Mexico, and Uruguay. The Fellowship Address, entitled "Science in Surgery—Stop and Look and Listen," was presented by The Lord Webb-Johnson, K.C.V.O., C.B.E., F.R.C.S. (Eng.) (Ed., Hon.), F.A.C.S. (Hon.), London, Immediate Past President, Royal College of Surgeons of England.

The Fourth Martin Memorial Lecture of the College, entitled "Collateral Circulation, Natural and Artificial," was delivered at the presidential meeting on October 17 by Sir James Learmonth, LL.D. (Glas.), K.C.V.O., C.B.E., F.R.C.S. (Ed.) (Eng., Hon.), F.A.C.S. (Hon.), Professor of Surgery and Regius Professor of Clinical Surgery, University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

ACADEMIC GOWN

The gown adopted by the Board of Regents to be worn by the Fellows at the convocations consists of a body of navy blue mohair faced with scarlet velvet. The mortar-board cap is of the same blue material, with a scarlet tassel.

WAR SESSIONS—1942 to 1944

After the entry of the United States into World War II, the officials of the College appreciated the immediate urgency of disseminating facts concerning enlistment of medical personnel in the armed forces, and of giving to the medical profession authoritative information on the treatment of war wounds. To meet this need, in the absence of the annual Clinical Congress, during 1942 to 1944, the College conducted a series of one-day War Sessions keyed directly to the war need. In this program, which concentrated on medicine and surgery and hospital needs in military service and in civilian defense, the College had the active co-operation of government agencies in the United States and Canada.

In 1942, 27 War Sessions were conducted in as many states and provinces; 20 in 1943; and 21 in 1944. The War Sessions which were planned for the spring of 1945 were cancelled because of the critical transportation and housing situation and the College's desire to co-operate in every way with the agencies which were responsible for the movement of military personnel and matériel.

THE GREAT MACE

PRESENTED TO THE AMERICAN COLLEGE OF SURGEONS
BY THE CONSULTING SURGEONS OF THE BRITISH ARMIES

THE Great Mace has been designed so as to tell in a symbolic way of the close union between British and American Surgery, and of the ties which unite Great Britain to Canada and to the United States of America. It retains the traditional shape and proportions of the Civic Mace of the seventeenth century, and is of hand-wrought chiseled and repoussé silver gilt. It was made by Omar Ramsden, who embodied in his design some suggestions of the donors.

THE CROWN-SHAPED FINIAL is formed of six rich scroll buttresses upholding the "Sacred Flame of Science" issuing from a mortar of antique pattern, the model of which was recently found on the field of battle near Salonika. These buttresses spring from a cresting composed of alternating Maple leaves and American Eagles intertwined with the Serpents of Æsculapius, while the position usually occupied by a band of jewels in a monarchical crown is filled with the words "The American College of Surgeons."

THE BODY OR HEAD is divided into six panels by the Winged Caduceus, being an ornamental rendering of the badge of the United States Army Medical Corps. The panels set forth the following "Achievements at Arms" in delicate and finely detailed repoussé work:

1. The full Blazon of the United States of America.
2. The Dominion of Canada.
3. The Royal College of Surgeons of England.
4. The Badge of the Royal Army Medical Corps.
5. The Shields of Arms of John Hunter and Lord Lister.
6. A Cartouche bearing the words "Philip Syng Physick, 1768-1837, Father of American Surgery."

The lower portion of the Head is decorated with a symbolic band of water indicating the ocean which both unites and separates America and the Mother Country. The latter is symbolized by the British Lion Brackets of highly chiseled work which support the head and terminate the upper part of the staff. The talons of the lion's feet grip the hammered decoration of the upper knop, which consists of a design of American and Canadian Maple seed-pods and heart-shaped spaces. This hammered work is protected by boldly projecting, solid jewel-like bosses of chiseled work.

THE STAFF is decorated with a free design of the national floral emblems of the United Kingdom—The Rose, the Thistle, the Shamrock, and the Leek. Intertwined among these are a number of ribbon scrolls, each one of which bears the name of one of the donors.

THE FOOT bears, as decoration, the root form from which the above spring and a series of six small shields which may be used for possible future arms of inscriptions. The extreme bottom knop is fluted with leaves of Isatis tinctoria.

The various parts are held together, in the traditional manner, by a rod of British Oak, cut from a tree grown at Wytham, Berks. The extreme length is 3 feet 11¼ inches, and the weight of silver is 140 ounces troy.

THE DEDICATORY INSCRIPTION engraved on the plate under the Crown sets forth that the Mace is a gift

"From the Consulting Surgeons of the British Armies to the American College of Surgeons, in memory of mutual work and good-fellowship in the Great War, 1914-1918."
